

TIGERS WIN TWO AT BASKETBALL

Warrensburg Team Defeated in Opening Games, 46-12 and 40-18.

HENLEY PLAYS IN BEST FORM

Second Contest Shows Lack of Team Work on Both Sides.

The University of Missouri Tigers opened the basketball season by defeating the Warrensburg Normal School team Friday night, 46 to 12, and Saturday night, 40 to 18.

The game Saturday night was ragged and showed a lack of form and team work on both sides. At times the individual playing was good, but at no period of the game did the Tigers come up to the team work or individual work they showed in the game the night before. The Teachers played better ball Saturday in an effort to wipe out the defeat of Friday night but were out-classed, despite the fact that the Tigers' strongest men, Henley and Gardner, sat on the bench the first half of the game.

Miller Stars for Normals.

Miller of the Normals played the star game for his team both nights while Henley played in better form than any other man on the floor. Owing to the large score made in the first game, the Tigers lined up with Cohen in center and Stava at guard in the second game.

Cohen showed up well at throwing goals, but his inability to get the ball on the toss-up prevented systematic work. Stava lacked ginger and experience but he covered his man well. In the second half Henley and Gardner went in but both teams were then completely disorganized and the playing was poor, the one feature being the work of Henley, who made seven goals in the half. The first game started in fine form. The Tigers worked together and piled up scores for awhile but before the first half ended the playing was all individual. Ristine handled the ball perfectly in dribbling but was in bad form on goal throwing. Gardner was the most consistent player on the floor, covering his man and nearly always passing the ball where it belonged. Bernet slipped up the floor several times and got in position for shots at goal which he made good. The Teachers failed to play on the defensive and did not cover their men well. This was probably due to the fact that the Tigers outweighed them. Owing to a misunderstanding the band failed to appear and there was no music during either game. The athletic management obtained a piano and thus music was furnished for about twenty-five couples, who remained to dance after each game.

FRESHMEN DEFEAT SENIORS, SOPHOMORES BEAT JUNIORS

In the class basketball games Saturday afternoon the Freshmen defeated the Seniors by 17 to 14, and the Sophomores defeated the Juniors by 25 to 5, at Rothwell gymnasium.

At practice Friday afternoon the Senior team elected M. S. Field captain, and Saturday before the game H. L. Praether was elected captain of the Junior team.

BEST ASSET OF WOMAN

Rabbi Says Ability to Cook Ranks Ahead of Beauty.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Ability to cook well, 75 per cent; physical beauty, 20 per cent; dress, 5 per cent. This is the score by which the modern young woman should be judged regarding her qualifications for marriage, according to the views of Rabbi Felix A. Levy of Emanuel Temple.

"The woman who can cook well invariably makes the best wife," says Rabbi Levy. "Too much attention is paid nowadays to beauty. A pretty face is a big asset to a woman, but it is as 75 to 20, when compared to her ability to set a first-class meal on the table."

AMERICAN WOMAN AS SEEN BY CRITIC

Writer in German Magazine Says She is Spoiled, Bigoted, Nervous.

HER WHIMS DOMINATE MEN

But She is "Handsome," He Admits, and Defender of the Good.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—The American woman is placed upon a pedestal and in the same breath picked apart by a critic who writes a deep analysis of her whims, faults and caprices in Velhagen und Klasing's Neue Monatshefte, Germany's leading illustrated magazine.

The captious critic gives the American woman credit for many admirable attributes, but he finds much of which to complain. He starts out on his learned analysis by making the serious observation that the American woman is "remarkably early mature." Then he condescends to concede that she is "handsome, with fine contour and figure, not infrequently with the round and gracious lines of the best female models."

He dives into his dictionary and comes up with various adjectives that, he says, adequately express his idea of his precious subject. She is "nervous, intelligent, bigoted, gracious, elegant, amiable, spoiled, womanly and, at the same time, unwomanly." She is full of "wants and claims" and of a monstrous self-consciousness. All this the critic avers without a tremor.

Wishes Are Commands.

"American women," the critic goes on, "are inclined to regard men who have raised them on the pedestal and pinnacle of goddesses as simply the gratifiers and suppliers of their whims. Their wishes are commands for the ordinary American man. It makes no difference if the wishes are unreasonable.

"They wanted army canteens abolished, because those establishments were supposed to harbor and encourage alcoholism, and the representatives of the people in Congress abolished them forthwith, in spite of the protests of military people and experts. They command state Legislatures to forbid the sale of intoxicating drinks, and forthwith they are forbidden, and thousands of business existences ruined in consequence.

"When they appear before a court of justice, and a man is their opponent, justice is always on their side, the goddess never hesitating to take the bandage from her eyes. The mere attempt of a man to get the better of a woman in a court of justice is condemned with draconic severity of the judge. It makes no difference if the man is in the right; he is unevils, unchivalrous, ungentlemanly in his mere attempt; he has attempted to degrade a goddess; he has been guilty of sacrilege.

Her Right to Horsewhip Man.

If an American woman has even a suspicion that some man has done her a wrong she can horsewhip him in the public street amid the applause of the onlookers. And should the man attempt self-defense the onlookers would fall on him and maul him within an inch of his life. As avenger of her honor she may shoot down an unfaithful lover, or her father or brother may do it, and the jury will invariably find extenuating circumstances for the murderer and acquit.

"Art is equally under her slipper. Painting, sculpture, literature and the drama must tremble at her nod. There must be nothing that is naked, in any sense of the term. Everything must be clothed. Prudery demands this, and woe betide the man who tries to defend what the almighty American woman condemns!

"And yet it must be admitted," says the critic, "that the American woman is the warm defender of all that is good. She is supreme in the work of daily charity. There also she makes mistakes, but her intention is magnificent. Men leave her to manage all those things and confine themselves to hunting the dollars; which, of course, they gladly pour at their women's feet.

The American man does not feel the woman rule which he has created. That this abounding gynococracy rules the United States is an undoubted fact, and it is typical of the situation that foreign nations who do not approve of this unhealthy state of affairs are apt to be regarded by Americans as uncivilized and as enemies. We, in Europe, will never forget the comical indignation aroused in America when the outspoken Gaekwar of Baroda declined to admit that American women are the wisest and most beautiful women in the world."
