The Missouri team ran on the field attired in new sheepskin jackets in which they made a very natty appearance.

Lewis punted to Roche, who fumbled but recovered in midfield. The Billikens opened up but a forward pass failed. Drace kicked to Lewis who was thrown on his 15-yard line as the whistle sounded. St. Louis took the ball on the 30-yard line. Lewis fumbled Drace's kick and a St. Louis player carried it to the 30-yard line. A forward pass netted the Billikens 10 yards. Drace made 5 yards. B. F. HOFFMAN HEADS COUNTY ORGANIZATION

Other Officers of Sunday School Association Are G. S. Starrett and F. E. Belden.

MANY TALKS MADE

Mid-Week Activities, Training of Young People and Children Considered in Conference.

The following officers were elected this morning at the third annual convention of the Boone County Sunday School Association: Pres. Prof. B. F. Hoffmann; secretary, George S. Starrett; treasurer, Frank E. Belden.
Preceding the business session of the spoke on "The Unfolding Life" and Carl Hendrix reported from Hillsville; Mrs. Rose Chance from Springfield, Ill.; Harriet E. Beard from St. Louis and Carl Asmus from Cape Girardeau.
The meeting convened yesterday morning in Centuria.

Yesterday afternoon most of the time was taken up with four separate conferences. Freda Pape presided over the children's division. Miss Beard outlined the program for Boone County and expressed her views on "How to Teach Children." Mrs. Harry Stone and Mr. Asmus gave short talks and then Miss Beard led in the open conference.
The young people's division was presided over by Mrs. L. H. Otto. Mr. Asmus talked on "The Organized Young People's Department" and Miss Beard on "Teacher Training." She emphasized the need of training teachers for Sunday schools.

TRAINING OF TEACHERS

"The ideal training class," she said, "gives ten lessons on each of the following topics: lesson material, the pupil, the life of Christ, the school, the Old Testament, the New Testament, devotional service and Christian ideals."
Then Professor Hoffman gave a brief talk on "The Organized Class and Mid-Week Activities." He pointed out that the Sunday school class could benefit by organization as well as any other enterprise.

"The well-organized class is one which, through committees and subcommittees, sets a task for everyone, guided by leaders. There is enough work for all," said Professor Hoffman. He enumerated a number of mid-week activities for a class.
Miss Jessie Burrall of Columbia led the open conference for this section. The discussion turned mainly upon means to induce students study their Sunday lessons.

WHAT CLASS CAN DO.

In the adult division, presided over by George Starrett, Professor Hoffman explained what a real organized class can do for a Sunday school. He said that organization "simplifies, unifies and electrifies." In particular, organization secures discipline, helps in preparation of lessons, increases the enrollment, secures better attendance, prevents leakage, creates a spirit of fellowship, creates class pride and helps in soul-winning.
Clyde Hishaw presided over the administration division. Roy T. Davis, H. O. Severance and Miss Beard gave talks to this section of the convention. It was attended primarily by superintendents. Mr. Asmus led the open conference.

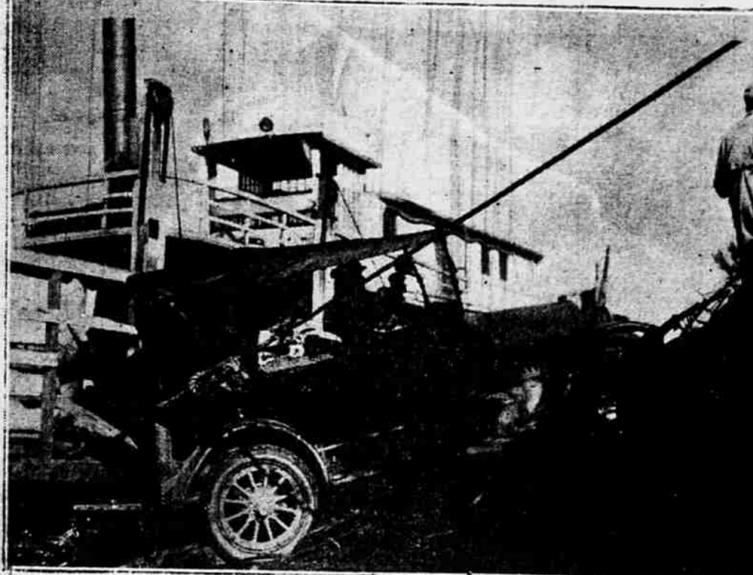

URGES ATTENTION TO CHILDREN

At 4 o'clock the convention assembled together. Mr. Asmus brought out in a talk that there are in this country 5,500,000 illiterate, 50,000,000 who are not members of any church and 27,000,000 under the age of 25 who do not attend Sunday school. "One reason," he said, "why the Protestant churches are not gaining as rapidly as they might is that they are not devoting as much time to the education of children as are the Catholics and the Jews."
E. A. Logan, the retiring president of the Boone County Sunday School Association, announced the following committees; resolutions: Mrs. Clyde Younger, George S. Starrett and W. H. Bruner; nominations: The Reverend Mr. Hendrix, C. W. Settle and F. W. Quisenberry.
Miss Burrall's speech on "Building the Class" closed the afternoon program. "The first thing in building up a class is for the teacher to have a message, to have absolute faith in Jesus Christ," she said. Other requisites are: boys and girls must be set to work, pupils must come on time, teachers should know the names of their pupils and get in touch with them personally, and a proper atmosphere must be engendered.
The program yesterday evening was brief. Special music was provided, following Miss Beard's speech. "The Artist Teacher." Miss Burrall closed the day's program. Her subject was "Winning to Christ."

INQUIRING REPORTER

"How did you meet your wife?" he asked five persons picked at random.
A. Buchroeder, 1015 Broadway: "I was a jeweler in the Gilman Dorsey Drug Store when I first met my wife. She was a nurse and came in to buy something. We became acquainted and were married a year later. We never fight, and never have an occasion to use the rolling pin."
Dr. Virgil Blakemore, Exchange National Bank Bldg.: "My wife came in as a customer when I was a jeweler in Fayette. I was nineteen at that time. Three years later we were married and are still happily married."
R. W. Gordon, 119 Academic Hall: "I was introduced to my wife's sister at a fair in Mexico in 1914. When I met my wife through my acquaintance with her sister, I fell in love with her and married her three years later. Happily married, of course."
D. W. Goode, manager of the University Commons: "I was introduced to my wife by Mrs. Roseborough who lived in the Dumas Apartments chaperoning my wife and another girl. Two years later I married her. The only time my wife had to wait on me before we were married was when I took her to a dance at the Acacia house where I was living at the time. It was raining hard that night and I tried to get a taxi to take me to her house which was three blocks away. I waited for a taxi until about 9:30 o'clock when it stopped raining. Then I walked to her house and brought her back. Now she doesn't have to wait for me. It's the other way around. I have to wait for her."
T. D. Stanford, 119 Academic Hall: "I was working as a clerk at the Agricultural Experiment Station and my wife was then a stenographer in the department of animal husbandry. There wasn't any romance in our meeting— that all came afterward. I met her in the spring of 1913 and married her in November, 1914. Sure, I'm happily married."

$161 JUDGMENT RENDERED AGAINST J. W. GORDON

Suit Involving Payment of Note Is First Jury Trial in Present Court Session.
Judgment for $161 was rendered in Circuit Court this morning in favor of Ira T. G. Stone, the plaintiff in a suit against J. W. Gordon for a note. The suit was tried before Judge David H. Harris.
This case was the first jury trial of the present term of court. The case involved a note for $500 and interest which was given Oct. 7, 1919 to help settle the payment of a previous note which was also given by the defendants. E. C. Anderson, attorney, placed a number of witnesses on the stand to prove that the defendants had never been given the opportunity of paying the note and that at the present time they were willing to pay it. The testimony given by both sides conflicted in almost every detail and there were many motions made by the attorneys of each side to throw out testimony of the witnesses.
The opening hour of the court was taken up with minor cases among which were four suits brought to perfect titles, all of which were allowed. The four cases were: Willis V. Evans against the unknown heirs of Robert S. Barr et al; Carl Kehr against the unknown heirs of Joseph Lemuel Nelson et al; William E. Pace against the unknown heirs of Thomas T. Stewart et al; and Morris Riback et al against the unknown heirs of Joseph Trigg et al.
