

THE WEEKLY GRAPHIC

T. E. SUBLETTE, Proprietor. KIRKSVILLE, MISSOURI. FRIDAY, NOV. 15

Five days after the earthquake the infraction of the Solid South was reported. The Tammany tiger is still on top of the ruins, but its breath is more than ever like that of a skunk.

In the campaign next year the Democrats will not sing "My Old Kentucky Home" or "Maryland, My Maryland."

Altgeld's Thanksgiving proclamation is no doubt acceptable reading in Illinois because one more will be his last.

Poultry dealers last week tempered the wind to the shorn lamb as it were, and enabled Democratic exchanges to display a few roosters.

Those Democratic organs which have been asserting that McKinleyism is "dead" have probably only been attempting a shorter expression for the "silent majority."

Sporting experts announce that Fitzsimmons displayed the white feather in Arkansas. The public will perhaps be surprised to learn he had so much white about him.

Uncle Sam could leave the selection of his national flowers to jellows like Marlborough and Castiglione, he would probably get to wear in his buttonhole a suggestive marigold.

Adelina Patti attributes her success in life to putting her "whole heart into every undertaking." Here is a valuable hint for the American heiress contemplating matrimony.

The McKinley law may have caused the people to vote as they did in 1892, but they have not lost an opportunity since that time to show that they have repented in sack cloth and ashes.

Carnegie and Rockefeller do not make a specialty of politics, but they manage to make converts to socialism at a great rate. One spectacular endorsement, emphasized by a servile daily press, beats ten speeches for that purpose.

The flowers used at the hippodrome wedding in New York last week were afterward sent to the hospitals. It is fortunate that the newspaper accounts of the affair ceased before the readers were in need of a similar trip.

Those persons who think President Cleveland should think a little on the Cuban question forthwith are unreasonable in their requirements. It is not at all likely that he has yet gotten his fish-hooks laid away for the winter.

Lord Salisbury made a short but pithy Republican speech the other day. He simply declared that English agriculture is suffering from the effects of free trade. Of course it is a pity to have Mr. Bayard snubbed thus indirectly, but the truth is always in order.

The late poet and journalist, Eugene Field, was born in Missouri, but his fame and popularity were as wide as the country. He died at last of heart failure, yet his strong heart had not failed to blend a genius for the sweeter charities with a genius for quip and song.

Bill Nye elicited the egg species of applause in New Jersey a few days before the election, and subsequent developments would seem to indicate the unfettered humorist had probably called that commonwealth a Democratic stronghold. Bill should either unmask his joke or not be high when the consequences appear.

Mr. Bayard recently had a great deal to say in favor of "individual liberty." This is the same Mr. Bayard who some time ago recognized the fact that the United States needs a man for President with the make-up of a monarch. The English climate is not agreeable with Mr. Bayard's intellect. Mr. Cleveland should give him something easy.

The Democratic leaders who shaped the party platform, and afterward shaped the policy of the administration seem to have worked on the theory that Democrats can not read. The election of last week, however, convinced them of their error. They now know that Democrats read, and for several months have been reading to some purpose.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Mr. Cleveland and his Cabinet after mature consideration, have arrived at the wonderful conclusion that the overwhelming democratic defeats of last week were endorsements of the administration and condemnation of the anti-Cleveland democrats. Was anything more idiotic ever conceived outside of the walls of the insane asylum? It is egotism run wild. These self-blinded individuals will never realize the disgust the people of this country feel for their demonstrated incapacity until the election returns of next November are counted; then they will have the remainder of their lives to learn to see themselves as others see them.

Gorman, Hill, and the other anti-Cleveland democrats are going, unless their friends in Washington are misinformed as to their intentions, to give Mr. Cleveland another chance to see whether his personal following is as large as he thinks it is, by helping to nominate him for president again. They charge him with having made it impossible to elect any democrat president, and say that he shall bear the ignominy of being the only man who was ever twice defeated for the Presidency of the United States. That will suit the republicans, as they would rather defeat Mr. Cleveland than anybody else.

The republicans are naturally delighted at the prospect of not only regaining the Presidency next year, but of having control of both branches of Congress, a majority of the Senate after March 4, 1897, having been made absolutely certain by the result of last week's elections. Nothing but some stupendous blunder on the part of the republican majority in the House at the coming session of Congress can prevent republican success next year, and with that man of iron will and proved sagacity, Thomas B. Reed, in the Speaker's chair, no such blunder will be made.

The administration is understood to be considerably troubled about the Cuban question and several members of the cabinet, having in view the failure of Mr. Cleveland's Hawaiian policy, are trying to persuade him to make no recommendation on the Cuban matter in his message to Congress, further than to call attention to the information (sending the documents with the message) gathered by the State Department, and to request that Congress shall define the policy to be pursued by this government. If he accepts that advice it will indicate that he has learned something by experience, but he will have to do it before most people will believe it possible.

How are the mighty fallen! E. Ellery Anderson, of New York, one of the original cuckoos, has been officially snubbed by Hoke Smith, one of the second crop of cuckoos. Mr. Anderson is one of the men appointed by Mr. Cleveland to look out for the interests of the government in the Union Pacific Railroad. Quite awhile ago he made some recommendations to Secretary Hoke Smith, concerning the patenting of lands to that railroad company by the U. S. Land Office. Not hearing anything about his recommendations, Mr. Anderson ventured to remind the Secretary of them and was curtly informed that the Secretary did not deem it advisable to pass on the recommendation either way, as Congress would probably legislate on the subject at the coming session.

The republican party might have lots worse candidates than Senator Quay would make and then not have a bad one, but Senator Quay has no idea of becoming a candidate next year, notwithstanding democratic stories to the contrary.

Commencing Sunday Nov. 17th, a Pullman sleeper will be run via Q. O. & K. C. from Kirksville to Chicago, connecting at Quincy with C. B. & Q. trains 3 and 4. A new time card will also go into effect Sunday Nov. 17th, making important changes in the time of all trains. W. H. Phalen, Agt.

ALL AROUND US.

Towns along the Rock Island seems to be well supplied with tramps.

Mrs. Lon Hannah recently suicided near Greencastle on account of ill health.

Tramps last week bearded a Gallatin barber in his den and took all his razors.

An extra force of watchmen spoiled the Halloween sport of Milan's hoodlums.

A Trenton orator lately spoke on "Our Debts." It was a sermon, not a middle of the road speech.

Doctor Fraker, the Excelsior Springs insurance swindler, is now enjoying his liberty under bond.

By next year county exchanges should learn that the apothrophe is properly omitted in Halloween.

A former citizen of Memphis proposes to feather his nest by starting a chicken ranch near Wyaconda.

Coal has been struck five miles north of Carrollton, at a depth of 151 feet. A 41-inch vein is reported.

A feminine evangelist struck Queen City not long ago, and more than 50 converts can testify that a woman can preach.

The Jefferson City Tribune remarks that the Taylors will have their hearing in January, rather than in April, as many suppose.

Exchanges continue to remind the young ladies that after 1896 it will be eight years till there are other leap year opportunities.

A man gets the Queen City Transcript a year for an ear of corn 14 inches long. Other ears in the contest were nearly as long.

The potato crop is a failure in many cases in Putnam county, and many of the corn fields have not yielded as they were expected to yield.

A big dollar was paid by Judge Bigler on subscription to a Linneus paper, and the editor seemed to think it the biggest event of the week.

In a corn husking race near Avalon, lasting nine hours and a half, one man husked a little more than 102 bushels, the other a little over 100.

An exchange, probably to keep Young from forgetting it, remarks, "It has been 16 years since Bill Young was hung by a mob in Clark county."

A Unionville editor was in Lancaster the other day, and found occasion to wish Putnam county could show a court-house equal to Schuyler's.

Linn county citizens are getting somewhat used to being held up and robbed of a few dollars, though as yet they are a trifle pale while telling their experience.

Two prisoners in the Linn county jail fought the other day, and one struck the other on the head with a coffee mill. Perhaps the mill furnished the grounds for the trouble.

Arrangements have been made in the chemical department of the University at Columbia for the manufacture of antitoxine, the new remedy for diphtheria. It will be sold at actual cost.

Those bugs vulgarly called "devil's darning needles" have excited some superstition in Sullivan county this fall, but it is not at all probable that Old Nick's raiment is out of repair in that section.

A Washab employee tried to force Supt. McGuigan to write a letter exonerating him from blame in a wreck, but only succeeded in getting his revolver taken from him and being arrested later.

Two burglars went through several farm houses near Purdin a few days ago. They were arrested and tried to escape, when one of them was fatally shot. The other is in jail in Chariton county.

A Trenton boy 16 years old got 30 days in jail for stealing an overcoat. A Trenton girl of the same tender years got a similar sentence for stealing a cloak, but was granted a stay upon the promise of future good behavior.

About two years ago, the Rev. Mr. Surf, of Blue Springs, Neb., lost his hair after fever and became nearly bald. He finally resolved to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and now has as fine a head of hair as could be desired. This is certainly a fact worth remembering.
