

THEY ACT FOR RED CROSS FUND

Christian College Girls Dramatize "Pride and Prejudice."

The fall of pride and the casting aside of prejudice were presented by the Mary Arden Dramatic Club of Christian College in a dramatization of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice" in the college auditorium last night. The play was given for the benefit of the Red Cross fund. Miss Harriett Jean Trappe, director of the school of expression, directed the performance.

Miss Louise Johnson as Mr. Bennet of Longburn, and Miss Marie Pettijohn as his wife, who were ambitious for their daughters to marry well, were the favorites of the audience. Miss Eloita Stidham played the part of Mr. Darcy, a young man of family and fortune, who represented Pride. Marjorie Dickey took the part of Elizabeth Bennet, who represented Prejudice.

Special scenery and costumes were used in the play. The time of the action was 1797. Between the acts, a Hawaiian orchestra played under the direction of Miss Dorothy Bartholf, with Miss Isabel Myers at the piano.

The actors were all students in the School of Expression at the college. Those who were in the play were Miss Louise Johnson, Miss Eloita Stidham, Miss Grace Grimes, Miss Icie Stringer, Miss Donnallita Standifer, Miss Eva George, Miss Edna Baskett, Miss Marie Pettijohn, Miss Hazel Becker, Miss Beulah Yenter, Miss Henrietta Forney and Miss Maurine Neff. In the second act, in a ballroom scene, nine other girls took parts as ladies and gentlemen of the period.

PAPERS TO HELP FOOD DRIVE

Country Weeklies, Particularly, to Assist College of Agriculture.

Many letters have been received by M. N. Beeler, agriculture editor, from newspapers in the state in response to his request that they co-operate with the College of Agriculture in the present food campaign. The editors of these papers realize that the College of Agriculture is able to serve the nation by the campaign through the medium of the newspapers and are anxious to publish anything that will help the movement.

They will urge attendance at the meetings being held all over the state and will publish the literature sent out by the College of Agriculture. Mr. Beeler is well pleased with the spirit of the newspapers of the state and particularly with the fact that the weeklies which reach the farmer are responding so well.

FARM AND GARDEN SUNDAY NEXT

Movement Is to Interest Pastors in Intensive Production Idea.

Now comes "Farm and Garden Sunday," another phase of the intensive crop movement. Believing that the pastor of a town or country church may be of great help in the war crop movement the State Board of Agriculture is urging that a special Sunday be set aside to consider intensive farming. "Theology and agriculture go, or should go, hand in hand," says Jewell Mayes, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. "The pastor is the logical leader in every movement, involving either the financial or spiritual advancement of the community."

NORTH SIDE IS CLEANING UP

Prof. J. E. Wrench Sees Much Improvement in Backyards.

Two years of agitation have made the residents in the north part of Columbia enthusiastic about Clean-Up Week, according to Prof. J. E. Wrench, who made a tour of inspection Saturday afternoon. The backyards showed marked improvements, according to Mr. Wrench, and along Third and Seventh streets piles of rubbish and tin cans are ready to be removed. Many gardens were noticed.

WILL TELL OF TRAINING CAMP

The Rev. J. H. George to Address Commercial Club Thursday.

The Rev. James H. George, rector of the Calvary Episcopal Church, will speak on training camps for officers at the Commercial Club luncheon next Thursday at the Virginia Grill. The Reverend George attended the Plattsburg Training Camp in New York last year and will tell of his experiences. He wishes to create more interest in the Fort Riley camp.

W. L. Nelson to Food Conference.

W. L. Nelson, assistant secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, has received an invitation to attend the Central West Increased Production Association's conference to be held in St. Joseph Wednesday, May 2. This is a tri-state conference, and representatives from three of the largest corn-growing states in the Union—Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas—will attend. The motto of the convention will be "Produce and Prosper." Its purpose is to formulate plans for the conservation of live stock and crops.
