BUTLER WEEKLY TIMES

J. D. ALLEN EDITOR.

J. D. ALLEN & Co., Proprietors.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The WEEKLY TIMES, published every Thursday, will be sent to any address one year, postage paid, for $1.00.

As day light is let in the defalcations of Cashier Colean, of the Ft. Scott bank, continue to pile up and his stealings now amount to nearly $50,000.

The state bank examiners are doing a good turn for both the people and the banks by weeding out the insecure and rotten little concerns in the state.

McKinley will not make a speech in Kentucky this fall and ex-president Harrison now declares that he was in no way responsible for the passage of the McKinley high tariff bill.

Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone, England's famous statesman, writes to a lady friend that he is opposed to local option and prohibition, but believes in free trade and high license.

Frank Hills, city editor of the Kansas City Journal, died Monday. He was a very popular young man and has held the position of city editor of the Journal for a number of years.

The bank that cannot stand a thorough inspection by the state bank examiner once a year ought to be closed. Solid banks court inspection and they don't care how often the inspector comes around.

NOT A POLITICIAN.

In our judgment the greatest compliment which could have been paid Judge DeArmond was uttered by Senator Vest when he said: "He (DeArmond) is a mighty good representative but a very poor politician. He is a profound student of political economy and the science of government, but he doesn't know much about practical politics."

Judge DeArmond has been very successful in politics but it has been through no scheming and political intrigues on his part, but, to their credit, our people, recognized his integrity and great ability, and it can be truthfully said that in no case has their confidence ever been violated. Practical politics, as practiced to-day, is no part of Judge DeArmond's stock in trade. He is frank to a fault in all his public utterances, represents his people as he sees their needs, attends strictly to his public duties and trusts to the honesty of the people to look after his political interests and they have never disappointed him.

The TIMES fully endorses the sentiment of the following paragraph taken from the Nevada Post: "Mr. Bland should study the situation very carefully before issuing instructions for a call of the central committee. The political control of Missouri will probably hang upon the harmony of the democratic central committee, and everything should be done to insure peace before making a declaration of war. The interests of the party demand caution, and the devotion of its members should be sufficient for the exercise of it."

A PLAIN STATEMENT.

The Bates County Populist makes the charge in it's last issue that the Postmaster at Butler is discriminating against that paper in his official capacity. It bases it's charge on an official card from the Butler Postmaster, addressed to the publisher of the Populist, notifying him that his paper addressed to Everett Drysdale had been refused. It publishes a card from Everett Drysdale denying that he had refused the paper, and then enters into a tirade of abuse of the postmaster which we have no intention to dignify by an answer. The acts of an officer in his official capacity should always be open to the inspection of the public, therefore we make this plain statement of facts: James and Everett Drysdale received their mail together from this delivery. Everett Drysdale, when he removed to Appleton City, ordered his mail sent to that address with the exception of papers and circulars, on which additional postage would have to be paid. The following card from Mr. James Drysdale, ex-county clerk, will explain why the Populist publisher was notified in the manner he was to discontinue his paper:

BUTLER, MO., 10-22, '95.

J. D. ALLEN, P. M.
I instructed you to refuse the Bates Co. Populist, coming to this office in the name of Everett Drysdale because Everett had left the city and Mr. Hackett, the editor of the Populist, had informed me that he would send the paper to his present address.

JAMES DRYSDALE.

The Butler Postmaster endeavors to have all the mail received at his office delivered to the persons to whom it is addressed and in his official capacity knows no political parties. We trust the editor of the Populist will have the manhood to acknowledge his error in this matter.

Turning the cold shoulder to Gov. Culbertson by the citizens of Dallas on account of his preventing the Corbett-Fitzsimmons mill in that state may gratify their personal spleen but does not elevate them in public esteem or creditably advertise that city abroad. The gallant and winning fight made against a horde of thugs and criminals who were about to invade his state by this courageous young governor should endear him to every Texan who would have the fair name of his state preserved.

It may be jingoism but we incline to the belief that the Monroe doctrine, properly construed, means the prevention by the United States, with force if necessary, foreign nations acquiring additional territory upon the American continent. To preserve this it is necessary that this government intervenes when a big bully from across the waters picks a quarrel with our little sister republics in South America in a disguised effort to acquire rich territory. The President and Secretary of State are to be commended for the firm stand they have taken in Venezuela's controversy with Great Britain.

There is considerable discussion just now going on in the papers as regards the status of the democratic state central committee in regard to the recognition by the old committee of the new members selected at the Pertle Springs convention. It is to be hoped the reported estrangement of members on this point is merely newspaper gossip. The most essential thing needed now in the ranks of the democratic party of the state is to get together and a fight in the central committee at this time would be a great detriment to the party.

This extract from Senator Vest's speech at Fayette last week has the true ring. It is democratic:

"I have no concealment about this matter. I will not be driven from the democratic party by any set of men. (Applause.) I have given my life to its principles. I will die in its faith. I will go into that convention and do all that I can to secure the nomination of some man who believes in bimetalism and in the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver; but I never cast my vote for any republican. (Laughter and applause. If the majority of my party over-ride me upon this question, I shall still remain a democrat, and support the nominee."

Maud Lewis, the woman charged with the murder of Senator Morrissey, of St. Louis, was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. Since the rendering of the verdict Andrews, the husband of the Lewis woman, now states that his confession that he killed Morrissey was a lie and told for the purpose of saving his wife.

Mr. Sherman complains that Grant, while president, took no interest in the country's financial matters. It might have been better for the country if Mr. Sherman had taken as little interest in them as Grant did.—Post Dispatch.

It is said that one of Miss Vanderbilt's gowns made in Paris, for the occasion of her marriage with the Duke of Marlborough, which takes place in a few days, is worth a block of buildings on Fifth avenue, New York.

Chancellor Leatherman, of Arkansas, has ruled that there is no law on the statute books of Arkansas to prevent a limited number of rounds in a glove contest. Governor Clark said he was not surprised at Leatherman's decision. "I will be surprised," he continued, "if the state of Arkansas has in it any person in the judiciary who will take the same view of it." In concluding the interview, the governor said, "I was never more determined to prevent the fight, and I am sure beyond peradventure that I will do so."

The congressional fight in the Eighteenth Illinois district promises to be the hottest political contest ever waged in the district or state. The headquarters of the democratic and republican state committees have been moved from Chicago to Litchfield to personally superintend the campaign. The democratic committee has secured the services of the following speakers who will stump the district: ex congressman Bryant, of Nebraska, ex congressman Fithian, Gov. Stone, of Missouri, congressman Champ Clark, Dick Bland, Senator Vest, congressman Hunter, Gov. Altgeld and others. The republicans will also put some big guns in the field to meet them and it is said the national committee has donated $20,000 to be used in the campaign.
