

TO SELL OLD GUARD BUTTONS ON FRIDAY

Prizes Will Be Offered Coeds and Organizations Selling Largest Numbers.

BIG DEMAND IN PAST
Speculators Have Gotten Twice Regular Price for Badges in Other Years.

The Old Guard button, sold at a premium in past years because the supply has never been large enough to satisfy the demand, will be put on sale at the University of Missouri next Friday morning. Co-eds—freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors—will meet the men students of the University in the lobby of Academic Hall, in the Agriculture Building, on the campus and sell the badges, which are worn by all Tiger rosters. The badge this year is somewhat similar to that of last year in size, but is of a new design. It will be sold for 35 cents.

Prizes for the individual co-ed and the sorority that sell the most buttons will be offered. It is not known as yet just what the prizes will be, but an announcement of this will be made the first part of the week. While the prizes will be well worth winning, the student council, which handles the sale of Old Guard buttons every year, is depending on the loyalty of Missouri girls to the Tiger football team to cause a big sale.

In the past the entire supply of Old Guard buttons has been exhausted within a week after they have been put on sale. Last year by the time of the Kansas game the buttons were selling for as high as 50 cents, some students even having bought two or three extra ones to speculate on. Twelve hundred of the buttons have been bought this year.

It is hoped to have a big sale announced at the Drake game mass meeting on Friday night. The buttons are expected in Columbia by Thursday, but none will be offered for sale before Friday morning. All profit made on the sale of the buttons will be used to defray expenses of mass meetings, posters, banners and badges for use at the time of the Kansas game and all general expenses of the student council in promoting interest in student activities.
