

You Will Be Proud Of This Wagon

When you hitch your team to a new John Deere Wagon you can be assured that the same proud feeling of ownership will still exist even after the wagon becomes old and scarred through years of hard use.

JOHN DEERE FARM WAGON

As you use this wagon, the fact that it is made of the best materials, that it "stands up" under severe strains, and that it pulls lighter than any ordinary wagon, will manifest itself from day to day — and you'll realize that you made a "good buy" when you got this John Deere Wagon from us.

Here are the reasons why this is a light draft wagon — the wheels carry the correct dish; the axles have accurate gather so that the wheels run straight ahead — there is no binding or dragging; all the skains have the proper pitch so that the heaviest load is carried on plumb spokes.

This is the guaranteed wagon. Drop in at our store the next time you are in town and look at this wagon. Ask us about the John Deere Guarantee.

RESTRICTIONS CONCERNING WEARING OF U. S. UNIFORMS

To preserve the dignity of the army, navy and marine uniforms, the department of justice of the United States, Washington, D. C., has sent out instructions to all United States marshals regarding the law regulating the wearing of the uniform.

There are certain provisions which if complied with, make it possible for persons not in the service to wear army coats, hats and overcoats. The law provides that men not in the service may not wear what is distinctive parts of the regulation uniform. The distinctive parts are classified as follows: Uniform buttons, cap ornaments, collar insignia of rank or grade, white and olive drab caps, hat cords, overcoats, officers' white coats, army nurses' overcoats and capes. Parts not considered distinctive are, underclothing, trousers, shirts, leggings, breeches, boots, working clothes of denim, raincoats, puttees, hats, gloves and cravats. A hat is not considered distinctive and may be worn provided the hat cord is left off. An army overcoat may be worn, provided the buttons are changed and the coat dyed an entirely different color. —Dunklin Democrat.

CONDEMN HIGH PRICED STOCK FOODS

Prominent Hog Raiser Says Prices Charged are Unwarranted— Makes his Own Hog Food, With Better Results.

"That he is all through paying fancy prices for stock foods and hog remedies and that he is raising some of the best hogs ever placed on the market" was the statement made recently by E. H. Beckstead, well-known hog raiser and authority on live stock.

Mr. Beckstead's hogs are the envy of his neighbors, and have "topped the market" for several years in Iowa. He states that for years he bought high-priced hog foods and hog remedies, but he is all through paying extravagant prices for what he can make himself. He states that what the hogs need are minerals, and tells the secret of his wonderful success by explaining that he takes about five pounds of ordinary mineraline (which is pure concentrated minerals and cost only a couple of dollars) and mixes same with enough bran or filler to make a hundred pounds. All hogs, especially brood sows, require minerals as they keep them free from worms and in the pink of condition, and are essential to the hogs growth and a well balanced ration. This inexpensive mixture placed in a sheltered box where the hogs can get at it as they need it, will produce far better results than any high priced so-called stock foods.

Send two dollars to The Mineraline Chemical Co., 1678 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., and they will forward you by prepaid parcel post, enough Mineraline to make a full hundred pounds. (Adv.) 11-14

ADVERTISING AND SET PRICE

"The value of the rural press is not realized by one farmer in a hundred. By this I mean that the farmer is slow to take advantage of the profits which the publicity of the press place at his command in the disposal of blooded stock, the exchange of animals and the disposal of seed grains. There is no reason why the farmer should not avail himself of the advertising columns of the paper as well as the village merchant. By using printers' ink there are many instances where the products of the farm might be sold without the loss of time incidental to taking the same to market and there disposing of it at a price named by the other fellow."

EARLY BIRDS

It is easy to tell that spring is nearly here:

Almost any day you can see some one of our energetic citizens out sizing up his home premises, speculating on what can be done to improve its appearance this summer.

It is a good sign when people are so quick to take up such matters. It speaks well for them and indicates that the community is fortunate in having them for residents.

Just keep your eyes open, spot the early birds in the improvement line, and see if you can't go them one better.

Then we'll say the same of you.

A few mornings ago, just after the heavy rains, when the atmosphere was heavy with dampness and the whole world looked as if it had been draped in mourning for a lost friend; we came down to work with lagging steps, a headache and sore at the whole world. We felt that we had no friends, wanted none and everything could go to the blink for all we cared. We were living in a dead, hick town, everybody was nuts, we had no money and didn't know where to find any. Just at this point the front door flew open and in walked a well known citizen of Hayti. This man is a successful business man, no doubt many who read this article are better off financially than the party herein referred to, but he is a most successful man nevertheless. Success is not measured in dollars and cents alone, but we would rather have it that success consists of having a broad and clear vision of the future, a calm understanding of the present and a happy facility of standing in the deep valley thru sorrows and business reverses and with hopeful hearts strain our eyes thru the black clouds of doubt over into the land where the sun is shining. But, back to the point, this man came in, he began to boost for Hayti, he began to boost the business men of Hayti, he began to boost the whole blamed country, and its citizens and when he had left his footsteps had hardly passed beyond hearing before we were whistling and had forgotten our fancied troubles. Such is life. The brief visit of this man did good, he had sowed the seed of cheerfulness and goodwill and had made a dark day one of brightness. All of us can be boosters. A gloom-chaser—it costs nothing and we can make the world happier and ourselves included with very little effort. Why don't you give it a trial?

Under date of January 24th the St. Louis Times publishes an excellent editorial, "A Miscalculating Preacher." The writer of said article shows at least a passing acquaintance of one passage of scripture, which would cause a close reader of the Times editorial columns to wonder.

A town grows by its reputation. A small town with a lot of active and ardent boosters stands a better chance of growth than a large one which is simply satisfied and whose people never make any effort to build it up.

The value of an estate is gauged by the amount of debt that must be paid out of it.

Young men sometime remind us of a clock on the gallup—they are entirely too fast.

Deeds count most in the long run, but some men achieve temporary fame by what they don't do.

PASCOLA NEWS

February 5th, Jeff Roland of this place closed his store and the goods were sold to the highest bidder. Jeff Roland, Jr., came up from Memphis and helped his father with the sale. The big sale started Feb. 5th, and closed Monday at noon. Failure on the part of Mr. Roland's creditors to pay their debts is given as the reason for his assignment.

Jeff Roland severely cut himself on a plate glass window a few days ago and as a result was confined to his bed, but we understand he is able to be up now.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were at the sale bidding against each other on a broom, but at the wind up Mrs. Cook bought the broom for a small price. A small box of crackers were bid off to Louie Potts for 3c. He said his chickens had gone hungry long enough.

Leo Shaffer, the justice of the peace, when there is no peace in this town, the blacksmith and picture show man is having quite a few good pictures lately. He is showing now a serial, Eddie Polo in the "Vanishing Dagger." This picture gives you a chance to see nearly all parts of the world, England, Scotland, America and many other countries. Last Saturday night he showed Louis Danny in the U. S. A., a thrilling war picture.

J. W. Sout, constable of Pascola Township, is now making a clean up with the bootleggers. Last Thursday Jess Rey was captured at the steps of the Ham train with two fruit jars of whiskey, one under each arm. Gale Day, the deputy sheriff, took Jess to the moving picture show and Jess seemed to be quite interested in the picture of Eddie Polo, but became more interested when the "Mermaids of California" were put on the screen. Friday Jess filled bond and given his freedom until the day of his trial.

Miss Algene Ross of Hayti, was here Sunday visiting some of her girl friends. Miss Algene is now one of the teachers of the Hayti Grammar School and has many friends through out the county.

A very heavy rain fell in Pascola Sunday night and flooded the streets of the town, and floating the sidewalks away. The principal of the Pascola Schools began to wonder how he was going to get to school, so he sent his brother to get a pair of gum boots.

The Pascola Baptist Sunday school is increasing very rapidly and having a good attendance each Sunday. On the beginning of this year there were 49 enrolled, and the following officers elected for this year: Mrs. Rhetta Young, teacher of Class 2; Mrs. Coram of Junior Class 3; Mrs. Jeffres, of the Bible Class and Miss Olive Jeffres, of the Card Class. Mr. Jeffres was elected president; and Val LeSueur, secretary and treasurer.

Dr. F. A. Elders, a prominent physician of Hayti, was in this city Tuesday attending to professional business.

Constable J. W. Stout and Gale Daye, Deputy Sheriff and Delbert Stout made a raid on a moonshine still near Yama and captured several gallons of "Yamabrew." The still was brought to Pascola, thus eliminating its operation. The above named officers are exerting every effort to function in their dutiful capacity.

Jeff Roland, Jr., has returned to this city and will open a grocery store in the Wahl brick building near the station.

GREENVILLE MAN HAS A CAPTURED VIOLIN

Columbus Barks of Greenville, Mo., owns an interesting old violin with an unique story. It was captured by his father during the civil war when a riderless horse came tearing across the Union lines. The violin was wrapped in an army blanket, bound to the saddle. When the young private, who was musically inclined, turned the horse over to an officer, he obtained permission to keep the violin and carried it with him throughout the remaining months of the war.

The instrument seems to have been made of excellent material, otherwise it would never have survived its treatment, according to the present owner. His father, he says, never had a case for it, and frequently it was soaked with rain. Later on, as the property of the son, the present owner, it was carried, still without a case to all the neighborhood dances. It furnishes music now at the parties of the grandchildren of the young soldier who captured it.

On its back is the coat of arms of the United States and the figures "1540."—Mo. State Journal.
