

ANNUAL SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS BEGINS

Campaign Under Auspices of Missouri Tuberculosis Association — Certificates Also Sold.

WORK ENDS DEC. 25

Miss Gladys Roberts Directing Solicitors—50 Per Cent of Funds Go to Local Organization.

"Won't you please buy a Christmas seal?" said Miss Gladys Roberts, who is directing the sale in Columbia.

"We hope that organizations will buy seals," said Miss Gladys Roberts, who is directing the sale in Columbia.

The sale is going so well that more seals and buttons have been ordered from headquarters, according to Miss Roberts.

Pupils at the University Elementary school sold 3,500 in one day. Tom Young has been awarded a gold shield for selling 500 seals.

The Campfire Girls, under the guidance of Mrs. O. E. Johnson, have sold $50 worth of the seals.

The girls have not yet reached their quota, according to Mrs. Johnson.

CHARITY SOCIETY AIDS

The Christmas Tuberculosis seals have taken the place of the Red Cross seals in former years.

Columbia's Charity Organization Society continues the tuberculosis work with other relief work under its health committee.

Mrs. J. W. Lane is chairman of the committee, and Mrs. W. L. Harbo and Dr. A. W. Taylor are members.

One-half of the money raised in Columbia from the seal sale, after expenses of the campaign are paid, will go to the Charity Organization Society.

Beginning Monday a table will be placed in the postoffice.

"I want to emphasize the sale of bonds and certificates," Miss Roberts said.

"Sometimes people don't realize the good which comes from this expenditure. The following are some of the uses of the money:

HAS HELPED WITH SANITARY CONDITIONS

"The association has reduced the number of deaths from tuberculosis in the entire state, from 5,113 in 1911, to 3,616 in 1919.

According to its statistics, this is a saving of $22,500,000. It has installed school nurse service and the physical examination of school children.

It has procured the passage of progressive health legislation, including laws for the establishment of county tuberculosis hospitals, visiting nurse service, sanitary conditions in zinc mines, requiring examination of water supplies, etc.

Besides the establishment of open-air schools and night and day schools for the tubercular, it has given instruction and conducted wide campaigns of publicity.

The importance of the work being done by the Tuberculosis Association is now recognized by experts everywhere.

Doctor Miller has recently received high praise and commendation upon results achieved. These results are measured not only by the decreased death rate, but by the educational work done among school children.

Tuberculosis, once thought to be hereditary, is now known to be highly contagious, and only through training in prevention can its spread be checked.

Many of the Western states are sending out warnings that they will not welcome tubercular patients from longer.

A change of climate, once thought to be essential to the cure of the disease, has been proved to be unnecessary if the proper care is given at the patient's home. This is what the Tuberculosis Association is teaching.

Two Stones Mark Old Prison Bounds For Columbia Debtors

In the present day it is comparatively easy to get by with being careless in regard to monetary affairs.

A person may owe a few debts, yet there is still no cause for a great amount of worry, according to a philosophy of some.

If the debt is small, especially, there is nothing much that a person usually does to collect it.

However in early days, the situation was slightly different from what it is today.

The rule then was, "pay your debts or go to prison," and the great majority of the people lived with strict accordance to this rule.

At a little later date the rule was made so that a person had a certain bound in the close neighborhood of the jail in which he was free to roam if he could produce the specified amount of bond to the creditor's satisfaction.

Proof that this law once held sway in Columbia is found in the shape of two stones which once marked the bounds of the prison at that time.

Under the laws of the United States then persons who could not or would not pay their debts were seized and thrown into prison and kept there until the debt was paid.

In 1806 the provision was made that the prison bounds be extended and the limits be marked with posts.

Arrested persons, who could furnish bond to the satisfaction of the creditor, and securities twice the amount which he was supposed to pay, were free to roam in these bounds as they wished.

They could not go outside under any pretext, however.

On May 26 the first prison bound for a jail in Columbia was laid out. Posts were used at first to mark these bounds.

Later, in 1837, the posts were superseded by stones. The survey began at an old jail which then stood near the northeast corner of the present Courthouse.

The bounds consisted of exactly twenty-two and a half acres with the jail in the center. Commencing at the point just inside the corner of Sixth and Broadway, then east to the site of an intermediate marking stone, set in the curbing on the east side of Gular street, still east to an old stone house and north to Park avenue and along the original north boundary line of the town to a point due north of the beginning, then south to the point of the beginning.

Any person imprisoned for debt could have the freedom of these bounds. If a house happened to be in the line of division it was theoretically cut in two.

A person could have the freedom of half the house but he could not enter the other side of the house. Such a case as this was known here in which a debtor lived in a house situated on the dividing line of the bound. He was allowed to live in one half of his house but he could not enter the other part.

This law was abolished from the United States in 1833 but it was not given up in Missouri until 1845.

One of the most popular events of the school year at Christian College is the Christmas dinner which is given annually by the senior class to the juniors and members of the faculty.

With the singing of "Holy Night" by a sextette of girls, including Miss Lucille Richardson, Miss Pauline Dophine, Miss Lucille Dyer, Miss Viola Brackett, Miss Eula Penn Wheat and Mrs. Anna Freeman, the 1920 Christmas dinner began at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening in the college dining room.

Tiny Christmas trees, paper chimneys, holly and candles decorated the tables. The senior table occupying the center of the room with the class colors, green and white, used as the color scheme.

In the absence of Miss Lucille Mingers, Miss Rosebud White acted as class president for the seniors.

The short course students will give a banquet for the short course men who will be graduated this term, at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Knights of Columbus Students' Home. There will be dancing, a program and games after the banquet. About one hundred and fifty are expected.

Dr. and Mrs. George Lefevre will leave December 26 for St. Louis to visit Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Blackburn.

Miss Sara Ann Wheeler will arrive the first of the week for a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wheeler, 1406 East Broadway.

Mrs. Ora Van Pelt, state vice-president of the Rebekah Lodge arrived this afternoon to help in the installation of the Woodlandville Rebekah Lodge. While in Columbia she will be a guest of Mrs. Tom Ficklin, 703 Hickman avenue.
