"NEW FARLEY TOMB IS IDEALLY MADE"

Oscar McNear Compares Tomb With Similar Structures of Large Cities

RESEMBLES SMALL CHURCH

The Sixteen Catacombs Have Walls Constructed of Carthage Stone

The new Farley mausoleum in the Columbia cemetery has been completed.

"You can't find a better mausoleum in St. Louis or Chicago," was the statement of the Columbia cemetery superintendent, Oscar McNear, who said that he had visited the above cemeteries. The Farley mausoleum has been attracting attention on the part of the people of Columbia lately. Many have gone out to see it on Sundays. It is modern and is built throughout of marble, granite and bronze.

The mausoleum is the property of the Farley families, the families of the father and his two sons.

The outside appearance is not unlike that of a miniature church building. In outside dimensions it is 19 feet long, 13 feet wide and about 15 feet high. The exterior is built of Mt. Airy granite from the quarries of North Carolina. The stones are large, some of them weighing many tons. The foundation is of concrete. The roof is of the same material as the walls. Above the arch over the door is a cross on which is carved in 1911. Below this is carved the name Farley. The arch over the door which rests upon four columns, two at each side of the entrance, is from the South. The double doors leading to the vestibule are of glass and bronze.

The vestibule is about eight by six feet. Its walls are of solid white marble. This vestibule is well ventilated. It has two new means of ventilation, first there are two air vents in the ceiling and second there are air vents in the doors. These let out all odors which might accumulate in the vestibule.

The mausoleum has sixteen catacombs or receptacles for bodies, eight in the north end and four each in the east and west sides all of which are well ventilated. The catacombs are walled with Carthage stone. Two of them are occupied and bear on their slabs the names of the occupants and the dates of their death and birth. One is occupied by the body of Lawrence Barrett Farley, who died October 5, 1910, and the other by that of Frances Florence Farley who died February 22, 1911. Both are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Farley.

The catacombs are concealed by marble slabs fastened by bronze handles, which can be removed easily.

The stone for the mausoleum was cut in the quarry of Mt. Airy before it was shipped to Columbia. Five car loads of it were shipped.

The mausoleum was started the first of October. All that it lacks of completion is the terracing of the ground and the laying of a granite walk from the roadway.

Mr. McNear stated that he intended to have photographs of the Farley mausoleum made which he would use to advertise the meeting of the Missouri Cemetery Association which is to be held in Columbia early next spring.

ALMOST 3,000 ATE TURKEY THURSDAY

Statistics Were Gathered By Local Poultry Dealer, Who Knows Students' Appetites

DUCKS WERE CHEAP TOO

Ten Tons of Dressed Turkeys, Ducks and Chickens Were Shipped to Chicago

Two hundred and fifty turkeys were eaten in Columbia on Thanksgiving day. A Columbia poultry dealer who has been in the business here for the last ten years says that this is nearly the exact number.

One turkey will feed twelve persons, turkey of ordinary size and the eater likewise. It follows, then, that two hundred and fifty would feed 3000 people. Were we to add to the gobblers all the ganders, drakes and roosters that were eaten on that day it would show that everybody was amply fed, and happy.

More turkey was eaten here this Thanksgiving day than ever before, because most of the students stayed in town whereas on previous days of this kind they were either at home or in Kansas City at the football game. The reason for this is because only one day, Thursday, was given for Thanksgiving holiday this year.

Then, too, turkeys were cheaper this year than last. Last year they sold from 18 to 20 cents on foot; this year they sold for 12 and 13 cents. Ganders, drakes and roosters were also cheaper this Thanksgiving than last. Chickens sold for 6 cents dressed. Some farmers were selling ducks for 25 cents apiece on the day before the big day. They were large and fat too, the ducks were.

Twenty thousand pounds of dressed turkeys and chickens were shipped from Columbia to Chicago the last Friday before Thanksgiving. There were about 1800 fowls in this shipment. Boone county as everyone knows, is a great place to raise turkeys. In years past they were brought to Columbia not in wagons, but in droves like hogs or cattle.

In the last three weeks the price of creamery butter has advanced 10 cents on the pound. Five cents of this rise has come in the last week. The standard grades of this butter now sell for 45 cents a pound. Last week they sold for 40 cents.

The high price of dry feed of all kinds caused the price to advance. In summer when pasture is good this same creamery butter sells for 35 cents and even less.

Country butter is plentiful and sells for 30 cents a pound. Enough is produced around here to supply the demand. The hens are still on a strike—cold storage eggs are about the only kind to be had. They sell 35 cents a dozen.

SO THEY LEFT THEIR CARDS

Class of Men Wanted to Be Sure They Were Not Marked Absent.

An old custom in the University has been for students to cut if, five minutes after the hour, the instructor has not appeared. But Friday for ten minutes after the 2 o'clock bell rang, a class wandered through the corridors of Academic Hall in search of a professor. The reason for the unusual action of the students, all of whom were men, was the University rule that makes a cut after a holiday a serious matter, with the penalty of a loss of from one to six hours of credit. Each member of the class left his card on the professor's desk.

M. U. Man to Attend Pinchot Dinner.

J. A. Ferguson, head of the forestry department, will be a guest of honor at a dinner to be given Gifford Pinchot in St. Louis Wednesday night. The dinner will be given by the business men of the city. Mr. Pinchot will make a talk.

BIG PRIZES FOR BEST CORN

Premiums Aggregating $3,500 Will Be Distributed at State Show.

Four hundred premiums aggregating $3,500 will be awarded to the farmers of Missouri on corn, wheat and oats at the Annual State Corn Show, to be held in Columbia Farmers' Week, January 8 to 12. The show will be held under the direction of the Missouri Corn Growers' Association. A premium list and posters telling of the show have been sent out over the state by C. B. Hutchison, secretary of the association.

"Regardless of the fact that the season has been unfavorable," said Mr. Hutchison, yesterday, "we are expecting a large number of entries in the show. At the present time crop conditions are only little below that for last year and prospects are bright for a good show. An unusually good list of premiums is offered. This should bring out a good display."

The state has been divided into five sections for distributing the premiums. A complete set of premiums has been offered on white and yellow corn in each section in men's, young men's and boys' classes. The first premium in the men's classes for each section is some useful farm implement, valued at about $50. In the young men's and boys' classes cash premiums of about $1,000 are offered. Three $50 scholarships to the short winter course in the College of Agriculture are also included in this list.

A trophy cup is offered by the Missouri State Board of Agriculture for the grand champion ears of corn displayed at the show.

Every farmer attending the show will be made a member of the association and will be given a membership button.

VALUE OF RESEARCH WORK

Address by Dr. W. C. Curtis at Meeting of Social Science Club.

"Abstract scientific investigation usually leads to something of importance to humanity. We have come up out of barbarism because some men have persevered in searching into the mysteries of nature." Dr. W. C. Curtis of the University of Missouri said Friday night in his lecture on "Abstract Research and Social Progress" at the meeting of the Social Science Club.

Doctor Curtis mentioned three investigations as examples of how abstract research had helped mankind. The study of micro-organisms leads to the discovery of the germ theory of disease. The study of the life cycle of the fresh water mussel led to discoveries which have aided in the preservation of the mussel beds from which the button factories get shells. The modern study of heredity has established facts which will no doubt cause the enactment of stricter marriage laws in the future.

Dr. Curtis thinks that scientific investigation is hampered because there is no career in that field in which it is possible to make a living. An investigator usually takes up teaching to obtain a livelihood. This results in his teaching being poor or his investigation limited.

The meeting was held in Room 24, Academic Hall.

ASK BOTH RAILROADS FOR BETTER SERVICE

Commercial Club Prepares Petitions to Superintendents in St. Louis.

NOT SATISFACTORY NOW

Wabash Should Have Two Trains From Centralia in the Morning.

Within the next week the superintendents in St. Louis of both Columbia railroads will receive petitions from the Columbia Commercial Club asking for better railroad service. The Commercial Club is asking the Wabash to discontinue the combination freight and passenger train which leaves Centralia early in the morning and run two trains, one a passenger and the other a freight. The petition to the Missouri, Kansas and Texas asks that its early morning train into Columbia be started from New Franklin instead of from McBaine, also that the train that leaves Columbia now at 5 o'clock in the afternoon run on to New Franklin, reaching there about 6:30 o'clock.

In its petition to the Katy the club says, "We beg leave to call your attention to the fact that we have not good railway service over your road into Columbia from the West. We ask that our early morning train into Columbia be started from New Franklin, say at 6 o'clock in the morning, reaching Columbia as now at 7 o'clock. We also request that the train that leaves Columbia now at 5 o'clock run on to New Franklin, reaching there say at 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon."

"In view of the fact that there are many persons in Rocheport and Huntsdale and in the country in Boone County who are eager to spend the day in Columbia frequently, and that the same is true of the towns and country in southern part of Howard County, we believe that such train service would not only be a great help to Columbia, but that it would pay your road, and pay it well."

To the Wabash the club says:

"We call your attention to the fact that your train from Centralia to Columbia in the morning is not giving us or the traveling public satisfaction. As you know, it is a combination freight and passenger train, and it is often late; and sometimes it arrives in Columbia as much as two hours and fifteen minutes late. The large amount of business done over said road entitles us to a passenger train that will leave Centralia, say at 7:15 o'clock and arrive at Columbia at 8 o'clock. There should then be a freight train to leave Centralia at about the same hour in the morning. Two trains, as here suggested, will not only be a great help to Columbia and the traveling public, but we believe will pay your road, and pay it well."

SUIT OVER OLD MANSION BARN

S. R. Case Wants Payment on Building Which Burned Recently.

S. R. Case brought suit against the Farmers' Town Mutual Insurance Company yesterday for $1,000, which he claims is due him on a policy of insurance. Mr. Case claims that an M. K. & T. engine set fire to his barn about two months ago, and he has been unable to get his insurance for his loss. The barn destroyed was an old mansion, formerly the home of J. H. Mellon. It was situated just north of the Katy tracks near Claysville, Mo., and was one of the historic residences of Boone County, especially during the Civil War and steamboat times. It was built of stone and stood on a hill overlooking the Missouri River.

The house figured prominently in the Civil War, and was used by both Federal and Confederate soldiers as headquarters. After the war it was sold to Mr. Case, who used it for a barn.

SOPHOMORES WIN THE GAME

Freshmen Are Beaten, 6 to 2, in Annual Football Contest.

The sophomore football team defeated the freshmen for the class championship on Rollins Field yesterday afternoon. The score was 6 to 2. This entitles the sophomores to the class numerals awarded by the athletic department. After the game the sophomores declared their intention of petitioning the athletic department to give the freshmen numerals also.
