Old Grange Store Stand.

Starting A Balking Horse.

At least twenty minutes had been expended in fruitless efforts to make the stubborn horse move. Hitched to a bulky delivery wagon, he stood directly in the pathway of traffic at the crowded corner of Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street. The animal was large, apparently well fed and not overworked. There were no evidences of disability; it was simply a case of balk.

The driver had exhausted his persuasive powers, and sat quietly on his seat; the half dozen men who had been tugging at the wheels of the wagon had desisted from their ineffectual exertions; the knowing individual who sought to coax the animal with a wisp of hay had thrown down the untimely bait in disgust, and the daft fellow who assayed to twist the horse's tail had managed to get away without being kicked, when a mild-mannered gentleman, silk-hatted and kid-gloved, came upon the scene.

Quietly pushing aside the impatient street car driver, who wanted to build a fire under the animal, the gentleman gently stroked the horse's neck with one gloved hand while with the other he picked up the balked creature's right foot, bending it back and holding it firmly.

Nodding to the driver he said: "Now, go ahead."

The driver flourished his whip and said "g'lang." The horse instinctively started, and finding that its powers of locomotion were gone, became restive. The gentleman then released the imprisoned foot, which the animal immediately put into action by trotting rapidly down the street.

After brushing a few particles of dirt from his glove, the mild-mannered man passed on his way, and the congestion in the street enjoyed a speedy relief.—New York Times.

Needed More Evidence.

A young curate came to Dr. Temple one day and said: "My lord, it is rumored that you are not able to believe in special interpositions of Providence on behalf of certain persons." "Well?" grunted the Bishop. "Well, my lord, here is the case of my aunt. My aunt journeys to Exeter every Sunday by the same train and in the same compartment of the same carriage invariably. Last Wednesday she felt a disinclination to go, and that very day an accident occurred by which the carriage of the train in which my aunt would have traveled was smashed to pieces. Now, was not that a direct interposition of Providence on behalf of my aunt?" "Can't say," growled the Bishop; "don't know your aunt."—St. James Gazette.
