H. L. WITHERS BURIED TODAY Was A Resident of Columbia for Fifty Years.

The funeral of H. L. Withers who died yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. R. Jacobs, 214 Edgewood avenue, took place this afternoon, and the body was buried in the Baptist cemetery. He attended the University of Missouri in 1854 and 1857, and when the Civil War broke out, joined the Confederate Army under Major Robinson of Shelby's Division. After his discharge from the service he took interest in the local politics and finally supported the Democratic party.

DUCHESS OLGA PENILESS Sister of Former Czar Applies to Red Cross Workers for Food.

Garbed in a tattered ermine cloak, once priceless, but now so weather-beaten and worn as to be utterly worthless, the Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the last czar of Russia, has applied to American Red Cross workers in Belgrade, Serbia, for food, according to word reaching the Red Cross from Serbia.

Hatless, her gloves in twisted rags, her shoes broken out and her purse empty, the grand duchess stepped from a crowded steaming train at the Belgrade station. When a stinking plate of soup from the American Red Cross food kitchen was handed her, she swallowed it ravenously and remarked: "It is a week since I have had so much food at one time."

The grand duchess, it will be recalled, was found recently by Red Cross workers living in a box car near Novorossisk, southern Russia, and though herself clad in rags, was giving what assistance she could to fellow refugees.

CUBS "FIXED"? Charges Filed Claim Chicago Team Sold Out to Phillies.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Charges that the players of the Chicago Cub baseball club were "fixed" last Tuesday to let the Philadelphia club win were placed against the players here today.

William Veck, president of the club, said that he received several telegrams and long distance calls saying that gamblers were placing their money on the Philadelphia club. Veck said that he put Alexander into the game that day in an attempt to beat the Phillies. He also said that he promised Alexander a $500 bonus if he won the game.

A meeting of the baseball reporters of the Chicago newspapers has been called to make up a committee of three to investigate the charges.

RAISING OF MULES INCREASING Census Figures Indicate That Number of Hoses Decreases.

Preliminary census figures, subject to correction, are being released by the U. S. Census Bureau. Data from twenty-eight counties in Tennessee and from scattered counties in Kentucky, North Carolina, Florida and Georgia have been received. These figures show a trend in these states to decrease horses and increase mules. Horses in the twenty-eight counties in Tennessee total 75,490—a loss of 5001 since 1910. Mules number 87,672, a gain of 21,248 over 1910 figures, making a net gain of 16,123 in both horses and mules. The scattered counties in other states referred to, show substantially the same condition in an increase of mules, but a decrease in horses.

The figures do not present a direct comparison, for the 1920 census was taken in January, and the 1910 census in April, when a good many foals existed and were enumerated. They do disclose, however, a decrease in horses owned in the south.

The mule is the only fool proof motive power unit. They can go out singly, or in pairs, fours, sixes, and after a full day's work, return home all right, without the driver doing or not. In these days of irresponsible labor, that is a big factor.

The South is dependent upon the Central West for its work stock. Not one-eighth of the horses and mules annually needed in the southeastern states are raised here, and the decrease in horses indicates that the south prefers to produce cotton and purchase work animals, instead of raising them.

Prospects now are for a greater demand and higher prices for good mules than ever before.

EXPERIMENTS A SUCCESS Develop Highest Yielding Variety of Wheat, Oats and Soybeans.

Varieties of wheat and oats for planting are recommended to farmers in the different regions of Missouri as a result of progress made through experiments by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture to determine the highest yielding varieties of these grains in the various regions of the state. Superior varieties developed at the College have retained their ability to produce increased yields in other regions. Seed is now distributed. Results from this work when completed will be as important, in proportion to the acreage grown, as those from the work with corn.

Through a series of 316 demonstration tests of soybean varieties, the College of Agriculture is endeavoring to establish for Missouri the highest yielding varieties and the best methods of handling the crop. Evidence gleaned from these experiments is already pointing out the best varieties to grow for seed and for hay.

70 ENROLL IN BIBLE COLLEGE. More Students Expected When New Classes Start.

Approximately seventy University students are now enrolled in courses in the Missouri Bible College. This is a considerable increase over the number registered during the fall term of last year, but less than during last winter term. The Bible College officials attribute the smaller enrollment of each fall term to the fact that many University students do not know at first that they may receive credit in the University for Bible College courses.

More definite figures regarding enrollment will be announced in a couple of weeks. Students are still registering and three more classes are to start next week.

The opening of Christian College week after next will bring more students and two classes for Christian College girls will be given by the Bible College.

SHAVE COSTS A CENT IN PARIS Street Barber Uses Stone Steps for Chair.

PARIS, August 15.—(By Mail.)—He hasn't got a gold ball with hair hanging from it (the French substitute for a barber pole) dangling from his cap, but customers recognize him for what he is as he shaves about in a little market place leading off from the Place Maubert, which is in the heart of the Paris Latin Quarter. Without "bers" being called, without a sign of a razor of flesh cap, this seemingly stainless-looking, rough-parasol, water bucket and feed hog that the recruit was bound to knock to one side every time he came to shoulder arms has given way to the more trim cap.

Today is the twenty-third day of the protest to be sinking fast although Downing Street reports that there is no change in his condition. The new athletic director of the school, J. H. Aydelett, said that some new football uniforms and other equipment had already been ordered and that he expected to begin practice next week. Mr. Aydelett was superintendent of the high school at Beta, Kan., last year, at which time his basketball team won eighteen out of the twenty-two games played.

HAS THREE ANTIQUE COINS Columbia Man Finds Rare Specimens in Spain.

In the collection of coins of the different European countries which are in possession of M. Marcell, 311 Van Ness street, are three about the appearance of dimes. "I placed Spain last year and in Cadix I ran across three antique coins used by the Spaniards when Caesar was the Roman Emperor of that colony," said Marcell.

Each coin bears the salient figure of the head of a Roman warrior equipped with a metal remodeling head, and with a veal at first glance, the many varieties of its costumes. Another coin that is very interesting to the student is the one according to Marcell's statement he was informed while at Cadix, Spain. This was one of the kind of coins used by the Phoenicians. The coins are entirely round as the ordinary ones, but the pieces are not uniform, and the figures are not sharp.
