

IRWIN HAS A GOOD RECORD AS JOURNALIST

"The Ace of Correspondents" Gained Fame as a Writer During the Recent World War.

TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

His Engagement Secured by University Debating Club—Will Speak on "Next War."

The record of Will Irwin, "The Ace of Correspondents," who will deliver a lecture in the Auditorium of Jesse Hall, at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the University Debating Club, is one of the most interesting and brilliant of correspondents in the records of American Journalism. His repertoire of writings covers the entire field of the pastures of human interest to the recent World War.

When Al Jennings went to New York to tell about his experiences in the Ohio

Will Irwin

State Penitentiary, Will Irwin was one of the first to see him and with his aid wrote "Beating Back."

Mr. Irwin was well acquainted with San Francisco, having worked on newspapers there for a number of years when he was just beginning his wonderful career in journalism. At the time of the San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906, he sat down at a typewriter in the New York Sun office and scooped the story from all the other reporters who were or were not at the disaster by writing a story before the fire, 3,000 miles away, was checked.

FAMOUS WAR CORRESPONDENT
During the World War, Irwin acted as a special correspondent. The British Weekly, a London newspaper wrote, "No message from any correspondent during the war has surpassed his in merit and interest." The London Daily Mail placed him among the foremost of special correspondents with the late George W. Stevens, and Archibald Forbes. His fame as a war correspondent on the actual field of battle, swept like a meteor across the sky. He soon came to be recognized as one of the two best American correspondents in the war zone, the other being Irvin S. Cobb.

Mr. Irwin was born in New York, but has spent a great deal of his time in the West.

Irwin is known for his interesting and individual manner of writing. In his article, "Our Big Chance," he tells of the race hatred in Europe. "Whether it were a German roasting an Englishman, or a Frenchman roasting the Germans, or an Italian roasting the Greeks, or a Slav the Hungarians, or an under-class Spaniard roasting the French, in nine cases out of ten he finishes with this: 'And finally they are the biggest liars on earth!'"

HAS TRAVELED WIDELY
Mr. Irwin is widely traveled, having covered thoroughly the continent of Europe. His accounts of his travels and people in foreign lands are a delight to his hearers.

"Mr. Irwin was an extremely interesting young man," said Mrs. O. H. Scott, 906 University, who remembers him at the age of 27, when he and his brother Wallace, stayed at the Scott home in San Francisco. "He was just beginning his career in journalism at that time, and was editor of a San Francisco paper, which has since been absorbed by one of the larger dailies."

He is well remembered in Columbia, having visited here during Journalism Week ten years ago.

Mr. Irwin's appearance in Columbia has been made possible by the University Debating Club. His subject will be the same as the title of his latest book, "The Next War."

grade papers, make report cards and put the grades on the two sets of continuous record cards which are kept for each child at any time enrolled in the Columbia schools.

The class of the third grade of the Benton School is preparing to tell "The Story of a Loaf of Bread" with colored paper, scissors and paste. The work is to be sent to the State Fair at Sedalia next August. The children began their study of bread by reading and then telling the story in language class. Since giving wheat is no novelty to the children of Columbia, the work of the farmer in raising wheat, preparing the ground, and caring for it was readily made a part of the class work. The history of the loaf of bread was followed until it was sent to the grocer, a finished product. When the children were entirely familiar with the process of converting wheat into flour, they wished to make a book that would tell the story. They have cut out the figures freehand, each figure representing unerringly the idea or action of a particular part of the story. The farmer in his wheat field, the baker with his rolls of bread, the customers in the grocery store taking the bread in their hands are cut so well that no one could misunderstand. The figures are cut out of different colored papers and then pasted together. The farmer wears blue overalls, black shoes, yellow straw hat and a white shirt. His field of wheat is made up of strips of yellow paper and the blue sky is made from strips of wavy blue paper.

INDIAN COUNCIL CIRCLE HELD

Stephens College Girls Booms Singing Bravos.

A long line of singing braves entered the Indian Council Circle last night at 7:30 o'clock in the Stephens College gymnasium and grouped themselves according to their tribes. Most of the girls wore their regulation gymnasium outfit and tribal headbands. Scattered among the Blackfeet tribe could be seen southern negro boys and girls. Far Eastern mystics added to the Dakota. Many other original costumes added to the beauty of the scene around the fire.

The great chief, Miss Gladys Pennington, seated on a many-colored divan, gave out the laws of the council: absolute silence, and sacredness of the council circle. The great chief said that the fire was to bring blessing upon the first council meeting, and the pipe of peace was smoked to invoke the blessing to the Indian god.

Competition between the tribes for the best songs and yells formed the chief part of the program. Each of the tribes was called upon to offer some stunt. Among them were a sight-seeing trip through Stephens, with a cast of celebrated land bathing beauties, a song by Miss Mary Opal McLennan, the backward gym class, the photographer's shop, a dog dance, a dance by Miss Dixie Durham, a clever presentation of the fairy story, Bluebeard and his beheaded wives, a negro sermonette, and a Persian Mystic Hobble Gobble, a learned high priestess, who answered all questions of the braves. Other individual stunts were by Miss Ethel and Miss Euelia Ewing, Miss Mary Louise Melvin, and Miss Mary Wilson.

The following were the principal tribes and their chiefs: Inquois, Miss Lila Graham; Susquehanna, Virginia Tuck; Crowfoot, Marion Weaver; Blackfeet, Bernice Turner; Dakota, Loraine Britton; Navajo, Halle Redman.

PLANS MADE FOR MEETING
Grade Students' Stock-Judging Clubs to Convene Soon.

A series of meetings for teachers and members of stock judging clubs, organized by grade students throughout the state, will be held this month. They will be held at the following places: Ashland, January 12; Columbia, January 13; Hallsville, January 14.

These meetings will be held in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. Teachers will bring all club members. Patrons are also invited to attend these gatherings. The question discussed will be, "What are the present difficulties in my school work?" In addition there will be a program for the club members and Prof. R. H. Emberson, state president of the organization, will address each meeting on "Girls' and Boys' Club Work."

Charles Northcutt, county superintendent of schools, has charge of these meetings. In order to encourage interest in the clubs, any boy or girl who completes one line of work in this club is given a grade of ninety in agriculture and excused from a final examination in the course.

Fashion's Fourth Dimension is Clean Linen

Fashion's measurements have always been: fit, color, and design.

But there is a fourth dimension to the really fashionable, the really smart dresser. It is his linen. No matter how well made his suit may be, if his collar and cuffs are dirty, wrinkled, and mussed, he has a slouchy appearance.

The successful dresser is the man whose linen is spotless and glistening.

Our laundering process cleans linen to glistening spotlessness.
