Dr. Elcoe of New Frankfort is not expected to live at this writing. Dr. Osborne of Gilliam is waiting on him.

The Ayres blacksmith has quite a lot of old junk around his shop in the shape of threshing outfits such as old wagons, wheat fans and so on.

Our up-to-date young farmer, Amos Audsley, has in about 270 acres of corn, a large wheat crop. He case is nice and clean and standing high as your heads, his wheat is all in the shock—some people watch and get wise.

Hurrah, for Miami, if she can't have a fourth of July picnic she intends to get even with the "fates" and have a good old time circus on the 6th. From the way the posted bills read it will be well worth attending, for many of our children never saw an elephant or monkey.

This will be an opportunity to see the beasts from different parts of the world that have been read of but never seen. It is also recognized by the larger part of intelligent class of people that a circus is highly beneficial to the younger class as it affords them an opportunity to see the attained skill and wonderful feats of humanity.

The Hess brothers are now "millionaires"—they may not have a million dollars but they have all they need and can properly spend—and are enjoying themselves.
