SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Streiff of this city rounded out twenty-five years of happy married life last Sunday by celebrating the anniversary with a silver wedding, to which their immediate family and quite a number of intimate friends were invited and attended.

In order that the hospitality of the occasion may be comprehended, a little of the history of these two estimable people should be known.

Both were born and spent their youth on the other side of the Atlantic. Not in the same land, nor are they of the same nationality. Peter Streiff was born July 12, 1865, at Maxstadt, Alsace Lorraine, France, where the purple grapes, kissed by the warm south sun, are converted into red wine, and where art and science and music reach full flower; where every man is a gentleman, and where repast and feast knows no bounds. Mrs. Streiff, who was Magdalire Trapp, was born September 6, 1869, at Medelsheim, Bavaria, Germany, the land of thrift, in industry and education.

Peter Streiff sailed for America 29 years ago, while Miss Trapp, the young lady destined to become his bride, followed one year later. Next, these two young people met in Memphis, Tennessee, and were married there November 24, 1891. So France and Germany were wed in America, and here have lived and prospered and raised their family.

Of people of such ancestral origin, and of love that followed its course across the sea, much of the perfection of life might be expected, but no one not present at the celebration of their silver wedding could know the height of enjoyment and good things these people could provide for such an occasion.

The tables, which were laden with life's luxuries, such as only those having the experience garnered from the culinary arts of two continents know how to provide, together with the whole-hearted hospitality the guests were made to feel, gave to the occasion a charm that only those present can know. Columns might be filled with words attempting to describe the various tasty and unique features provided, but language is not sufficient to tell of the cheer and good-will of these two happily married people, as they received their guests and bade them welcome, so mention of the bare details must suffice, leaving the reader to picture the event in his or her own way.

By reference to the date of married life of Mr. and Mrs. Streiff, it will be observed the calendar anniversary fell two days prior to the celebration of Sunday, to wit, November 24, but in order that friends would have better opportunity of attending, the occasion was postponed until Sunday, as stated. Another event of no minor importance, at least, to another member of the Streiff family, namely, Miss Katherine, also fell on the 24th, that being the 19th birthday of the young lady. This event was therefore automatically celebrated in the chimes of the silver wedding bells that echoed again the truth of her French German parentage.

Mr. and Mrs. Streiff are the parents of ten children, eight of whom are living, their names being, John, Katherine, Peter Jr., Lena, August, Elizabeth, Herman and Evelyn. John, the eldest, is married and lives at Pascola, but was present with the rest of his brothers and sisters Sunday.

The reception was held from 3 to 8 p. m. At 5 p. m. dinner was served, covers being laid for twenty five, thus carrying out the theme of the anniversary. Two tables were tiled. Misses Katherine Streiff, and Marguerite Friderich of Caruthersville presided at the punch bowl. Two large cakes, one for the silver wedding, the other for Miss Streiff's birthday, adorned the tables, and were much enjoyed by the participants of the feast. After dinner Mr. Streiff served French Bruloo, also the gentlemen with cigars; and, having all these years kept some whiskey made by his mother in France, those who cared to were given the liberty of tasting the rare product. It was 47 years old, having been made in 1869.

Another incident to increase the enjoyment of the occasion was the rendition of several choice pieces of music by the Hayti Hussar Band. For this added pleasure credit is due, not only the band, but also to Bernie Stockmann, who "showed the boys the way." After Bernie had had a sip of that 47-year old spirits of the old world, brewed from the grain that ripened in the valley of the Moselle, the angels of his mind came out and rollicked on the rosy lips of the sunset clouds, for the God of Day hung low in the west, and to him the thought came: But one thing is lacking to make the occasion complete—music—why not have that? So Bernie, upon his own hook, invited the boys over, and they came. Nothing more could be added, for the day was perfect—one that lingering summer had left over for the occasion, with the warm breath of the south wind filling the land, and the sunset glorified by the red clouds that floated like phantom ships across a sea of limpid blue.

Those present, as well as the many friends absent, will join the Herald in the wish that this happy couple may live to see many returns of their wedding anniversary, and that life's way, as they journey together, may be strewn with the flowers of love, such as has thus far bloomed so abundantly and sweetly for them.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Juden, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. B. Stockmann, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klinkhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klinkhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Friderich, Caruthersville; Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Klinkhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lingemann, Mrs. John Friderich, and children, Caruthersville; Misses Hazel Shaw, Marguerite Friderich and Ethel Sisk, and Arthur Cottam and Robert Murphy, Caruthersville; Dan Dortch and O. S. Popham.

The following presents were received:

Silver tablespoons, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Buckley; silver tablespoons, Dan Dortch; silver syrup stand, Mr. and Mrs. B. Stockmann; silver mustard receiver, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klinkhardt; silver butter knife, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Juden; silver tablespoons, Mr. and Mrs. John Friderich, Caruthersville; silver cream ladle, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klinkhardt; silver ice tea spoons, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Friderich, Caruthersville; silver celery set, Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Mullen; silver cheese tray, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Popham; silver cheese knife, Arthur Cottam, silver sugar shell, Robert Murphy, Caruthersville; silver crumb trays, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Klinkhardt; silver knives and forks, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Averill; silver butter tray Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Meate; silver berry spoons, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Bales, Pascola; silver salt, pepper and mustard stand, Miss Katherine Streiff and Peter Streiff Jr.

Miss Streiff received several nice, useful birthday presents.

The expert from the MAJESTIC factory who will have charge of the SPECIAL MAJESTIC DEMONSTRATION during the week commencing Dec. 11, will expect to see every boy and girl at our store between 3 and 5 in the afternoon. R. C. Rinehart and a photographer of Kennett were in our city Monday taking views of the best enterprises of Hayti, with the purpose of forwarding them to John H. Watkins of New York City, he being the owner of the light companies in this part of the country.

Oh, you good, pure home made hog lard. It can be found at The National Cash Meat Market at 18 cents per pound. Why pay more for an inferior grade?

Jack Green of Steele was up to our city Tuesday shaking hands and looking after some business matters. He also was trying to purchase some hay from our good farmers. We are glad to have Steele buyers visit our city.

John T. Buckley was in Caruthersville Tuesday as a witness before the circuit court.

SCHOOL NOTES.

By W. H. JOHNSON, Superintendent

The Freshman class held a social at the school building Friday evening, the teachers assisting with the program. These social gatherings for the High School students, coming on Friday evenings after the week's work is completed, and then not too much of a protracted nature, will certainly furnish wholesome social recreation for our young people. Young folks need some time for social life, but it should come at the close of the week, so as not to interfere with the preparation of lessons for the next day. Students cannot do the work when social affairs are allowed to come between them and their school work. There should be a close understanding between parents, teachers and students in regard to these matters. The public school should be not only a place for work and close application to studies, but also a place for recreation at the proper time.

The public school teachers of Pemiscot county meet with us next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. We certainly feel honored by having them meet with us.

Some of the school boys, Mr. Brooks and the writer will go out on the annual Thanksgiving camping trip, which has become so popular with those composing the party. A complete equipment for three days' outing will be carried, especially meat, bread and other delicacies of the table.

An account of Patrons' Meeting will be given in next week's issue of the Herald. Were you present? Why not?

The floors in those rooms which were not oiled at the beginning of the term, will be given a good coat of oil Friday and Saturday. This will help solve the dust problem in these rooms. Miss Hill was unable to meet

Oates-Allen.

The Herald this week takes pleasure in surprising the many friends in this city and community of the marriage of J. V. Oates of this city and Miss Violet K. Allen of Cape Girardeau.

The event is the culmination of a romance that started several years ago when Mr. Oates entered the Normal at Cape Girardeau, forming the acquaintance of this estimable young lady.

The ceremony was performed at Cape Girardeau Sunday, November 26th, by Rev. Scruggs, pastor of the First Baptist Church of that city.

The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, a trained nurse of the Cape, and Miss Allen at the time of her marriage was holding a very nice position as bookkeeper for Buckner Ragsdale Company, one of the largest department stores of that city. She was a favorite among the younger set of her home town, and her friends will be sorry to lose her society.

Mr. Oates is a native Haytian, being the son of Mrs. S. L. Oates, an old pioneer citizen. He is held in the highest esteem by those who know him, and those are the business men and general public of Hayti. He is honest, and the Herald can commend him to his choice. At the present he is also a bookkeeper for the Arkansas Grocer Co., at Blytheville, Ark.

We are informed the young people will be at home to their friends and acquaintances at Blytheville in about two months.

The Herald is pleased to join in extending congratulations and well wishes for a prosperous, and a happy life.

her classes two days this week. A few more came back from cotton picking this week. We see several who are still out of school, and are working but little or none. These should be in school, now. Why wait till after vacation, and miss this month of school?

Mostly About HATS

Right now in the middle of the season we must close out our stock of ladies' and children's hats to make room for our immense line of Holiday goods, which is coming in. So if you want anything in the millinery line, show us what it is, and the price will surprise you.

BUCKLEY'S

ANNOUNCEMENT Extraordinary

Yes, we are open with a new and complete line of the best and newest stock of general merchandise. Absolutely everything new from floor to ceiling, except the boss, and you've bought many a dollars' worth of dependable merchandise from him. After a few months out of the general merchandise business, we are again entering the field, and ask all our old friends to trade with us again, not merely from friendship, but for the difference in our prices and quality and newness of goods.

We intend to carry everything, from a dress pin to a suit of clothes or a barrel of flour—then why not do your trading where you can confine your entire account? That's convenience, and that convenience doesn't cost one cent more. We want every person in Hayti and surrounding territory to understand we will deem in a favor for your visit. A visit means to look over our goods—that means a purchase; a talking for you. Thanks, we'll give you another talk next week.
