Ugh! Calomel Sickens; Salivates! Please Try Dodson's Liver Tone

I am sincere! My medicine does not upset liver and bowels so you lose a day's work.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children as well.

A RAP FOR THE "NAGGERS"

Tired of the continuous attacks on the Administration from the Republican side of the House, former Speaker Champ Clark rose in his place the other day and made a brief but pointed rejoinder. "Two can play at this game of political harpooning," he declared. "It has been one-sided long enough. We Democrats have sat here day after day and listened to you nag, and nag. You have found fault with everybody and everything, basing your charges on groundless assumptions. I am growing exceedingly weary of so many gentlemen devoting so much time to nagging and criticising, whether they know anything about what they are discussing or not. If they do not quit it, I am going to get time enough here some day to dress off the whole crowd of naggers."

Press dispatches say the ex-speaker's deliverance was greeted by the House with "vigorous applause and laughter. It is likely, however, that his warning will go unheeded by the Republicans, who apparently feel they must make up for the "nagging" opportunities lost during the wartime sessions, when many of them supported the very measures with which they are now finding so much fault. The "nagging" activities of the House are harmless enough by comparison with the "sniping" activities of Republican leaders in the Senate. The oral barrage in the lower branch does not at worst interrupt nor interfere with the process of peace-making. But it is annoying, of course, and it represents a waste of time and energy and ingenuity that could profitably be devoted to much better uses.

It is only fair to say the House is displaying greater diligence in the handling of public business than the Senate has displayed to date and is on the whole, wasting less time in "political harpooning." But it has less excuse for its nagging, perhaps, than the Senate has, because of its plans for sweeping investigations of the war. Those investigations are, as tacitly conceded by candid Republicans, largely political in their character. Republicans hope to collect, through them, large supplies of campaign thunder. Inasmuch as they are organizing a political investigation, why should the Republicans waste the time now urgently needed for other and better business in continuous nagging, largely based, as Mr. Clark suggests, on "groundless assumptions." The naggers might wisely rest their voices until their investigation committees dig up something about which they might "nag" intelligently, and the country would welcome the rest.
