THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

JEWELL CEMETERY FOUNDED IN 1825

Contains Graves of Former Governor Hardin and the Founder of Jewell.

IS MARKED BY TALL PINES

Thos. A. H. Smith, of Whom "Order No. 11" Was Written, Rests There.

In a high field by the roadside about two miles south of Columbia and marked from the distance by tall pine trees is Jewell cemetery, one of the first graveyards in this part of the state. It was set apart as a burial ground in 1825 by George Jewell, father of William Jewell, the founder of William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo.

Some prominent Missourians related to the Jewell family have been buried there. Among them were Charles H. Hardin, formerly governor of Missouri; George Jewell and his son William; John F. Stone, a lawyer prominent in the constitutional convention of 1845, and Thomas A. H. Smith, the hero of the novel, "Order No. 11."

The cemetery is a square plot, little more than 100 feet on a side, enclosed by a stone wall about four feet high. A plate on the iron gate in the front wall bears the following inscription: "No one not the husband, wife or child of a descendant of George Jewell can be buried here. See record book L, page 102."

The last line refers to the records of the Boone County Court concerning the establishing of the cemetery.

Within the enclosure are about thirty monuments of various sizes and patterns. In the back part of the grounds, small stones without inscriptions of any sort mark the burial places of about twenty negro slaves and servants of the family.

At his death in 1892, former Governor Hardin left $1000 in charge of the Boone County Court for keeping the cemetery in repair. By an order of the county court, three years ago last October, the fund was turned over to the probate court and H. H. Banks of Columbia was appointed trustee for it.

Since this sum was set aside, the grounds have been kept free from weeds and brush of all kinds. A cement walk has been put in and on the left side of it near the entrance is a circular flower bed.

Dr. William Jewell, who was buried there, superintended the construction of the old Boone County Courthouse which was recently torn down. He also planned Broadway in Columbia, and was superintending the construction of Jewell Hall, which was being built at Liberty, Mo., at the time of his death, in 1852.

ELECTRIC CLOCKS ARE STILL.

Western Union Timepieces Stopped an Hour Before the New Year.

Just an hour before the old year died last Friday night, eight Western Union clocks in Columbia stopped at the same hour, minute and second. It appeared that the clocks were affected by some unseen power that stopped them at 11 o'clock precisely. The Western Union Telegraph company has a master clock in the downtown office that regulates eight other clocks in Columbia. The master clock was not affected like the others, but has been keeping just as good time as ever before. The other clocks stopped without previous warning and have refused to run since.

An expert electric clock man from St. Louis was expected to repair the clocks today. C. A. Raum, the Western Union manager here, says he does not understand why the clocks stopped unless an electric light wire fell so close to the clock wires as to affect their running.

Dies From Heart Disease.

Mrs. Sadie V. Walker, widow of George W. Walker, 107 South Sixth Street, died suddenly at 11:30 o'clock last night. She had been ill with heart disease and recently had been troubled with asthma. She was 51 years old New Year's Day. The funeral arrangements have not been made. Burial will be in Winchester, Ill., her former home. No children survive.

WILL TEACH JOURNALISM.

Spokane to Add Course; Michigan Plans Improvements.

Spokane College is another institution to establish a course in practical journalism. The work will begin next September. Instruction will be given in writing for the press, as well as practical training in the various branches of newspaper work, such as the make-up of a paper, the composing room side of the business, methods of circulation and advertising, soliciting, collecting and general management.

At a recent meeting of the faculty of the literary department of the University of Michigan a committee was named to consider the question of establishing a course in preparation for newspaper work. In recent years courses in newspaper theory and practice, in book reviews, and in technical journalism have been regularly given and many successful newspaper men have been thus started on their careers.

The new course, when it is established, probably will be in the main a grouping of courses already offered, including the courses in composition in the rhetoric department and a variety of subjects essential to the equipment of a newspaper worker, such as history, economics, sociology, English literature, philosophy and law.

KINDER BUSINESS METHODS.

The Rev. M. A. Hart Believes He Sees Such Tendencies.

The Rev. M. A. Hart, pastor of the Christian church of Columbia, spoke in his sermon last Sunday night of a new American spirit, which he believes is forcing itself upon the American people.

"It has been the tendency of the American people to worship power and strength as much as money," he said. "We are constantly condemning the Standard Oil for its underhanded methods, yet we are at the same time secretly admiring the strength of the men behind this combine. If a physically strong man strikes down an invalid he is called a brute. The American people are beginning to consider unequal competition in business in the same way. The bread and butter problem of this country will never be solved until every man becomes a brother to every other man, and extends to his fallen competitor a helping hand, instead of forcing him still farther down."

ASKS $2,000 FOR AN INJURY.

Jury Deliberates on a Damage Suit—Court Resets Cases.

The session of the circuit court today was devoted to the re-setting of cases for trial.

The jury in the case of Isaac Chitwood against the Hamilton-Brown Shoe company spent the day in deliberation. Mr. Chitwood demanded $2,000 damage for an injury of a hand, received while he was operating a sole and heel cutting machine in the company's plant.

The New Member.

The Look on the Bright Side Society has a new member, a woman who was made a widow within the present year. "I miss him," she said, with sobs, "but I find some consolation in the thought that there is no one around grumbling about Christmas being all tomfoolery. Another ray of sunshine in my deep grief is that I am escaping the burden of worrying over what to get him for Christmas."—Athens Globe.

McGuirk Soon to Leave Hospital.

Charles McGuirk, a freshman in the School of Journalism, who spent the Christmas vacation in the Parker Memorial Hospital because of an operation for appendicitis, will be out in a few days. He will start for his home in Orange, N. J., as soon as he is able to travel, and will remain until he recovers.

Musical Program at Assembly.

A musical program, under the direction of W. H. Pommer, professor of music in the University of Missouri, was given at the assembly hour in the auditorium this morning. Miss Pearl Klass played two selections from Faust. Carl Hoffman and Miss Ocie Winscott each sang a solo. Miss Clarabell Woodward gave a selection on the violin. A small audience attended.
