Although Italy may Flume, she is ready to join the League of Nations.

WHY THEY LEAVE

There are twenty teachers in the Columbia High School and only two of them have been in the employment of the school board here for more than three years. This does not speak well for a city of this size with a school of high class. The trouble is that in most cases, as soon as the teachers have a year or two of experience, they go to schools that will give them higher salaries.

Are Columbians willing that their schools be used merely as training schools for teachers? Are they going to sit idly by and see good teachers taken away because Columbia does not pay what their services are worth?

If we have regard for the education of our children, we will have regard for the class of instructors which we employ for them; and good teachers cannot be kept for any length of time unless they are well paid.

The Spartans evidently believe in the old saying that the third time is a charm.

DO WE NEED HIM?

Have you ever driven along Broadway near the M. K. & T. tracks?

Have you ever tried to cross the street between Conley and Lowry on Ninth during a heavy rain?

Have you slipped on slippery walks after a freeze, or walked in slush over unshoveled pavements after a snow? Have you wondered why some pavements were good and others bad, and still others missing?

Have you been out along the byways in the northwestern portion of Columbia, and noticed the lack of improvements?

In fact, have you noticed that while many streets and pavements in Columbia are excellent and a great number of them fair, there are some spots in the streets and pavements, and some sections of town where the need of an active, efficient street commissioner would be an expedient thing?

America may have to lead the Danube waltz as well as keep the watch on the Rhine.

FAULTS THAT ARE VIRTUES

The greater part of the objections to the League of Nations is founded on misconceptions. As the originators of these misconceptions propound and clarify their theories, the public quietly chuckles at the good they are doing the league by driving home its real meaning and scope while attempting to dam the rising flood of popularity on which it is riding.

Perhaps the most popular argument against the proposed covenant is that it abrogates the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine should be clearly understood before judgment is passed. All that this famous mandate of the fifth President contains is a prohibition to any European or Asiatic power of the acquisition of territory in the Western Hemisphere without the consent of the United States.

The constitution of the League of Nations as it stands prohibits such acquisition without the consent of the nation concerned and the unanimous approval of the Executive Council. If Germany should have attempted to annex a part of Venezuela ten years ago, the United States would have had to declare war on her. If Germany should attempt to annex a part of Venezuela ten years from now, the United States, Great Britain, France and some score other powers would, in concert action, declare war on her—if the league become a fact.

For more than one hundred years the Monroe Doctrine has been backed by the strong arm of the United States; when the league begins to operate, the Monroe Doctrine will be backed by the strong arm of all civilization.

Wait a minute! Don't put that old winter suit that you have worn all year and are sick of back into a dark corner of the closet, now that you have a new one. Give it to the Red Cross. It will be as much appreciated by a European peasant as a new one.

STITT WILSON COMING

Reports From Other Colleges Under Californian Enthusiasm.

J. Stitt Wilson, who is to lecture to the University men in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium April 2, 3 and 4, has been received with much enthusiasm throughout the country, says E. G. Howe, secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. in a telegram received this morning by Paul Young.

"Wilson has attracted large crowds in the universities where he has spoken. His messages make a tremendous impression and drive conviction to the ears of faculty and student. He is a man of the hour with the answer of the hour to the challenge of the hour."

'Round About

Warm spring days are causing the fishermen of Columbia to hunt up their fishing tackle and return to their old haunts of a year ago, or probably two or three years ago, before the war interfered with their spring and summer sport.

There is a wide choice of fishing holes in the vicinity. Good fishing holes can be found either north, south, east or west of town.

One of the best known places is Bell's Lake, near Rocheport. Another is Cedar Creek, on the boundary line of Boone and Callaway counties. There is Perche Creek, which runs from the covered bridge south of town to the Missouri River. There is also good fishing in the Missouri, but it has never been so popular as some of the smaller places.

Brushwood Lake, sometimes called Horseshoe Lake, and Gordon's Lake are also popular fishing places.

Everything from large catfish to minnows has been caught by Columbians, including crappie, bass, sunfish, perch, buffalo, carp and dogfish.
