EIGHTH YEAR

COLUMBIA, MISSOURI, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1916

NUMBER 154

SANITATION FOR BABY ONE EXHIBIT FEATURE

Frills Must Go for the Sake of "His Highness" Health and Comfort.

BAN PUT ON CRADLE

Columbia Mothers Will Be Shown How to Modify and Keep Foods.

Tonight's Program.

At the Child Welfare Exhibit, 12 North Tenth street:

7:20—"A Regular Daily Program for the Baby," Mrs. L. L. Bernard.

8:00—"Care of the Teeth," Dr. E. H. Smith.

8:30—"Dietetics," Dr. W. E. Muns. Fathers are expected to visit the exhibit as well as the mothers. The meetings Tuesday evening and Thursday evening are specially for those who are not able to attend any other time. All the talks will be informal.

The atmosphere of the baby exhibit at 12 North Tenth street breathes good health and good cheer—good health for baby because sanitation is emphasized in its food, and comfort in its clothing; good health for mother because, dispensing with the unnecessary vanities in baby's clothes, she can now have time for rest and leisure.

Every garment of baby's apparel in this exhibit is for practical use and comfort. Satin bows, laces and frills are tabooed. "What does a dimpled, rosy-cheeked, healthy baby need with such vanities?" ask these practical women.

The exhibits are explained to the visiting mothers. First is the bathing equipment. Thursday afternoon; bathing and dressing the baby are to be demonstrated. Then will be shown the clothes for the very small baby, dresses made of cotton crepe to insure easy washing and little or no ironing; petticoats secured on the shoulder with tiny snaps—baby must be dressed quickly and his good disposition maintained; six or eight slips for frequent change—no embroidery decorates the sleeves and neck, for "Embroidering takes the time that the mother should be spending in rest and exercise," a tag attached to a dress reads.

Basket Cradles in Vogue.

Instead of in a clumsy cradle with projecting rockers, the modern baby sleeps in a portable basket. This basket can be carried from room to room or placed on the sleeping porch. "Rockers," the demonstrator explains, "are injurious to baby's health and disposition. If you would have a sweet-tempered baby, don't spoil its disposition by nervous rocking."

"And what is the other basket for?" asks the interested mother. "Oh, that's a traveling basket! Just large enough to carry the baby comfortably."

"This style of go-cart is preferable to the very short cart which crowds the child. Some go-carts have no springs, and the child is jolted unnecessarily."

"Here's the 'kiddy-coop.' This one is entirely homemade. A similar one could be made in any home. It can be moved to the porch, into the yard in the summer time, if you wish. The screens protect from flies and other insects. The sleeping bag keeps the child comfortably warm."

Play-Pens Save Time and Trouble.

"This play-pen keeps the child in a restricted space. He is less trouble to his mother because he is not in danger of falling or getting into things not meant for his tiny hands."

"The white enameled tray on that high chair can be washed and is more sanitary, as well as being cleaner looking than a wooden tray."

"You'll notice the difference in these bottles. The narrow-mouthed ones are the least sanitary. From 4 to 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a demonstration in modifying milk will be given. The fireless cooker is a convenient and economical icebox and keeps the milk sweet and pure."

In startling contrast to all of these exhibits which bespeak baby's good health is the flashing of an electric light which diffuses its red glare ominously, even before the visitor clearly understands its significance. It awakens the mother to the importance of keeping the child under sanitary conditions.

Electric Sign Startling Reminder.

A placard above the light reads: "Every time this light glows a baby dies in Europe or America. One every ten minutes. 5 every minute. 4,540 every day; more than 3,000,000 a year. Half of these deaths are preventable." Dresses for children from infancy to 12 years old are shown. All of these garments were made by the home economics department of the University. Posters representative of various phases of baby life adorn the walls of the exhibit room. These were made by Miss Helena Wilbur, Mrs. L. H. Hannah and Mrs. M. H. Leitcham.

"A mother living twelve miles from Columbia wanted to know yesterday if she should come to the exhibit." said Mrs. M. P. Ravenel this morning. "We want mothers from all over Boone County to know that they will be welcome every day except Tuesday afternoon, which is reserved for negro mothers."

STORES HAVE BABY WINDOWS

Attractive Displays This Week of Things to Tempt Mothers' Eyes.

Rock-a-bye, baby,
Sleep like a top;
And while you are dreaming
Mother will shop,
She'll buy shoes for your "tootsies"
Of pink and of blue;
With dresses and bonnets
Pluffy and new.

And what mother wouldn't spend a few hours this week buying things for baby when there are better baby contests and baby welfare movements to fill her mind with suggestions for children's comfort and happiness? The Columbia merchants have window displays this week that are the delight of every mother.

At the shoe stores men's and women's shoes are not the attraction. Instead the windows are full of shoes that are just waiting to be taken home to tuck baby's dimpled feet. There are pink shoes, blue shoes and brown ones; there are black ones with white trimmings and white ones with black trimmings—and all these are made of the finest kind of kid, some with frills of satin ribbon and others with rows of colorful stitching.

The dry-goods stores offer a miscellaneous assortment of baby things to charm the doing mother. There are crocheted "booties" designed in every delicate color; dainty vests, tiny silk stockings to match the colored shoes, toilet sets, fancy pins and embroidered towels. The child's play instincts are not forgotten, for there we see beside the box of stockings a set of brightly colored blocks, and on top of the vests lie several kinds of rattles and noise-makers.

At the drug stores the windows display a surprising assortment of toilet articles, talcum powders and medicinal necessities.

The hardware stores are offering scales for weighing and apparatus for heating water as their main contribution to baby's comfort. They have these things in all makes and designs.

KANSAS ROUTED, 41-10

Basketball Tigers Outclass K. U. Team—Williams Gets 12 Goals.

The Missouri team displayed the best passing and teamwork of the season. A small crowd was in Robinson Gymnasium to see the Hamilton team in its next to the last appearance for the season. Quingley and Lowman officiated.

C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, and Mrs. Brewer and a car of Tiger rooters from Kansas City saw the game.

The same teams will meet again tonight. This will be the last scheduled game of the season for the Missouri-ans.

T. C. REED ANOTHER TO LEAVE FACULTY

Dean Mumford Says Other Schools Are Eager to Draft Missouri Men.

MANY GET OFFERS

Young Teachers Are Taken Away by Greater Financial Rewards.

Another resignation—that of T. C. Reed, instructor in dairying—was announced in the College of Agriculture today. Mr. Reed has accepted a professorship in dairying in the agricultural college of South Carolina.

Dean F. B. Mumford of the college of Agriculture, when interviewed today as to the reason for the several recent resignations from his faculty, said:

"The College of Agriculture regrets losing its young men but we cannot expect to hold on to all the good men we turn out.

"They go for two reasons: first, because other institutions are financially able to pay them a great deal more money than Missouri.

Missouri Recognized as Leader.

"The second reason, while it robs us of many of our good men, is in itself a subject for congratulation. Other institutions recognize the fact that men who serve at Missouri are prepared for the best positions.

"The older men, the leaders of our college, stay on, even though at financial loss to themselves. No agricultural college in the country can equal our record for holding on to our recognizedly big men. Prof. J. C. Whitson has been here for twenty-two years. Prof. J. W. Connaway even longer. Prof. C. H. Eckles for fifteen years. Prof. M. F. Miller for twelve years. There isn't a chairman in any department in the College of Agriculture who has not received offers of a large increase in salary to go elsewhere, but they have stayed on. The men who leave all do so regretfully, but are impelled by the larger offers of other colleges.

"The holding up of the $30,000 portion of the Smith-Lever appropriation has nothing to do with these resignations."

A. J. Meyer's View of It.

A. J. Meyer, secretary of agricultural extension, said that these resignations were but the logical outcome of the game of success, that the large number just now was merely a coincidence, that young men at the foot of the ladder must rise by jumping around. He said that what was true of the old men was also true of the young men—they were constantly refusing offers for increases in salary but that when all conditions were propitious they left.

Mr. Meyer said that the holding up of part of the appropriation had not been the cause of the resignations.
