

The most charming Summer Resorts of which there are over three hundred choice localities...

The finest shooting grounds in the Northwest are on and tributary to the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry.

A Trick of the Trade. "Why is it that you write your bills on rose paper with perfumed envelopes?"

Satisfactory. She—Darling, do you love me? He—Kissing her rapturously and repeatedly—Do I? I wish you were a two-headed girl.

The Providence Line, the well-known and popular summer route between New York and Boston and all Eastern points...

Some time ago, Prof. Parese, of Athens, was surprised at being relieved of a tapeworm after a very free use of castor-oil.

SYRUP OF FIGS. ONE ENJOYS. Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste...

"German Syrup". Here is an incident from the South—Mississippi, written in April, 1890, just after the Grippe had visited that country.

MAGIC CURE FOR MEN ONLY. $500 for a case of LOSS OF PALENESS, MAJORITY, General or Nervous Debility, retained or lost, or mind, the effects of excess in old or young that we cannot cure. Five dollars every year or refund every dollar.

MEN LIVED LIKE BRUTES.

A PICTURE OF THE HOME-LIFE OF PAST AGES.

The Native American, Before Civilization Stepped in to Bring New Ideas to the Children of Nature, Then Unadorned.

From what we know of the savage world over we may reasonably conclude that the sacred, indissoluble bond of marriage is of very recent growth, comparatively, says a noted archaeologist.

There is an intimate connection of aboriginal American architecture with the social life. The manner of house building grew out of the manner of life, but there was one underlying principle in its adaptation to a certain mode of communal living...

The mothers and children in these habitations were of the same clan; the fathers belonged to different clans. A system of woman's rights prevailed.

The clan had the right to adopt strangers and name its members. The clan always took the name of some animal as its totem, or rude heraldic device.

Now the Mojaves and Tunis of Arizona and other tribes of Mexico and Central America were at least one ethical period nearer civilization than the Iroquois.

Professor Giard brings to remembrance a large number of most interesting illustrations in support of the Lamarckian view that acquired characters may be inherited.

"THANK YE, JOHNNY."

How a Confederate Rendered a Great Service to a Union Soldier.

Our brigade was changing positions at Stone river so as to cover the exposed flank of another brigade, when I suddenly sank down in a heap, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press.

JUDAS ISCARIOT.

The Probable Origin of His Name—Some Legends About Him.

There is no doubt or ambiguity with regard to the earliest part of Judas Iscariot's name, says the New Orleans States. Judas is merely the Greek or Hellenistic form of the Hebrew "Judah," familiar to everybody.

With regard to his birth, legend and myth are as copious as is conjecture with regard to his name. Here are two of them, for which we are immediately indebted to Moncreu Conway.

In the apocryphal "Gospel of the Infancy" it is related that a demoniac boy, brought to the child Jesus, strikes him, whereupon Jesus weeps, and Satan comes out of the boy in the shape of a furious dog.

It was very seldom that even the worst of the army bummers had the cheek to play the ghost in broad daylight, and that with fighting still going on, but this fellow went about as coolly as you please.

"What have you got?" "About $10 in money," I replied. "Shell out and be—quick about it, too!"

"My friend, don't be rough on a wounded man. If you'll raise me up I'll try to get it for you."

Between the mouth of the Mississippi river and Galveston, Tex., 10 or 15 miles south of Sabine Pass, is a spot in the Gulf of Mexico which is commonly called "The Oil Ponds."

There is no land within 15 miles; but, even in the wildest weather, the water at this spot is comparatively calm, owing to the thick covering of oil which apparently rises from the bed of the Gulf.

One of the peculiarities of New York is the number of well-groomed old men. In the west, and in many other eastern cities, the old men seem to get careless about dress, about their beard, about the length of their hair.

A farmer of Carrollton, Ga., while cutting wood lately, found something unexpected in a perfectly sound piece of wood. He was cutting when three live frogs jumped out.

Time to Go.

The Ideal Kiss.

Now, this is an ideal kiss, says an old writer. The woman's head should rest lightly on the masculine shoulder.

Johnny's Great Head.

Miss Billy—"You must be very fond of reading, Johnny; I never seen you without a book."

Local Manager—"Wal' that's all right. He ain't here, is he?"

Local Manager—"Sh! Not so loud! Here, climb out this window and get it. I'll be out and hold 'em back till we strike the city limits. Then they'll have to look out for yourself."

Old Things Are Best. It was her third season out, and De Ville, who was watching the "buds," found it hard to talk to her.

Compulsory Contributions. Western preacher (as he gets the drop on his congregation with a six-shooter): "Brother Williams will now go through the pockets of the brethren and collect three hundred dollars back salary that is now due me, while we all join in singing the long-meter doxology."

Time Brings Changes. Messenger Boy—"Where's the man what sent me out with this here message?"

Come Not, Unhappy Day. Diggs—"Was that pretty girl your sister that you had with you at the concert night before last?"
