ORPHANS' HOME.

Judge W. W. Tarkington has received the following letter, which speaks for its self. We have not had time to publish a list of those donating:
St. Louis, Dec. 1, 1909.
Mr. W. W. Tarkington,
Hayti, Mo.
Dear friend:-
The generous contribution consisting of two barrels of fruit sent by the good people of your city was received today in splendid condition.
In the name of the destitute children committed to our care, I desire to thank you heartily and through you, every one who assisted in making this donation possible. The gift is surly a splendid one and words are inadequate to express our appreciation of same.
Again thanking you, one and all, and praying our Heavenly Father's richest blessing to rest upon you, I remain
Yours very truly,
C. C. Stahmann,
State Supt.

A Texas editor who refused to print the obituary of a man who did not take his home paper explained his action by saying that such people had long been dead already and their formal passing out of view is a matter of no public concern.
