ROOSEVELT FIRED ON BY FANATIC

Foe of Third Term Idea Shoots Him as He Enters His Automobile

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Progressive candidate for president of the United States, was shot in the right breast and seriously wounded about 8 o'clock Monday night while seated in an automobile in Milwaukee, ready to start to the auditorium where he was to deliver an address. The would-be murderer was John Schranck of New York City, who is apparently demented on the subject of the third term.

Col. Roosevelt did not consider the wound serious and, against the earnest protest of physicians, went on and delivered his speech. His assailant was captured and placed in prison. After his speech Col. Roosevelt permitted an examination of his wound and was afterward taken to a hospital at Chicago, where he will probably remain about ten days.

The bullet passed through a heavy overcoat, the manuscript of his speech, his spectacle case and clothing, struck and fractured the fourth rib on his right side and passed into his body, but touched no vital organs. The bullet had not yet been removed from his body yesterday, but surgeons agree that the only danger is from blood poison.

The assassin is a foreigner and says he had trailed Mr. Roosevelt for several days, hoping to be able to kill him. The dastardly crime is a shock to the whole nation and messages of sympathy have been sent to Mr. Roosevelt by prominent men of all parties.
