Shooting Affray at Macon.

A sensational shooting affray took place on Vine street Tuesday afternoon, which resulted in the death of one and the serious wounding of two others. W. Scott Larrabee, a veterinary surgeon, had a dispute over a bill with Dr. T. J. Norris, a druggist, in the latter's store. Norris ordered him out of the house, and Larrabee crossed the street to his office and procured a revolver. Returning a few minutes later, he called to Dr. Norris to come out and settle that matter. Norris stepped outside. At this juncture, Mason Norris, son of the Doctor, who is 18 years old, approached his father and told him Larrabee meant trouble, and he had better take his revolver with him. Norris replied that he needed no gun. Larrabee turned and backed down the street a few steps, and, drawing his revolver, fired rapidly at Norris. Almost the instant he drew his revolver Mason Norris stepped to one side of his father and immediately returned Larrabee's fire. Nine shots passed between the two. Neither Dr. Norris nor his son were struck, but Larrabee received two bullets, one in the leg, and one in the left arm, near the shoulder. One bullet from Larrabee's revolver struck Frank Polson, a Constable hurrying to the scene of the trouble, in the stomach, and passed through his body. Another struck a bystander, named Alfred Wiggins, in the leg. Polson died Wednesday night.

Obituary.

Grandmother Harlan, as she was familiarly known, was taken sick at her home in Edina, Mo., Dec. 21st, 1889, and died Jan. 1st, '90. Her suffering was very great; her disease was Pneumonia and Typhus in its nature. She bore her suffering with perfect Christian resignation, confiding fully in her Savior, and often said she was prepared and wanted to die. She was rational almost to the last, recognizing all who visited her. She often prayed for death to release her suffering. She was 71 years old and had been a great sufferer for many years. She was never heard to complain, but often talked of her perfect resignation to the will of her Heavenly Father. She leaves but one surviving child, Thompson Dodge, and his children her only Grand-children, six in number five boys and one girl. She was buried in the Kirksville cemetery after funeral sermon at the Christian church by the Pastor, U. M. Browder. W. B.

Every woman in America ought to read the article "Women of Siam" in Demorest's Family Magazine for February, to know how happy her lot really is. The forcible contrast between our progressive civilization and that of the far East has seldom been so strikingly presented to our notice as in this readable article, illustrated in part by drawings made by a native Siamese artist, which compare curiously enough with the fine examples of our modern illustrative art in this same number. The other beautiful illustrations (nearly two hundred) include an exquisite full page gravure on heavy plate paper, entitled "How Long?" portraits of the venerable Dom Pedro, deposed emperor of Brazil, and his family, and as if these were not sufficient attractions for any publication, the past is made to yield us its treasures, and the time "When Grandmamma Was Young" is portrayed for us in charming pictures and descriptions. From grandmamma to baby, who will be delighted with the funny "Japanese Paper Frog," no member of the family has been slighted in compiling this number. Demorest's is justly celebrated as a "Family" Magazine, and this issue is fully up to its reputation.
