Crows Make Good Domestic Pets at Home of A. A. Jeffrey

Bob-toe isn't nearly as hospitable as Jim, for he absolutely refused to appear when the visitor came to see them at the home of A. A. Jeffrey, the agricultural editor.

Bob-toe and Jim are big black American crows that were found by Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey one day in early spring down in the hollows along the banks of the Hinkin. They were only fledglings then, but a hearty diet soon raised them to lusty young "crossbills."

Allan and Lisle, the 12 and 10-year-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey, have found them interesting playmates, but, sad to say, not thoroughly honest. Any jack-knives or marbles that may be missing are found in the trees down in "dromedary," a tree whose outline, by some freak of nature, grew in two humps like the back of a camel.

Bob-toe, as the name implies, met with an accident in early youth, and has gone through life minus a toe. Both sleek shiny black crows are good sociological specimens, according to Mr. Jeffrey, as they are rapidly adding new habits and modifying their instinctive ones.

They have often followed Lisle and Allan half-way to school and are their almost constant companions at home. Both Bob-toe and Jim seem to have delicate appetites as their diet seems to consist mostly of hickory nuts, cackies and grasshoppers.

They have their bath habits, too. The cow-tank makes an excellent bathtub, and with the addition of a fence post balanced on the edge which sinks gently into the water when their weight is on it, they are able to govern the exact depth of their bath.

In the winter, Mr. Jeffrey attracts the chickadees and tufted tit-mice by hanging suet balls from branches of trees. Sparrows do not attempt to forage, as they have an instinctive aversion to anything which hangs suspended.

Seven Members of the "Dirty Dozen" of 1919 Have Reunion

Mrs. Margaret E. Chamberlain is to entertain with a dinner party Thursday night at Read Hall for the remaining members of a justly famous organization known as the "Dirty Dozen."

Seven of the old crowd, which thus named itself in 1919 when the members were living at Read Hall, are in school this year, and are thus the only ones to enjoy the reunion. They are Maxine Christopher, Mary Belle Mundy, Laura Frances Headen, Margaret Hudson, Alaine Smith, Helen Hayden and Marjorie Woodland.

Varied careers have opened to the five other members.

Helen Bingham, of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, who received her degree from the University last spring, is now a Y. W. C. A. secretary in Akron, Ohio.

Mildred Allen, of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, is teaching school in Kansas City.

Margaret Cogswell, also a Kappa Kappa Gamma, is doing library work in Independence, Mo.

Louise Weaver, of the Delta Gamma sorority, is attending the University of California, and Marion Hare, of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, is traveling in Europe.

TIME AND TROUBLE SAVED WHEN STUDENT ARRIVES VIA AIRPLANE

Whizz-purr-rrr! Thus the gentle sighing of an engine overhead announced the presence of an airplane in Columbia about the first of September. A former student from Oklahoma had driven his plane up during registration week to enroll in the University.

The trip was made in comparatively few hours and all the annoying details of a long trip were easily avoided. Could the grandfather of this boy at his age even have imagined such a thing he certainly would never have given voice to the thought.

The franchise for the first railroad was not granted in the state of Missouri until 1838 and it was almost ten more years before railroad transportation took on a practical aspect. The railroad that now brings students to the University isn't much over fifty years old, and before that time, students planning to enter the University came on horseback.

When the cornerstone of the first building of the University was laid some time in 1840 and this new institution first received students, they came from the country around as well as from the small towns, St. Louis, St. Charles and Westport Landing, the last of which has grown to be the metropolis known as Kansas City.

It isn't an uncommon occurrence now to see flocks of new students arriving by automobile and many of the students drive daily to classes in their cars, whereas their parents probably drove up in state astride a sleek fat horse or behind a pair of chestnut-colored carriage horses.

Y. W. C. A. to Sing From New Books

The Y. W. C. A. will have new hymn books from which to sing at its meeting tomorrow afternoon. They are small, paper-bound volumes, about 3 1/2 inches wide by 6 1/2 inches long, containing the words of only twelve songs. The cost of publication was paid by advertisements of religious organizations in Columbia on the fly leaves.

UNIVERSITY STUDENT REALIZES HARD WORK ON DRAMATIC TOUR

"The hardest studying I ever did in my life wasn't in the University," reports William J. Pollard, a student in the School of Journalism who spent the summer traveling with a stock company of players.

"Working up twelve different parts in ten days with rehearsals three times a day calls for later hours and more concentration than any course I ever took in school."

Pollard, who left school at the end of the spring term to join the Mayhall Dramatic Show which played in all parts of Missouri and Iowa, tells of many interesting experiences and people he has encountered.

"I was scared stiff when I first started out. I was wired the position one day and given a leading part the next. I played every kind of character from juvenile to the funniest and nearly the most tragic thing that ever happened to me was the time I had to fill in the absence of another actor on only a few hours' notice. I had the stage to myself for about ten or fifteen minutes, and as I didn't know the lines, I had to improvise. The result was that I twisted things up so badly that not only the audience, but the people back of the stage caused such an uproar that it wrecked the show."

Pollard says that he has never spent a more enjoyable and profitable summer, or met nicer people than in the show business.

"I find that my University work has been invaluable to me in this profession. Besides academic training in study and concentration, it has helped me in interpreting character and in getting the other fellow's point of view."

MORE THESES FOR LIBRARY

Foreign Books and Pamphlets Arrive in Great Numbers.

The University Library has received thirty-six theses from the University of Halle; thirty-five from the University of Vienna, and twenty-six from the University of Copenhagen. All of them are in German and Danish. Most of those from Copenhagen are on medical subjects and will be bound and placed on the shelves.

The others will be put in the pamphlet room.

The University also has established exchange relations with the Government of Poland and now has thirty-seven titles of articles on the history and present conditions of Poland. Of these, four are in English: "The Polish Character of Upper Silesia"; "Land Reform in Poland"; "The Working Classes of Upper Silesia" and "The Great Battle on the Vistula."

Four volumes of the archives of the University of Lisbon have been received and thirty-one pamphlets and five books from Italy. The Italian literature was sent by H. Nelson Gay of Rome in exchange for material sent to the Library for American Studies of Italy. Mr. Gay is connected with the American Embassy at Rome and he is the author of two of the books and twelve of the pamphlets in the collection.

In this shipment, too, is an article on Protestant burial in Rome and the preservation of the graves of Keats and Shelley with a portrait of Keats after the original sepia drawing of Joseph Severn. It also contains a rare first edition of Giosue Carducci; a file, in two volumes, of El Piccolissimo, a children's magazine, and two volumes of a periodical, Le Rassegna Italiana.

INDIAN WEIGHS 642 POUNDS Full-Blood Caddo Measures 96 Inches Around Waist.

By United Press. CARNegie, Okla. (By Mail).—Big Bill, full-blood Caddo Indian, would like to reduce his weight 400 or 500 pounds. Big Bill, who is only 38, weighs approximately 642 pounds. His waist measurement is 96 inches. Ten yards of cloth are required to make him a shirt. Five men can comfortably stand in his trousers.

The Indian is rather bashful and spends most of his time in his tepee, at Gracemont, near here. Until he finds some good reducing recipe, Big Bill will probably remain in his tepee doing head work, according to his friends. His parents are small of stature, compared to him. His mother weighed 140 pounds and his father 160. And Bill likes small, dark-haired women, he said. He does not like the company of men but he does not mind having a woman around.

Big Bill went on an exhibition tour several years ago, but has since refuse d'fabulous offers from circuses and carnivals. It is impossible for him to travel in comfort, and he objects to curious persons pinching and slapping him to see if he is stuffed.

Big and Little Sister List Made.

A new list of big and little sisters is being made in the Y. W. C. A. office as the one compiled at the beginning of the term was lost before all of the calls had been made. A number of parties are being planned by big sister committees.
