THE ALLIED CONFERENCE

Representatives of all the Allied nations will soon gather at Paris to discuss the important questions dealing with the prosecution of the war against the common enemy. The safe arrival of the United States commission at a British port has been announced and the great task of laying plans for future action will soon be started upon.

While the exact matters to be discussed are being kept secret, it is known that the general aim of the conference is to secure greater co-operation between the Allies. The keynote to the success that has attended the German and Austrian arms has been the close unity of action since the very outset of the struggle. In contrast to this, the Allies have been hampered by the lack of central authority, resulting in loss of efficiency and many defeats.

A "full and frank discussion" of the plans and needs of the various belligerents is desired by the United States, according to Secretary Lansing who realizes that the vast resources of this nation will not bring the results that they should unless the Allies are in harmony in each war move. The fact that the conference is to be held for the discussion of only war matters is of special significance. Tangible results that will be followed by greater activities by Allied arms on all fronts are predicted.

After three years of fighting, the Allies have learned the truth of the maxim "United we stand, divided we fall." The calling of this special conference is one of the most momentous steps taken to bring the war to a decisive close. Each move and word of the commissioners will be eagerly noted by the millions of persons who stand for the rights of humanity and small nations.

Not more than twenty per cent of the revenue necessary to run the country in 1918 will come from taxes. The remaining eighty per cent will be bonds. The greatest question the new Congress will have to decide will be how to meet the necessity for a broad and comprehensive system of taxation to pay the bonds and at the same time finance the country.

We shall oversubscribe this issue to an even greater extent than we did the Liberty Bonds," said a Columbian as he came away from a meeting of one of the Y. M. C. A. fund committees. If we don't oversubscribe the amount, we shall be showing that we care more for what our soldiers have to eat and wear than we do for their spiritual welfare.

Did you sleep late Sunday morning, lie around all day, eat more than you needed and then go to bed feeling badly, waking this morning feeling worse? Or did you rise early, go to church, take a long walk, eat lightly, go to bed feeling fit and get up this morning feeling more fit?

That the cause of good roads in Missouri is not dead is shown by the fact that every precinct in Reynolds County favored a road bond issue, six to one.

We may have a big time Thanksgiving when we kill the fatted turkey, but it won't compare with the time we will have when we cook the kaiser's goose.

LET'S HAVE MORE DAYLIGHT

The Borland Daylight Saving Bill was passed by the Senate on June 27. It is now with a House committee and will be taken up in December. More daylight will improve working conditions; more work will be done by sunlight and less by artificial light; industrial accidents will be lessened and the tubercular germs will have less chance.

But labor mistrusts capital and is afraid of the Borland Bill. And the House listens to labor. Perhaps this daylight saving plan has not been given to the people on the right basis. Too much time and speech have been wasted talking on physiological and economic conditions.

The working man is afraid of and the great mass of people only mildly interested in this plan because it will increase personal efficiency, will tend to increase the output and lower costs. The great and more quickly noticed good of the daylight saving plan would be the release of thousands of office, store and factory workers early enough to give them most of the afternoon for recreation, for out of doors, for playing games or watching them played, for anything away from the eternal drive between four walls.

Morals cannot be bought but they can be saved when money is judiciously expended as the Y. M. C. A. war work plans will be.

The second issue of the City Loan was oversubscribed 54 per cent. Let's do the same thing for the Y. M. C. A. war work fund.

As The Pages Turn

"How to Study."

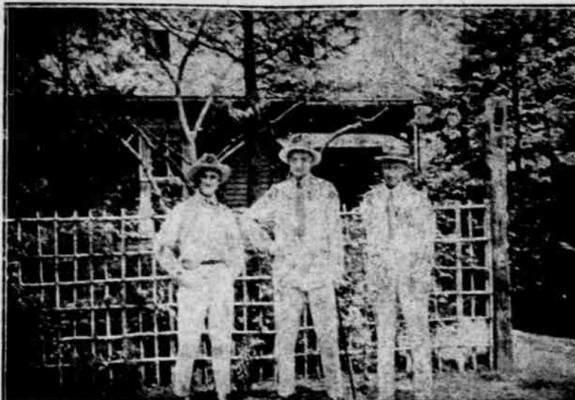

A power that has been sought by students in universities and schools for years is explained to some extent in the little book of sixty-five pages, "How to Study," by George Fillmore Swain, LL.D., Gordon McKay professor of civil engineering in Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The opening statement of the book, "Education is an opportunity, nothing more," is to some extent an index to what the remainder of the book contains. Doctor Swain emphasizes the necessity for being in the proper attitude to master a subject, he shows why it is necessary to study with a power of understanding, and he also tells of the necessity for concentration and the forming of habits of study.

Demonstrator E. C. O'Neill to Rolla.

E. C. O'Neill, who is acting as an emergency county demonstration agent, left yesterday for Rolla in Phelps County. Here he will conduct a campaign for the rest of the week. During the first three days of next week, he will conduct a similar campaign in Pulaski County. The object of the campaigns is to urge the farmers to select the proper kind of seed corn and to store it for next year so that better seed will be assured. These campaigns are particularly important now because of the early freezes and the consequent injury to late corn.

HE HELPS CITIES GET COAL

At Mokane Crossley Directed Mayor to "Borrow It."

Columbia and other nearby towns, Centralia, Mexico, Mokane, Moberly and Jefferson City, are among the twenty-five places which have been furnished relief from coal shortage by Wallace Crossley, state fuel administrator, according to a dispatch from Jefferson City. Mayor Earl R. Hodges of Mokane, in Callaway County, called up Mr. Crossley and told him the town was out of coal. Hodges said the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad had a large quantity stored there and would neither sell or lend responsible citizens a supply to relieve immediate necessities. Mr.

Crossley advised the mayor to forcibly "borrow" five tons from the railroad, if it could not otherwise be obtained.

Home baking of bread should be stopped, says Mrs. William Severan, chairman of the National Advisory Committee of the National Women's Association of Conservation. Not less than thirteen ounces of dough is wasted in every home on bake day, she says.

War Bread.

The following recipe for war bread by Mrs. A. W. Thomas of St. Louis won first prize in the St. Louis Republic contest:

Mush Bread (War Bread)—Take a good cup of mush, a pinch of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, using a sufficient amount of sour yeast (instead of milk) to moisten the mush; sift into a tray a small quantity of flour to keep mush from sticking; knead, roll out and cut. Grease pan and turn the biscuits in the grease. Bake in a moderate oven (top grate). Certainly fine, "like mother used to make."
