His Wayward Feet. While some Sunday school children were rehearsing Christmas and New Year's exercises in one of the local churches a couple of weeks ago, the teacher noticed that one little boy could not keep in step. The child in front of the boy was able to march to perfect time, but he displayed to a marked degree the pigeon-toed condition of his feet.

To the boy who could not keep in step the teacher said, "Now, William, you must try to march just like little Henry does."

"I can't very well," replied William, "'cause hofe of my feet is fastened on straight."—Youngstown Telegram.

CIVIL WAR HERO ASKS FOR CLOTHING

"Jess" Baker Often Helped by Charity Organization Society Here.

WAS CONFEDERATE SOLDIER

Caught General Gordon as He Fell from Horse at Gettysburg.

Gray and bent, an old man climbed the stairs at the city hall yesterday and went to the headquarters of the Charity Organization Society. He didn't have to ask where it was; he had been there before. This time it was a pair of trousers and some coal to heat the little house where he lives with his son-in-law, Dave Roberts, that he wanted. His oldest son, Ben Baker, and wife are visiting there now and they have a little baby less than a month old, so the house has to be kept warm.

Many persons in Columbia know "Jess" Baker and still more persons have seen him. It was Jess Baker who caught General John B. Gordon when he fell from his horse wounded in the battle of Gettysburg.

Uncle Jess used to live in Rochester and a few years ago General Gordon was billed to speak in Columbia. Uncle Jess knew that he had to hear that speech, but he didn't have money so he took his old cane and walked all the way to Columbia to hear the general. After the speech he went to the platform and to the speaker. "Do you know me?" he asked; the general looked at him a moment and said, "Why, bless me, it's Jess Baker."

It is understood that in all his regiment there was none who had a greater reputation as a fighter than Jess Baker. He enlisted at the beginning of the war and served the full five years, and many are the tales he can—and will—tell.

He is also a great fiddler and will acknowledge no superior in Boone county. A fiddler's contest without Uncle Jess is incomplete.

The Charity Organization Society has tried to get him to go to the Confederate soldier's home, but he refuses. He was there once about a year, but fell and broke his leg and came home and refuses to go back.

A HOME OR A PLACE

This is the time of year you should be thinking about a home—whether you are going to live in that crowded dusty place or whether you will select a home in a strictly home district where all the perplexing problems, such as street paving, sidewalks, water, light, gas and sewer have been settled, and where those who only wish nice and beautiful home surroundings live. Take a look through Westwood and Westmount and see what has been accomplished in a cow pasture within the last five years. Then be honest and let your judgment act and you will be pretty sure to go to Westwood or Westmount to build a HOME.

True there are other places and some of them very good but THERE IS ONLY ONE WESTWOOD. Here the homes are restricted to a certain price house, and but only one house to one of those large, long and beautiful lots, so many feet from the street, etc. You know this policy will eventually win and why not. Come and talk it over with me and get ready for spring, others have been made happy, why not you.

Respectfully, J. A. STEWART.
