Not Irish

The "Irish bull" is an accepted term, and has a fixed meaning in literature, but the "herding of bulls" is not by any means confined to the Emerald Isle. It was—

A Scotch woman who said that the butcher of her town only killed half a beast at a time.

A Dutchman who said that a pig had no marks on his ears except a short tail.

A British magistrate who, on being told by a vagabond that he was not married, responded, "That's a good thing for your wife."

A Frenchman who, contentedly laying his head upon a large stone jar for a pillow, stuffed it with hay.

An American lecturer who solemnly said one evening, "Parents you may have children; or, if not, your daughter may have."

A German orator, who, warming with his subject, exclaimed, "There is no man, woman or child in the house who has arrived at the age of fifty years but has felt the truth thundering through their minds for centuries."—Selected.
