There is not a candidate who was before the primary election August 4 who can say that the Herald did not accord him fair treatment. Even in the race between Bob Ward and Joe Russell, we never said a harm word of Mr. Russell. We said not a word about Senator Hawkins, and Al Hartly cannot say we were unfair to him, only we condemned his support from a certain source.
So far as we know, we have the good will of every candidate, both the elected and defeated, and we are sure they have our best will.
A primary election is what you might term "a family affair," and there should be no ill will.
We have had a clean, pleasant campaign, and now that it is over, we should all stand together as one people and support the nominees of our party. Like many others, we lost some votes, not because we did not like any man we voted against, but because we could not vote for all—we had to make a choice. Because the man of our choice might have been defeated is no excuse for us opposing the man who was successful.
Any man who will vote against a candidate because he opposed him in the primary cannot be a good democrat. We must submit to the will of the people, and any man who is not willing to submit to the will of the people, is a dangerous citizen and should be avoided.

GOD ACCUSED.

"* * * We still thank God that He directed our path to Hayti, where we are needed. * * * If there was ever a town on the face of the earth which needs us it is Hayti; if a county ever needed us more than Pemiscot, it was the one in which Sodom and Gomor-rah was located."—Chameleon Nutty Walker.

"De Lord directed my path to dat chicken coop, Judge," said a negro to the court. It is just as reasonable an excuse as Walker has for accusing God of directing his path to Hayti. There is just as much truth in the one instance as the other.

Before establishing their hell on earth the pietistic Kings commended their subjects to God.

And now in this enlightened day comes Chameleon Nutty accusing God with the heinous crime of directing his path to Hayti.

God had nothing to do with such a nefarious business. It was the work of the devil and his agents, and no other.

Perhaps it was God, instead of the good, honest, peace-loving citizens who kicked Chameleon out of Columbus, Ky., Portageville, Mo., and Anderson, Ind., or it was under God's direction he fleeced the socialists at Anderson, Ind., out of $1,000 and when they sued him he flew his kite—God directed him to forthwith leave Anderson?

Evil spirits usually come together and in his exit from Indiana where he was shouting God's name in his last desperate effort to fool the people he headed right into the saloons of Hayti, where the hand of God had directed him and where the hellish plot to import him here was concocted!

Did God do this?
Rather, the main motive power behind the move was Old Ben Allen's wind-work, which, with others, separated McElheny from $700 cash to pay the freight.

Who believes that Old Ben Allen is God, or was ever in any kind of partnership with God?
People who know him best and longest believe he is in league with the devil, for not once in all his wicked career has he ever served any other master. And then I. Kohn, who repudiates our Christ, is his right-hand bower.

The devil is at the bottom of the whole business. It was a dark plot in the beginning. Old Ben Allen's object in importing Walker here was to put the Herald out of business, and Walker accepted the contract. It was Old Ben Allen who told Walker he could make the Herald family walk out of town in a few weeks, and then he would have a clear field. Walker has done everything he could to fill his contract with the Allen gang, but the Herald still stands, and firmer than it did before they began their anarchistic fight against it. The most wicked, cruel and heartless assault ever made upon any man was made upon the editor of the Herald, and a man lower than a brute—a man who long ago should have answered to the unwritten law for having caused domestic troubles between man and wife, was their chief tool. They are still fighting us—stabbing from the dark, as usual. Is this God's work, reader? Did God ever send a man anywhere to do this kind of work? If this is God's ways of working, then our conception of a just God is all wrong.

If God directed Walker here, did he direct him to the saloons for months of debauchery and did he direct him to jump on us on the streets and get licked? The saloon people were the first he tried to "work"—did God direct him to do that? Possibly, in this instance, God was on the side of the saloon men, as their eyes were opened to the snares of the tempter and they bade Walker get to the rear.

If you remember, Walker had little to say about God directing his path anywhere until he tapped the Caruthersville "drys" for $100, but perhaps that was for the purpose of putting the saloons out of Hayti for another four years and retaining them in Caruthersville. Another fact: Before making his flop from "wet" to "dry," he was sure of two things—first, that he could graft the liquor people no further; second, that he had the "dry" peoples' money in his pocket before he flopped. This may be the way that God directs the path of some people, but pity such a God.

He recently published and sent through the mails a sheet saying that he withheld the names of certain ladies of this city from publication, because to do so subjected them to insults. Now he says Hayti is the most wicked city on earth since the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. If he means his own set he is doubtless correct.

What do you think about it, fellow citizens? Have you any respect for your town, your home, your wives and yourselves? Is this old villainous blackguard, libeler and defamer to be permitted to go unchecked, not only in his infamous assaults upon individuals he desires to destroy, but upon the city and community as a whole? As wicked as Sodom and Gomorrah he says of Hayti! He says to publish the names of certain ladies would subject them to insult. By whom? The men of Hayti.

Half of the earth is seething in war today on account of less insults than this. Is the matter of no consequence? Is our good name worth nothing?

And now this old reprobate insults the living God, by saying his path in search of mammon and booze was directed here by the hand of the Almighty. This shows that he knows no ends to which he will go to accomplish his hellish purpose.

We notice from the county election returns in the race for representative Mayes carried eight out of thirteen townships in the county. The republicans must have voted the democratic ticket at Deering and in Organ township.
