

TO DISTRIBUTE EXCESS PROFIT

Growers Get Surplus Gains Made by Wool Dealers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Distribution of excess profits made by dealers who handled the wool clip in 1918 under regulations of the War Industries Board is being made by the United States Department of Agriculture to some 100,000 wool growers, it was announced today. It is estimated by the Bureau of Markets that the total amount of such excess profits was more than $1,000,000, of which approximately $460,000 has been turned over to the bureau for distribution.

Some of the dealers who accumulated excess profits have failed or refused to do so and the entire amount, and the bureau is at work auditing the books of some, interviewing others and corresponding with still others, in order to bring about final settlements. The dealers who operated under permits signed in agreement with the War Industries Board specifically limited their profits. Some of these dealers have delayed their settlements in order to have certain questions disposed of.

Other dealers made refunds of their excess profits under protest, reserving any legal rights they might be able to establish by litigation. This means that if it should finally be determined by the courts that the dealers were under no legal obligation to pay over the excess profits to the department, it would then be under legal obligation to return the money paid under protest. Hence, such payments cannot safely be distributed.

The cases in which payments have been refused are being prepared as promptly as possible for transmission to the Department of Justice, with recommendation for the immediate institution and vigorous prosecution of suits for the recovery of the excess profits. The profits will be distributed to the growers entitled to them as soon as received.

Christmas Shopping Problems Solzed By Planting Bulbs

The best time to plan for Christmas presents is in October, and some of the best things to arrange to give to your friends are the growing bulbs planted in flower pots or good flower jars. The paper flower pots are especially good because they cost so little and are so easy to handle and to place inside a flower jar when the plant is ready to bud and blossom. If you start the bulbs then, they will be of a good size to give at Christmas. Some kinds may be made to blossom then while others will be only in bud, but those in bud are all right for presents, because the one you give them to will have the pleasure of seeing the buds grow into blossoms. A great English writer, John Ruskin, once said that this watching of buds change to blossoms is one of the greatest pleasures we can have.

Try planting bulbs in bowls in fiber.

Fiber may be bought for a few cents from any dealer in seeds. After the roots are started bring out the bowl to a warm, light room and watch the leaves grow and the flower buds develop. Such bowls are very nice for Christmas presents.

The true jonquils are easy to grow. Send for the Imported Campernelle jonquil. In some catalogues it has a long name—ru gu-lo-sus.

Plant three bulbs in a 3-inch pot. Cover the bulbs with soil to near the top and firm it down with your thumbs. Add water and set away in a cool, dark closet or on the cellar floor. Keep the soil moist, but not too wet, for the next six or eight weeks. Then bring them to the window shelf of a warm room and watch the leaves grow and the blossoms come out. Notice the fragrance of the flowers.
