"There is a Tide in the Affairs of Men which, Taken at the Flood, leads on to Fortune."

This was true when Shakespeare wrote it and it will always be true. Not that it is possible for a man always to ride on the crest of the tide of a single opportunity to absolute and assured success, though this does happen in rare cases. Everyone, however, should be alert to take advantage of opportunities that flow in his direction, each of which will bear him further on the way to fortune.

Perhaps the flood tide of opportunity to make money or save it will come your way soon. To identify yourself with a good bank helps to establish your credit and gives you financial standing.
