FIRE PROTECTION FOR RURAL COMMUNITIES.

FIRE COMPANIES AMONG FARMERS

PLANNED BY COUNTY AGENTS

Estimated That Quarter of Million Dollars' Worth of Grain Was Saved Last Year—Wider Field of Usefulness Seen.

A smoke smudge on the horizon in the country no longer means certain and complete loss.

At least, this is true in 15,000 square miles of California where 6,000 farmers have enlisted in rural fire companies, equipped with trailer fire carts, stationed at strategic points and ready to meet the fire peril when it appears. The plan was developed by the county agricultural agents, in cooperation with the forest service of the United States department of agriculture, and it is estimated that a quarter of a million dollars' worth of grain was saved through it during the summer of 1918. The plan was devised for the purpose of reducing losses in grain fields and on grass ranges, but department of agriculture specialists believe it might be given a much wider field of usefulness in the protection of practically all kinds of farm property from loss by fire.

Under the California plan the county farm bureau becomes the central fire protection agency. A local fire company was formed at each community farm bureau center, and the members pledged themselves to respond instantly to the call of fire. Each community elected a "fire boss" who was commissioned as a deputy state fire warden, and a "fire dispatcher," whose duty it is to remain at the telephone during fires to give information and obtain help.

Trailers Carry Equipment.
In most of the communities a two-wheeled trailer fire cart was obtained. These trailers are of simple construction, may be attached to any automobile, and are completely equipped with chemical fire extinguishers, water cans filled with wet sacks, with forks and shovels, and with a container for drinking water for the fire fighters. The trailer is kept at the cross roads or other most accessible point in the community, and the first automobile passing on the way to a fire hits the trailer and takes it along. Out of the 300 rural fire companies organized in California last year, 257 are equipped with such trailers.

The saving of a quarter of a million dollars in a single season in this limited territory is an indication of what might result if the plan were generally adopted in communities where conditions are such as to make it workable. There are some rural communities where such a plan might not be advisable, but in the majority, perhaps, it would be workable. Prior to the extensive spread of the farm bureau system, which came primarily as a war measure during 1917 and 1918, it would not have been possible since it is necessarily a co-operative community activity. But the farm bureau system has come to stay, and it affords the sort of co-operative effort of which community fire protection may well be a part.

Similar Need Elsewhere.
Throughout a dozen or more states, there exists a need for protection against fire in grain and grass fields at threshers, and the like, similar to that in California. In other large areas where wooded tracts are interspersed with tiled fields and where woods fires are of frequent occurrence and often spread to crops and buildings, there exists the same need as in the extensive grain fields. And, in the general protection of farm buildings and fences, in hay loft and hay rick fires from spontaneous combustion or accident, in fires spreading from burn-

Confined to Her Bed Days at a Time
But Doan's Brought a Quick and Lasting Cure.

Mrs. Hermann Ruschke, 177 Fourth St., Long Island City, N. Y., says: "The pains in my back were almost unbearable. I always felt tired and fatigued and found it almost impossible to attend to my household. Gradually the pains increased—day by day my aching became worse. On the heaviest of light and back sprays would appear before my eyes and dizzy spells would come over me. My hands and feet were swollen and my head pained me so at times I thought it would split. My kidneys ached, too. I became almost helpless. Finally I would have to lie in bed three or four days at a time. I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I began to take them and was soon back in perfect health again. My cure has stood the test of time, so I am only too glad to recommend Doan's to other ailing sufferers."

Mrs. Ruschke gave the above statement in April, 1916, and on April 4, 1917, she added: "I gladly repeat all I have said about Doan's Kidney Pills for they have cured me of kidney complaint."
