

150 WOMEN ROOKIES IN CAMP

They Learn to Care for Sick, Sewing, First Aid, Driving and Telegraphy.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., August 16.—Clad in khaki shirts, olive drab flannel waists, regulation army hats and tan shoes, 150 women rookies here today are making themselves ready for any national emergency.

The women are attending National Service School No. 3 of the Woman's section of the Navy League. They started the day by undergoing a course in military calisthenics. They will do it before breakfast every day for two weeks.

The women rookies were ready for the muscle making exercises at 6:40. Breakfast is served at 7:30, police call at 8 o'clock, inspection at 8:30. Drills, classes lectures and entertainment take up the remainder of the day. Taps is sounded at 9:30 p. m. Sundays the women get up half an hour later than on week days. Church at 3 p. m. is extra on Sundays.

The courses include home care of the sick, knitting and plain sewing, signal work, first aid, diets for the sick, surgical dressings, plain and wireless telegraphy, automobile and ambulance driving.

Mrs. Wilson and her sister, Miss Elizabeth E. Poe, were the first to think of a National Service School for women. The first was held at Chevy Chase, near Washington, in May and was such a success that San Francisco demanded one in June. A fourth school will be held in Rhode Island some time in September.

Ora Mann's Case Up Tomorrow.

The case of Ora Mann, arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of speeding, will be tried tomorrow afternoon before Police Judge Edwards.

GERMANS REFUSE TO DISCUSS MILITARISM

People Don't Know What It Means—Strict Economy Is Practiced.

PEACE NOW WANTED

Three Leaders Rose Up at Start of War—Chancellor Wins Out.

This is the first of the series of stories on the popular spirit in the countries now at war. The second story, telling of the spirit in England, will be published tomorrow. It is written by Ed L. Keen, United Press Staff Correspondent at London.

POPULAR SPIRIT IN GERMANY

By CARL W. ACKERMAN (United Press Staff Correspondent) BERLIN, Aug. 16.—An American diplomat recently declared the greatest mistake in the war is the use of the term "militarism." "No one," he said, "will ever agree on what it means and it is going to be difficult to the end of the war because of that."

The spirit of the German people during the last year cannot be shown without discussing "Militarism," in outlining the people's attitude toward the war, the Kaiser and the government, Militarism must be justified or criticized. Recent developments in Germany will be discussed in their relation to what is generally termed Germany's military party.

At the beginning of the war there was great enthusiasm throughout Germany. More than a million men volunteered to fight. During the first year they fought hard, died or were wounded. The people at home began to economize. This spirit carried the armies far into France and Russia.

People Want Peace.—If— During the second year this enthusiasm has not been so great but the determination of the people has abated. They want peace at once, if they can obtain reasonable terms of peace. If they had to vote to go on until they can get these terms or to stop and accept the terms of the enemy, they would vote to go on.

Germany wants peace because Germany believes she has won the war. There are critics and grumblers dissatisfied with everything. Every beligerent has about as many as the other. The difference is that in England they grumble publicly; in Germany they cannot; and when people cannot criticize publicly, they do it twice as hard privately.

The people are individually personally interested in the war because every person has some relative at the front. The best indication of the public support of the war is the vote of the Reichstag in June of the new war credit of two billion marks. There was less opposition to it than to the one before. The Socialists supported it for the fourth time and Socialist members of the Reichstag are in hourly touch with public sentiment.

Public Trusts the Government. Philip Scheidemann, a Socialist leader, is one of the best informed men in Germany on public sentiment. Scheidemann is in constant communication with the Imperial Chancellor. The Chancellor is received more often by the Kaiser than any other of the ministers. Scheidemann and the Chancellor are the connecting links between the Kaiser and the people.

So the public still has trust in the aims of the government as announced by von Bethman-Hollweg in the Reichstag. The people themselves deny that they are militaristic. They believe their army is their police force, thoroughly equipped and prepared for defense. To the people, this is a defensive war. They are not fighting to hold Belgium, Poland or Serbia. They are against annexation. If the war lasts longer and they are victorious they may change, but there is no indication of it now. Whatever happens a great deal will depend upon the attitude of the press. The Germans know there has been a strong military party and they know this party is today politically weaker than it ever has been.

3 Public Leaders at Start. At the beginning of the war there were three public leaders of the group of politicians called in America, "Imperialists." The Republican party in America, for instance, has been known as the Imperialistic party. Germany had a Republican party. The "Uncle Joe Cannon" of this party was von Heydebrand, a conservative, annexationist member of the Reichstag.

PLANS OF AN ATTRACTIVE HOME

A "Modern Duplex" Costing $5,500. Designed by Charles S. Sedgwick.

We are illustrating in this issue a "Modern Duplex," with six rooms in each flat, i. e., large living room, three bedrooms, dining room and kitchen, with the necessary clothes closets for each room and a coat closet off from the hall and a convenient bathroom for each flat.

The size is 25 feet in width and 55 feet in depth over the front glazed piazza. There is a good full basement with arrangement for two heating plants. The estimated cost is $5,500 to $6,500, exclusive of heating and plumbing.

The exterior is frame construction with cement stucco, the interior is finished in hardwood oak or birch and the floors of oak. The rear porch entrance for both flats is convenient and under the main roof and can be glazed in if desired. These rear stairs reach from basement to second story, being very convenient for both flats.

The floors should be constructed in such a manner as to keep out all sound between the flats. There are several ways to accomplish this, the best way costs the most, that is to furr the ceiling over the first story down, leaving a separate air space between and then use a thick felt or Cabot's Quilt or "Flaxinum." There are several makes of similar materials that are about the same quality and serve the purpose of deadening.

The size and shape of this duplex space on each side the better it is for makes it suitable to the ordinary city flat and the more desirable to lot, but the more width and open air-entrances.

Your "Don't Wants" Are Somebody's "Wants"

That carriage or go-cart that the youngest child has outgrown is just what another woman wants to give her child.

That rocking chair and the old dining room table are good even though you have relegated them to the attic.

You don't need a hose and garden tools in a flat, but there are others who have just moved from flats to houses—and they are ready right now to buy hose, tools, refrigerators, etc. Even the clothing you have threatened to sell for old rags will bring a better price if it isn't worn out. Almost every one of your "don't wants" is sure to be somebody's "want." And a Missourian Want Ad is the way to find the somebody and the money. Just phone 55 and tell your "don't wants" to the Missourian.
