

AS FIRST WELL DAY IN 6 YEARS

Washington Citizen Could Neither Sleep Nor Eat With Any Satisfaction Before He Got Tanlac.

"Before taking Tanlac I had not had a well day in six years," said R. Peoples, 228 22nd St., Huntingdon, W. Va.

"It seemed like I had lost my health for good. I could neither sleep nor eat with satisfaction. I was badly run down, nervous, had no appetite and had to force down every mouthful I ate. Even then my food soured. I would fill up with gas until I had intense pains in my stomach and chest. Headache almost drove me mad, rheumatism in my arms, shoulder and hips kept me in pain all the time, and I had to force myself to work."

"Tanalac went right after my troubles. On four bottles I gained ten pounds and the rheumatism and stomach trouble went left me. My wife has given a statement about the good Tanlac did her, and I am glad to add my endorsement of this wonderful medicine."

Tanalac is sold by all good druggists.

Hog Pedigree to Have Monument.

A monument is to be erected to commemorate the beginning of the practice of writing pedigrees for hogs. The first such pedigree, oldest records show, were written in 1875 for a pair of China hogs on the farm owned by Blue Ball, Ohio, by W. C. Hankins. Part of the necessary funds for the monument has been raised by the Ohio State Poland China Breeders' Association, and the Hankins estate, which still owns the farm, has consented to the erection of the monument on the property. The monument is to be dedicated in August.

Salesmanship.

The first shopper was returning an unsatisfactory purchase. "You told me those were fast colors," she complained, "and the very first time they were washed they ran." "Maybe you didn't use walkway tubs," suggested the sweet young thing behind the counter.

STORIES of AMERICAN CITIES

Horse Aged 51 Astonishes the World

NEW YORK.—All the world of horse-lovers is talking about Clover, a Hambletonian trotting horse. Why? Because Clover is alive and healthy at fifty-one years of age—which is believed to be a world record. Clover's owner is the Rev. Dr. Uriah Meyers, seventy-five, former pastor of St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church of Catawissa, Pa. The reverend gentleman, retired on a pension, had become so poor that it looked as if he and Clover would have to part. The New York World got hold of the story of man and horse. Financial and other aid for both man and horse was the immediate result of publicity. And how the horsemen are talking about Clover!

gave him—to Doctor Myers, my cousin, who promised him a home for life and used him in his pastoral work. Clover is a dark bay, 16 hands of Hambletonian stock. He's a double-gaited horse—trot and swings into a pace. I often drove him over the Wisnicken drive to wagon or sleigh and used to win the basket of wine offered in the old days to the first to reach Fairmount Inn. He could trot in 2:17, and when he was forty-two I drove him a quarter in 30 seconds. He was always "halbed"; that accounts for his age, I suppose. He still has his teeth and his eyes are good; he knows me every time I visit Mr. Myers. I had Clover's pedigree, but lost it. He raced under another name.

Horse experts the world over agree that fifty-one years is an unheard-of age for a horse—any kind of a horse on four legs. Kingston, the famous American thoroughbred, achieved additional fame by living to twenty-eight. A Canadian horse is known to have lived to the age of at least thirty-eight. An English pony is stated to have lived to be thirty-nine. Mr. Myers is said to be a "natural born horseman" and has given Clover the best of care. Possibly Clover's fame may be great. Horsemen think he should be exhibited.

Common-Law Widow Wins $50,000 Estate

DENVER.—Frances Ryan was declared the legal widow of the late N. D. Danikas, former Greek restaurant owner, and as such entitled to control of the $50,000 estate of her husband, in a decision given by Judge C. J. Morley in the District court.

Judge Morley held that a common-law marriage had been consummated between the woman and Danikas during the course of a three-month trip she accompanied him on to French Lick Springs, Ind., and Rochester, Minn., where he died last March. The decision reversed one formerly given in favor of the administrator of the estate in the County court by Judge George A. Luxford, when he denied Mrs. Danikas' petition to be appointed executrix.

When Danikas died he left a will under which the then Miss Ryan was given a bequest of $1,000 and the rest of the estate was given in trust to establish dowries for the poor maidens of Danikas' native city, Dibril, Greece. N. P. Cageros, the fiscal vice consul, was appointed executor of the will, and he has been resisting the efforts of the widow to get the estate of the husband as his sole heir. Judge Morley in his decision held that the marriage had been consummated by the mutual consent and acknowledgment of the couple and that evidence offered had established the fact that they were known and believed to be man and wife by all the acquaintances they met on the trip which first preceded Danikas' death. Attorneys for the administrator of the estate announced the case would probably be appealed to the Supreme court. If the decision is allowed to stand the later marriage invalidates the will of Danikas and the wife, as sole heir, will inherit the estate.

Wife Charges Triangle; Odd Features

CHICAGO.—Dr. Florence Fowler, resident alienist of the Cook County hospital, has been named in a divorce suit that charges a triangle out of the ordinary. The bill was filed in the DuPage County court at Wheaton by Mrs. Emanuel H. Kuttner of Lombard, wife of the wealthy secretary of the Illinois Ballast and Improvement company. With the bill on file in the DuPage county records is an injunction restraining Mr. Kuttner from disposing of any of his property—real estate in Florida, the Lombard home and stock in the company of which he is secretary, or from entering the Lombard home. The bill charges the maintenance of a "love nest" by Mr. Kuttner for Doctor Fowler at 1033 North Austin avenue in a fashionable district. Mrs. Kuttner, at the Lombard home told how, after sixteen years of married life, her husband had left her and gone to live with Doctor Fowler.

She told how, as she believes, her husband planned to charge her with being insane, and of visits of Doctor Fowler to her Lombard home with Mr. Kuttner, which, she believes, were to have been the basis for the insanity charge.

"All the charges are absurd and untrue," said Doctor Fowler. "Mrs. Kuttner is a strange woman—believer in spiritualism, astrology, and all sorts of occultism. She claims to hold communion with the stars and says they always guide her right."

"These charges against me are merely the product of her imagination. Once she said she was the reincarnation of Cleopatra, and once she said she was the queen of Sheba."

Doctor Fowler said she was a good friend of Mr. Kuttner and that he had visited in her home. She also charged that a conspiracy had been going on to make her life miserable and that she had received telephone calls threatening her, adding that the police had raided her apartment as the result of false "tips" given them.

Widow's Evidence Doubles Jury's Award

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Damages of $50,000 were awarded to Vincent Earl Lembeck, twenty-seven, of Easton, Pa., by a jury in the Hudson County Supreme court, which found that he was the illegitimate grandson of the late Henry Lembeck, millionaire brewer, and entitled to a share in the estate.

According to testimony at the trial the plaintiff's mother, Mrs. Josephine De Cartier Coughlin, was employed thirty years ago as a cook in a residence near the Lembeck mansion. She became acquainted with the brewer's son, Victor, who is alleged to have entered into a common law marriage with her. Just before the child was born Victor is alleged to have confessed that he already was married and to have pleaded with the woman not "to wreck his life." She went to Easton and raised her son, unknown to friends of the Lembeck family until the suit was filed a few months ago. Testimony as to Victor's relationship with Mrs. Coughlin was supplied in a spectacular manner by his rightful widow, who declared that shortly before he died Victor confessed that he had an illegitimate son and gave her the latter's baby clothes, embroidered with the boy's initials, to keep. This widow produced these garments in court and the mother collapsed at the sight of them. While Vincent sued for only $25,000 the jury returned a verdict for more than twice that amount on the ground that Vincent had lived in obscurity all his life and had been deprived of rights which might have been his years ago for the asking. The suit was hotly contested by the heirs of the brewer.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Piker. "Daniel was a piker; he didn't have any nerve." The thin, pale person, who muttered thus, lifted his lip with a sneer. "He was a piker," he noted, scornfully. "He only went into a den of lions." A moment passed, a moment of tense contentment. "I," he continued, "I am a greater man than Daniel was! For I am on my way to interview the cashier at the bank where I am overdrawn!"
