MISS FANNIE LUSK BURIED
Boone County Woman, 74 Years Old, Was Found Dead in Bed.

Funeral services for Miss Fannie Lusk, 74 years old, who died Friday morning at her home four and one-half miles northeast of Columbia, were held at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the Little Bonne Femme Baptist Church, ten miles south of Columbia.

The Rev. T. W. Young, pastor of the Columbia Baptist Church, of which Miss Lusk had for many years been a member, preached the sermon. Burial was in the Little Bonne Femme Cemetery.

Miss Lusk was found dead in bed at her farm home. She had rented her place to F. A. Farthing, reserving a room in the house for herself. She retired Thursday night without making complaint. When members of the Farthing family went to the room to call her in the morning she was dead. Heart trouble was the cause.

Miss Lusk was born in Boone County in 1841. She was a student at Stephens College in her girlhood. Fifteen years ago her brother, William Y. Lusk, a prominent farmer in the county, died. She was the last of her immediate family and was wealthy.

MISSED BUT ONE KANSAS GAME

Frank L. Farley, Here From Kansas City, an Undaunted Tiger Rooter.

Frank L. Farley of Kansas City has missed only one Missouri-Kansas game since the schools began playing football twenty-five years ago. He's going to be at Lawrence next year to watch the Missouri boys avenge this year's defeat.

"We'll get them next year," said Mr. Farley yesterday, "and if I'm alive and healthy I'll be in Lawrence to see the Tigers trim the Jayhawk. For all these years I've witnessed the annual scrimmage between the two teams, and let me tell you, the loss Thursday has not caused me to give up hope. I believe we shall beat them next year."

Mr. Farley is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Farley of 607 North Third street. He was for many years a resident of Columbia, and lived for a number of years in Sedalia. Two years ago he moved to Kansas City.

He will leave tomorrow in his automobile. "Muddy roads don't daunt me!" he exclaimed. "Like the Tigers, my car can plow right through the mud."

ILLINOIS MAN LOST 11 YEARS

Rinard Shawvan's Parents Think He Joined Mexican Revolutionists.

By United Press.
BELVIDERE, Ill., Nov. 27.—For more than five years relatives here have been seeking Rinard Shawvan, who mysteriously disappeared about eleven years ago. An estate of $30,000, in which the missing man should share, is held pending the expiration of the seven years since he was last heard from, after which Shawvan may legally be declared dead.

In the countrywide search for Shawvan, trace of the missing man was found at Aiken, Minn., and again at Needles, Cal. Shawvan's parents believe he joined the Mexican revolutionists and died in battle. He always wanted to be a soldier. As a boy he played war and accidentally got two fingers of his left hand shot off.

HAS A BOOK DEDICATED TO HIM

And Dean Collier, M. U. Freshman, Gets Letters and Letters.

Dean Collier, a freshman in the College of Arts and Science, from Trenton, Mo., has had fame thrust upon him.

Nearly everybody has heard of the book or has seen the play entitled "It Pays to Advertise." In that play, the leading role is acted by William Deming, an uncle of Mr. Collier. Mr. Deming, being a good friend of the author, had him dedicate the book to his nephew.

Soon after the book was published, the mail brought Mr. Collier letters of congratulation—and also letters of love.

Mr. Collier comes from a family of actors.

EDWIN HUNT BEST GUESSER

Was Pair of Shoes on His Estimate of Kansas Game Attendance.

Edwin Hunt, 200 West Broadway won the guessing contest, held at the Guitar Shoe Store, for the total number of people present at the Missouri-Kansas game. His guess was 10,060, and the number of ticket holders present was 10,065. He will receive any pair of shoes shown in the store windows that he may choose.

Two thousand people wrote their names and guesses in a book.

ELINOR GLYN'S

Three Weeks

THE STORY

AT

Walnut Street Theatre

Monday and Tuesday nights, Nov. 29-30

In Five Parts

Sensational Drama of Thrilling Love and Royal Intrigue in 280 Scenes.

Elinor Glyn's novel, "Three Weeks," translated in the language of all civilized countries, stands at the fore of all the modern vivid romances. It has been the most discussed novel of the past decade. Its beauty has been critically conceded and its drama admitted by the most conservative. Paul, the wooer of a runaway queen, has taken his place among the heroes of fiction that men refer to with interest and women with animation. Sonia, the royal mate of a dissolute monarch, young alluring, adventurous, is now a modern symbol of a love that scorns to count the cost. The story in its novel form has been read by more than eighty million people. It is a fair estimate to presume that more than eight times eighty million people will wish to see the film realization of the brilliant romance that ends in an unusual tragedy. Readers of the book are familiar with the details that go to comprise the fascinating narrative of the original. In the film play the author has added to her creation in a prologue that intensifies the thrill of some of her scenes and adds color and vivacity to others. Sonia runs away from her castle and her king after the manner described in the book. She encounters Paul in the restaurant in Lucerne, Switzerland, precisely as recounted in the novel. The two, a queen without a country and a king without a throne—fall madly in love. She struggles against her enthrallment, and seeks to flee from temptation. But an accident halts her flight and the inevitable meeting occurs. In the photoplay version all these incidents are idealized. The tiger rug tryst of the pair in the queen's apartment in Lucerne is reproduced as in the novel. The thrilling and tragic denouement of the romance of the pair is shown in all its original gripping power. The orgies of the dissolute king, the mad revels in the palace, the plots and counterplots of the cabal of royal counselors to de throne the queen are all graphically indicated.

Miss Madeline Traverse, who appears in the role of the temperamental queen, is regarded as oen of the most attractive of the country's younger stars. Mr. Mahlon Hamilton, who plays the role of Paul, is one of the most popular of leading players of the native stage.
