Miss Nora Kerstner was given a surprise Monday evening when a number of her friends "dropped in" to spend the evening, which was spent very pleasantly. Games and contests were enjoyed.

On Thursday evening the ladies of the Methodist church gave an entertainment in the basement of the church. The weather being very unfavorable, the audience was not large, but the entertainment was good. The program was well rendered, and the music by the orchestra, and also solos and duets by different parties was appreciated.

Candidates for city office are this time, interviewing citizens and presenting their claims to the voters. The contests for the various offices seem to be good natured and may the best man win.

New McKindree church was damaged during the storm Monday night. A lot of rock was displaced and fell to the ground. The damage is small. It is claimed that lightning struck it doing the damage.

James Alligood, a colored citizen of Jackson, was taken to the county farm last week. He had been acting, in a way recently, which made it necessary that he be placed under observation. He has a blind brother, who is at the county farm.

We understand that Senator Oliver of this city may be an applicant for appointment as United States district attorney. Mr. Oliver is an able lawyer, and with his experience at the bar, we are of the opinion that his selection would not be a mistake, but would be an honor well bestowed. We wish to see his appointment.

Mrs. Julius Saupé died at her home near New Wells, Saturday, on her 84th birthday. She is survived by five children, Theodore, Leo, Adolph, Joseph and Mrs. John Schneider, all of this county, also several grandchildren, her husband having died several years ago. Mrs. Saupé was a member of the New Wells Lutheran church. The funeral services were held Monday, conducted by Rev. Robert Winkler; interment at the New Wells Lutheran cemetery.

The Road Overseers meeting held here last Saturday was well attended, there being seventeen of the twenty overseers of the county present. Farm Adviser McWilliams, spoke of the necessity of good roads, as well as the benefits gained to the farming people by improvement of our highways. Engineer Scivally spoke of the necessity of co-operation of the overseers in order to secure the best results in improvement of the roads, which should be permanent. He showed the necessity of making the very best work, so that when once done, it would only need small repairs. He spoke of the work done, showing that there was spent last year on the 850 miles of road in the county, about $34,000, of which $4,700 was subscribed by the citizens of the county; that about $5,240 was poll tax, and that there are now many fine iron bridges and substantial culverts. Mr. Scivally's talk was interesting, and while he said there had been some mistakes made in the past, he promised that with the co-operation of the present force, to do much the present year to improve the roads. Evidently, he is the right man in the right place.

When anyone comes to our town grasp him by the hand and tell him what bright prospects the town has. Don't stand around like a lot of dressed up dummies before a clothing store and wear long faces with gloomy looks that see only the dark side of things. Above all, don't go whining around and make a shadow on the bluest sky. If you really have not the heart to speak a cheery word or lend your influence in behalf of your town, for mercy sake hide yourself when strangers come to visit us.

CHICKENS.

The Disadvantages of Many Breeds.
This is the season of the year when many people are buying high priced eggs from which to select next year's breeding stock. The flock that is not doing well is credited with a lack of vitality and the need of new blood when better feed and better care are often the only things that are lacking.

Promiscuous buying may be good for the breeder who has stock to sell, but is not good for the flock. No criticism is intended for the person who occasionally introduces an excellent bird of the same general blood lines as his own, but to the person who is continually trying to build up his flock by buying eggs first here and then there, ready to change breeds—or rather to mix breeds—just because someone recommended a different breed.

Without getting rid of the old, a new breed is added, the resulting mixture may be dignified by the term "hybrid," but they are better described by the more common term "mongrel." We must remember in making such crosses that we are liable to get the bad qualities of each breed as a combination of the good qualities.

Suppose we want winter layers. Many breeds have been developed until they are especially noted for the number of eggs they will lay out of the natural egg laying season, but to mix any two such breeds or to add them to any mixed lot of chickens gives rise to new combinations in which the winter egg laying character may be entirely omitted.

On the average farm there is room for only one breed of chickens. Let us select the breed we like the best; then improve it from year to year. The profitable life of a chicken is so short and they multiply so rapidly that there is no excuse for anyone keeping scrub stock.
