Cowpea Hay For Dairy Cows

What about the hay crop? Will you have plenty of good forage for next winter or will you be forced to fall back on straw or crab grass hay? Cows cannot maintain their milk yields unless fed liberally of the right kinds of feeds. These feeds must contain a relatively large amount of protein. This is furnished most cheaply in forage. It is not found in sufficient quantities for milk cows in timothy, prairie grass, crab grass, sorghum, or straw, but is found in cowpea, soy bean, alfalfa or clover hay.

Cowpea hay has about the same feeding value as alfalfa and is some better than clover. Cowpeas can be sown after wheat or oats, and will generally mature enough to cut for hay before frost. As soon as the crop which they are to follow is removed stubble land should be doubled disced and then harrowed to make the best possible seed bed. The seeding can be done with an ordinary grain drill using the out cups wide open. This will sow at the rate of 4 or 5 pecks to the acre.

It is best to cut the peas for hay when the first pods ripen, shocking them in narrow high shocks the day after cutting, and allowing to cure in the shock for a couple of weeks. With favorable weather the hay will be ready to bale, stack or mow away at the end of that time. Rains do not harm the hay very much when in the shock.

On average soil sown as indicated above in an average season, cowpea hay makes about a ton per acre. Farmers with dairy cows or any live stock should sow as much as possible on stubble or any other vacant land. Now is the time to get ready to sow.

For Experiment's Sake

Mushrooms are a favorite dish with a certain professor, whose son is an ardent and clever botanist. The other day the young man brought home some of the edible fungi, and asked his mother to have them cooked for his father's supper. When the professor saw the laden dish he was very pleased.

"What are these all for me?" he asked, not wishing to appear greedy.

But his son would not have a single one.

Next morning the professor found his son hanging about on the landing outside his bedroom door.

"Hallo, father! And how do you feel this morning?" asked the son.

"Very well, indeed, my dear boy."

"Sleep all right? Didn't have any pains through the night?"

"Of course not. I slept like a top. Why?"

"Hurrah, hurrah!" cried the enthusiast. "Then I have discovered another species which are not poisonous!"—St. Louis Star.

Miss Missouri Sprout was unable to render her solo last night at the church she having contracted a severe cold at the moving picture show the other evening following the scene through a winter snow-storm. Tom Pinch in St. Louis Times.

Obituary

One more of our friends and loved ones has been called from our midst to her reward. Mrs. Flora Alice beloved wife of John H. Patterson who was summoned to leave us Saturday, May 4, 1912. The writer officiated at the funeral held at Glen Allen Sunday afternoon, May 5. Her remains were interred in Glen Allen cemetery.

The beautiful of all the beautiful is to see two lives who love each other, go to the marriage altar to join their joys and sorrows of life. This was done by Mr. Patterson and Miss Flora Alice Shrum five years ago.

Mr. Patterson said, I was the happiest man in all the world then, but now as I lay her away, my dearest wife, I am more than touched with grief. I am convinced more than ever of the realms of immortality. I know she is resting today. My sorrows and pain have been turned into her joy and beauty.

It is very difficult to part from her, but the memory of her love and devotion sufficeth until we join glad hands on the ever green banks of eternity.

She was solicitous for her church, interested in humanity and devoted to her God.

Her leaving has made a void and desolate place in many lives, but thanks be to God her conflict with mortal affairs is over and she is beckoning us on to the realms of glory. W. E. SAVILLE, Pastor.
