Some Evening Reveries

Young men, you are the architect of your own fortunes. Rely upon your strength of body and soul; take for your motto self-reliance, honesty and industry; for your stars, faith, perseverance and pluck; and inscribe on your banner, "Be just and fear not." Don't take too much advice; stay at the helm and steer your ship. Strike out. Think well of yourselves. Fire above the mark you intend to hit. Don't practice excessive humility. You can't get above your level—water doesn't run up hill. Put potatoes in a cart over a rough road and the small one will go to the bottom. Energy, invincible determination, with the right motive, are the levers that move the world. Civility costs nothing and buys everything. Don't drink; don't smoke; don't swear; don't gamble; don't lie; don't tattle. Be polite; be generous; be self-reliant. Read good books and we will wager a big red apple that you will make a man of whom the entire community will be proud.

The woman is the heart of the home. If she is cross, miserable and dissipated, there will be little life and true happiness within. Let her do her part, but let her refuse to labor beyond her strength. A wise, tender mother is of more importance than anything else in the world to children. Let every mother train herself to a wise neglect of unimportant things that she may be to her own the embodiment of sympathy, hope, gentleness, charity, wisdom and love.

One child in a family that gives away all his playthings with Monte Cristo nonchalance and prodigality, is often wrongly kissed and praised and haloed in the family circle for his generous soul. He is often held up as a model to his brother that shows an incipient passion for cornering the toy market by crowding out and acquiring the holdings of the weaker dealers in the nursery. Both children are wrong. The first has not the proper respect for his duty to himself; the second has not just recognition of his duty to others. The one demands less than his rights; the other more.

There is no place in the universe for a lazy woman. We will care for the sick woman, we will tolerate a cross woman—but what shall we do to the lazy woman. Because the home is the very center of life the homemaker must be active, orderly and conscientious—these qualifications she must have, and if she can add to these, thrift, intelligence and tenderness, we find wherever she is, that most blessed and beautiful of all earthly delights, a happy home.

It is a matter of state-wide comment that the Missouri state board of agriculture, co-operating with the college of agriculture, has of late been rendering a substantial service to the commonwealth in the giving of counsel to thousands through letters, bulletins and newspaper articles on the pests that lately have been threatening the crops.

Court adjourned to meet June 15

The 46th annual report of the Missouri state board of agriculture will be ready for mailing within the next few days. It is the largest volume ever issued by the secretary's office, and it comes to the people this year earlier than ever before. Its table of contents shows the wealth of information in its 750 pages.

CASE CARS

COMPLETELY EQUIPPED set a new standard of value in motor cars. Read what complete equipment now means---Nothing left but "gas, oil and water" for you to buy.

EACH CASE CAR for this year leaves the factory ready for a trans-continental tour without a worry. In addition to the equipment ordinarily found on cars built for the discriminating, Case cars carry an extra tire on an extra rim, tire cover, two extra inner tubes, handy lamp and long wire, Warner Auto-Meter, 8-day clock, Weed chains, electric horn, and, of course, a full tool kit, pump, jack, top, etc.

This complete equipment is necessary, but it is of minor importance compared with those values which you cannot see,—which you can only appreciate. Case cars are advertised as particularly worthy, because of their HIDDEN VALUES, and we still say Case cars are built with a masterful skill and thoroughness which no other car at this price, and few at higher, can afford, and without which this "complete equipment" is worthless. It is the combination of these two features, vitality within and convenience without, that distinguishes the 1914 Case cars.

Back of these cars—every one—is the word of a company capitalized at $40,000,000, whose product for seventy years has been the standard by which others have been measured. "Case," to the man who knows, is his absolute protection.

Case "25," Five Passenger, Electric Starter and Lighting $1250.

We will be please to furnish catalog of detailed construction and give demonstration to those in the market for a car. Case cars are best in their class.
