I. KOHN'S LIGHT PLANT.

From the beginning, it took Hayti about ten years to get electric lights, which is the first substantial step towards building a city, and, while there was at all times plenty of home capital to install the plant, very little was done until Bishop & Sharp of Marston started the ball to rolling, and when an election was held to vote the franchise, B. F. Allen and four others voted against it. After the plant was put in and seen to be a paying proposition, I. Kohn was among the first to want to buy stock, which he did, and now he is one of the chief managers of the concern.

But if Kohn can have his way the life of the electric lights in this city is destined to be short and we are destined soon to go back to darkness and to again wade through dog fennel and weeds along the streets instead of walking on concrete pavements, for Kohn is doing and has done more than any one else in this city to make the continuance of the lights an impossibility, for proof of which, turn to his paper, the Turncoat, where you will find the flaming ad of "The Quality Store," and that same paper says the saloons must go.

Now, when the saloons go from Hayti, what is Kohn going to do with his electric light plant?

If it was after the year 1920, the question might be answered with some degree of certainty, but until then, when the city hall indebtedness is to be disposed of, it must be saloons or no lights, for the very simple reason that the city would have no money with which to pay for the lights, and the plant would necessarily close.

At the full legal limit of taxation, 50 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, it takes a $200,000 assessment, and every penny of the taxes collected, to meet the city hall indebtedness, which is $1,000 a year, divided into $500 for the interest fund, and $500 for the sinking fund to redeem the bonds at maturity, and at the present time the sinking fund is $3,000 behind.

Don't take our word for it, but see the records for yourself.

What are you going to do about it, Kohn? It takes approximately $1,000 a year to pay your electric plant, and, since all the money derived from real estate and personal property goes to pay for the city hall, where will your $1,000 come in?

No one knows these facts better than Kohn—he knows the light plant cannot be run three months after the saloons are put out of Hayti—still he has done everything in his power to pamper, feed and encourage the Turncoat to put Hayti back like it was from 1906 to 1910, a period which he well remembers.

But Kohn is not alone in fostering this human leech upon the people of Hayti, as a glance over its advertising columns will prove. Of course Kohn will deny, as he always does and as men of his class always do, that he has anything to do with the Turncoat, but he was one of the chief instigators in importing it here and in keeping it here after it came, and he has also been one of the chief conspirators, under the influence of his negro loving harlot, in the infamous efforts to put the Herald out of business.

"Doc" Crow, squib composer on the Jefferson County Republican, reeled off the following bit of logic in a recent issue: "The cost of high living has about got us on the hummer, it may be alright to lay it on to W. J. Woodrow and Co., but the people are somewhat to blame themselves. The Captain can remember when such a thing as automobiles were unknown. Telephones, electric lights and dozens of other luxuries were unknown. The baby was rocked in a cracker box and lugged around in any old way. Now he is hauled around in a rubber-tired buggy, and where formerly he had about clothes enough to wad a shot gun, now he has a whole wardrobe. We had meat once a day and biscuits on Sunday. Now it's a porterhouse, sirloin or rib roast every day, with coffee to wash it down and pie to top it off. The old fashion fireplace has given way to the base burner and the kitchen range, while the homespun carpet is supplanted by the Brussels and Axminster. Sowbely and beans are unknown and corn-bread only occupies a place in history. We used to eat what we couldn't sell. Now we sell what we can't eat. We used to go to town with a home made market basket and carry our stuff back. Now we call up over telephone and have a delivery wagon to deliver it to us. We are going some, believe me."—Ex.

For the past few years, the curfew law in this city has been a dead letter. In fact, it has not been enforced to any extent since Lum Lefler was marshal, and the law was omitted from the Revised Ordinances of 1911. About sixteen years ago the town first promulgated the curfew law, on account of the newspaper then demanding such for the welfare of the young boys. There is just as much or more need of such a law now than then and we are just as much or more in favor of it, and it is a source of keen regret to know that our city has been taking so little interest in the boys who are now growing up and soon to become men. There are few cities of any size that do not have a curfew law.

The film censors of the State of Kansas have tabooed moving pictures depicting hilarious wine suppers, glittering scenes of bar rooms and meanderings of the old-town drunkard, and a film containing pictures in which a young man at a New York cabaret drinks wine from a dancer's slipper while she sits on his lap, was the first one to be classed as unfit. Other films were censored because of bar-room and gambling scenes. The only drinking scene admitted was of a man who drank from a wine-glass at his dinner. One in which a drunken man appeared was stricken out.

A STORY OF LONG SUFFERING

Indiana Lady's Deliverance Effected At The Eleventh Hour.

Alfordsville, Ind.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Vada Street says: "For over eight years, I suffered from almost every ailment known to my sex.

I would have such severe pains in my back, every month, that I would be in bed two or three days.

At such times I would be so nervous that I could hardly stand to have anyone walk across the floor.

I tried a lot of different medicines, but nothing I ever tried did me so much good as Cardui, the woman's tonic.

I have taken three bottles of Cardui, and the last three months I haven't suffered any pain at all, and I do not have those awful nervous spells.

Had I only known of this wonderful medicine eight years ago, I could have saved many dollars, and days of pain and sorrow.

I advise every woman who has the least symptom of womanly trouble, to take Cardui."

Lady Reader, have you any of these symptoms? If so, we urge you, as Mrs. Street does, to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

It is composed of purely vegetable ingredients—and can do you no harm. It is almost sure to do you good.
