

CAMPUS NOTES

The Acacia fraternity will give a possum hunt tomorrow night. About twenty couples will go.

F. W. Faurot is spending this week at Revere and Kahoka, conducting horticultural demonstrations.

S. T. Simpson and L. F. Childers are at Downing this week, conducting a five-day short course in agriculture.

Harold D. Jackson, until Tuesday a student in the College of Agriculture, has returned to his home in Kansas City.

The Executive Board of the curators of the University will meet here the latter part of this month. The meeting will probably be October 30.

The class in social pathology under Dr. L. L. Bernard will investigate housing conditions in the poorer quarters of Columbia Friday morning.

E. H. Hughes of the department of animal husbandry returned from Vandalla last night, where he judged the live stock at the Vandalla Home Products Show.

Prof. R. L. Green and his class in farm records visited farms near Columbia yesterday. The purpose of the trip was to obtain practice in judging the yields of crops.

Miss Bab Bell, assistant professor of home economics, left today for Sedalia for two days of demonstration work in home economics among the club women of that city.

Physical examination of freshmen and other new students is practically finished. Examinations have been made during the last month.

Prof. E. A. Trowbridge, who was superintendent of the Missouri live stock exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, is expected to return from San Francisco today.

The government of New Zealand has sent twelve books and six pamphlets on New Zealand to the University Library. The set comprises works on the history and resources of the country.

Prof. H. L. Kempster of the poultry department left for Vandalla Tuesday afternoon to give a poultry demonstration at the People's Prize Products Show. Mrs. Kempster accompanied him.

Phi Delta Kappa, an honorary fraternity in the School of Education, will entertain the men students and faculty of that division in the University Elementary School at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Dean F. B. Mumford of the College of Agriculture is sending out letters this week to graduates of that college telling them of the changes in the various departments and asking them to give their location and occupation. These letters will be sent out four times each year and a record of the alumni kept.

Last Sunday's Kansas City Star featured C. L. Brewer, athletic director of the University, on the sporting page. Cartoons illustrated some of the points brought out in the article. Director Brewer is characterized as a "whale" in Missouri Valley athletics and a brief history of his life was given, with special emphasis upon his athletic achievements.

Several students rooming at 511 Turner avenue had a football game of their own the other day. One team was composed of the center and quarterback, while the other team had both a left and right end. The remainder of the teams was supplied by the imagination of the onlookers. A girls' rooming house across the street furnished the spectators.

J. H. Montgomery, who received his A. B. degree here in 1912, has recently been appointed to a position in the modern language department in the Atlanta, Ga. High School. He will teach Spanish and German. He was an assistant in modern languages while in the University, and since graduation has been teaching in the high school at Columbus, Ga.

George Robertson was re-elected president of the Saline County Club last night at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Building. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Homer Rich; secretary-treasurer, Miss Dera Dulaney; Savitar and Ad Club representative, William G. Simrall, and sergeant-at-arms, Otto Marksbury. The club has a membership of thirty-five.

Extensive preparations are being made for the circus to be given at the annual Halloween party of the Woman's Council at 7:15 o'clock Saturday night at Rothwell Gymnasium. One stunt will be given by each of the ten districts of the University women, but the plans for these stunts are kept a secret. The refreshments will consist of apples, cider, popcorn and gingerbread. There will be a dance after the circus. The party is free to all Women of the University.

Five graduates of the School of Engineering are now employed in the Illinois Steel Company coke by-products and benzol plants and in the American Bridge Company's works of Gary, Ind., the latest additions being J. M. Rose, '14; Philip Savage, '15; both employed in the benzol plant, and George Seth, '14, who is with the bridge company. L. F. Burrass, superintendent of the coke by-products plant, and F. B. Thatcher general foreman, were graduated from the School of Engineering in 1911.

R. M. Graham has gone to Hallsville on business for the veterinary department.

The University Grange will meet at 7:15 o'clock tonight in the women's parlors.

E. H. Hughes of the animal husbandry department judged live stock at Vandalla yesterday.

The Webster County Club will meet in Room C of the Y. M. C. A. Building at 7:15 o'clock tonight.

Prof. H. O. Allison was unable to meet his classes in animal nutrition yesterday, on account of illness.

J. M. Miller, a student in the Graduate School, has gone to Meta to spend the week-end. He will return Sunday.

The class in economic geology, under the direction of Prof. W. A. Tarr, made a trip to a coal mine north of Columbia yesterday afternoon.

Paul G. Webb, a senior in the College of Arts and Science and the School of Education, left for his home in Kansas City yesterday. He will return Sunday night.

Miss Dera Dulaney was elected captain of the third district of the University Women's organization Tuesday. Plans were made for the stunt to be given at the annual Halloween party Saturday night.

The Scabbard and Blade, an honorary military fraternity in the University, entertained the commissioned officers of the cadet corps with a smoker in the military office last night. Sandwiches and punch were served. A negro trio sang and danced.

Kleio, the women's history club in the University, held its opening meeting of the year at Read Hall Tuesday night. Prof. R. J. Kerner was the host. American problems were discussed. Miss Louise Friedrich spoke on the internal geographical factors in American development, and Miss Nell Crockett discussed the external geographical factors. Miss Marjorie Jones gave a short report on magazine literature. Professor Kerner outlined the plans of the club for the coming year. Mrs. Nelson Trimble is president of the club.

STEPHENS REPORTS BIG GAIN

Number of Boarding Students Has Increased 180 Per Cent Since 1912-13.

The report of the curators of Stephens College, as made to the Missouri Baptist General Association, shows that the number of boarding students has increased 180 per cent since 1912-13. At this time James M. Wood became president. The growth is reported to be largely due to the accrediting of the college by the University in 1913. The increase in enrollment the next year was 100 per cent.

Other facts given by the report are: The first two years of high school work have been eliminated.

Ninety-two per cent of last year's graduates are teaching or attending higher institutions.

All students are required to take one hour of Bible study a week, unless the parents request otherwise.

The college Y. W. C. A. received the prize this summer for the largest amount of money spent in religious activities last year. This was in competition with the normal schools, universities and junior colleges of five states.

Ninety per cent of the students are enrolled in four voluntary mission study classes.

Each student takes physical exercise based upon a physical examination given upon entrance.

A practical course in home nursing is offered.

Sixty-five study cooking, sewing, millinery, sanitation and kindred subjects. No fees are charged.

The government is by the student body.

A new dormitory has become a necessity.

U. H. S. Debaters Meet.

The University High School Debating Club has started work for the year. The following officers have been elected: President, H. K. Wilkinson; vice-president, W. M. Deaton; secretary and treasurer, R. C. Kinkade. The program consisted of talks by Wilkinson and Walls and the coach, J. L. Carter. The society hopes to develop teams to meet neighboring high schools.

Mitchell With Aviation Company.

Glenn Mitchell, a graduate of the School of Engineering, who has been with the Cambria Steel Company at Johnstown, Pa., has joined the staff of the Glenn Curtis Aviation Company of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Mitchell's new work consists of testing every piece used in the manufacture of aeroplanes, many of which have been shipped to the Allies. Mr. Mitchell received the degree of B. S. in M. E. in 1912.

New Hood to Quiet the Ash Blower.

The ash-blower at the University power house has been fitted with a new hood, or rather muffler. Unmuzzled, the ash-blower makes too much noise, according to C. S. Lynch, superintendent of buildings. He hopes that the new hood will keep it more quiet.

DESCRIBES WAY M. TETU DIED

French Newspaper Prints Obituary of Student's Aviator Friend.

A recent issue of Le Courier du Midi, one of the leading French newspapers, published in Avignon, close to the firing line, describes how Lieutenant M. Tetu, a friend of W. T. Diaz, a student in the University, met his death last month in a fight in the air.

"For the last few days," reads the account, "we have had to lament deeply the loss of our young and dear friend, Lieutenant Maurice Tetu, son of our friend Jules Tetu, who is highly esteemed in his home town."

"Lieutenant Tetu, who belonged to the Eleventh Hussar Reserves, was in Argentina for some time before the declaration of war. He went back to France in the summer of 1914 to visit his parents. But when he reached the waters of his country, the European crisis was becoming more and more dark. Hardly had he reached the first port when the war was declared on June 1. He was therefore received, not by his parents, but by his country, who demanded his services at the front, whither he immediately proceeded. He did not like to be in the trenches. He wanted to be where he could better serve France; so he insisted on being transferred to the aviation division and soon became an expert aviator and pilot.

"On the Fourth of July he was to make one of the most dangerous reconnaissances over the German lines, accompanied by Count George de La Rochefoucauld. It was in this difficult expedition, when the atmosphere was most unfavorable, that the two courageous officers had to fight the German aviators, from whose bullets they succumbed.

"Their aeroplane was brought down in the German lines, where they met their death. Both were buried in the private graveyard of Countess La Rochefoucauld, in the cemetery of Marchiennes, near Douai.

"The news was sent to the family of Lieutenant Tetu by Countess La Rochefoucauld who received the communication from the Spanish Embassies at Paris and Brussels.

"The Journal Official considers the event, counting it in the 'belle homage' for the bravery of the aviators mentioned. Lieutenant Tetu was the pilot. De La Rochefoucauld was a lieutenant observer. It was in that dangerous reconnaissance, far in the interior of the German lines, when the weather was most disagreeable, and in a zone protected by the artillery of the enemy, that they accomplished their noble mission till their aeroplane was shattered by the enemy's bullets.

"Before the beginning of the war, Lieutenant Tetu's name was placed twice in the list of merit for bravery on the battlefield.

"To Jules Tetu, his father, to his family, and particularly to his brothers, who are also serving France, one in Morocco and the other in Madagascar, we send our deepest sympathy."

Mr. Diaz met Lieutenant Tetu on a French steamer in the summer of 1914, while on his way to Europe.

GIRLS SKETCH COLUMBIA TREES

Braving Hickeys, They Wield Pencils and Brush Right Well.

"We're going to be artists some day, aren't we, girls?"—"That pink giraffe is very subtle—or is it supposed to be a sunset?"—"Is that girl painting on the canvas, or her apron? The results seem to be equally good."—"That must be one of those Futurist pictures. Looks like a cat fight in Afghanistan."—"Sh-sh. She's getting an inspiration."

These remarks, delivered in well-calculated stage whispers, were intended for the ears of six art students who were sketching the autumn foliage north of Switzer Hall yesterday afternoon.

Braving the remarks of the uninitiated, these students take advantage of the unusually bright autumn coloring in and around Columbia. Armed with palette, brush, and easel, and arrayed in gingham aprons, the young women seem impervious to the jibes directed at them by passing students, and are making rapid progress in their work. They have already completed some unusually interesting sketches.

IT SELLS THE GOODS

Merchants Say Missouriian's "Best Bargain" Column Is Reducing Cost of Living in Columbia.

- 2 pianos sold by 20-cent ad.
- 18 grocery orders from 27-cent ad.
- 4 cases (36 bottles) tomato catsup sold by 20-cent ad.
- Entire stock of eggs sold by 10-cent ad.
- Alarm clock stock depleted by 15-cent

- bargain ad.
- Drug store doubled sale of pipes with 10-cent ad.
- Audra county farmer got over half dozen opportunities to trade farm for Columbia property.

The foregoing is not a market quotation, nor is it the result of the farmers' auction day. The articles of merchandise listed here are a few random items taken from statements of merchants of Columbia regarding unusual results they have obtained from the Missouriian's "Tomorrow's Best Bargain" department.

Potatoes, automobiles, preserving pears, breakfast food, soap, pipes, sugar, alarm clocks, tomato catsup, safety razors, eggs, hardware are some of the articles that have changed hands through this bargain column. Many merchants are so enthusiastic over their results from using this space that they believe it has solved the small order business problem in this community.

"Why should anybody send their good money to Chicago when they can get the same thing here at the same price and have the merchandise delivered the same afternoon?" said one merchant who has used the column consistently since it was started on September 15.

Another merchant, a grocer, told of a new customer the column had brought him.

"I ran a 10-cent ad two days in the bargain column, and then the next day a woman came into the store with her Sears-Roebuck catalogue under her arm. 'Well, I see you beat them on sugar,' she said. 'Now let's see what you can do on some other groceries.' We made out a list from the catalogue and I duplicated the prices. The delivery wagon took $25 worth of groceries out to her house that same afternoon. Chicago won't get any more of her money."

The "Best Bargain" column was started in the Missouriian a month ago. It's the first time a newspaper ever ran a department of this kind where the merchandise listed is thoroughly examined before the merchant is permitted to advertise. The Missouriian will refund to readers any money they lose through patronizing this department of the advertising columns.

For those who desire to be "shown" regarding results from advertising in this bargain column the following statements have been made by merchants:

"Yes, it pays. I sold two pianos with a 20-cent ad. Of course the pianos were first class instruments and were real bargains, but I'm willing to give the Missouriian the credit."—Allen Music Company.

"I got eighteen definite grocery orders before noon from a 27-cent ad. My prices always get business when I tell the people about them."—Henry Wise.

"We sold twice as many pipes after we advertised in the bargain column as we sold before—and this is no pipe story either."—Prather Drug Company.

"We were well pleased with our results from the ad on potatoes we inserted in the Missouriian last week."—Rumman and Young.

"That 10-cent ad sure cleaned out our stock of eggs."—Frank Martin.

"Our alarm clock sale was well patronized after we inserted that 15-cent ad."—New York Store.

"We sold four cases of tomato catsup with our 20-cent ad, so we are happy and our customers are too, for it was a real bargain."—A. R. Lyon.

And there are others galore.

As to how this "Best Bargain" department is solving the high cost of living in Columbia, the following are a few of the bargains listed daily in this department in the Missouriian:

Canned goods by the case, side meat, eggs, poultry, millinery, jardiniere, fern dishes, vases, bed-room slippers, floor mops, oysters, automobiles, butter, stationery, potatoes, candy, horseradish, peacock rings, soap, union suits, grapes, mackerel, cabbage, sugar, lettuce, gooseberries, cherries, ham, butter and table peaches.
