

SPECIAL MARKET LETTER

The following market letter, published by the McLain Bros. & Co., Commission Merchants, Chicago, Ill., is published for the benefit of the public generally.

Although there has been no serious decline in the stock and bond list during the past week, there have been several disturbing factors which may ere long precipitate more than a mere reactionary break, and which promise to emphasize the existing uncertainties as to the probable state of commerce and finance in the near future.

The miners' strike, which from the fact that it came unheralded and was preceded by few preliminary signs, although but recently inaugurated, is already causing inconvenience and is responsible for the temporary closing of a number of factories in localities where fresh supplies of coal are unobtainable; and unless soon ended will become a disturbing element of no mean proportions, and with the miners' strike in the United Kingdom, which promises to become the greatest labor and capital contest of this century, may soon create apprehensions as to the stability of railway and industrial stocks.

The freight war, from which operators anticipated a satisfactory adjustment of discordant difficulties, seems to have been ineffectual, and a reopening of hostilities, because of the refusal of the most aggressive road to submit the dispute to arbitrators, is imminent.

The wheat market has once more become an object of anxious interest and adds something to the disquieting uncertainties.

The willingness of the public to engage in speculation is evidenced by the alacrity with which it responded to the recent moderate advance in wheat and corn, even though the upturn was caused more by the possibilities of crop damage than by any injury yet sustained. The interest manifested in corn was significant and augurs well for the future of the market for that cereal whenever anything occurs upon which to predicate a bull movement.

Although the weather has been about all that could be desired for the growing crop, the fact that it was being damaged by hot winds over a limited area in Kansas was sufficient to revive speculative interest and to at once broaden the market—a significance fraught with promises if anything occurs to seriously curtail this season's yield.

The advance brought somewhat fewer offerings from country points, and receipts in consequence will probably be more liberal. The export movement has again become large, and will, if it continues, prevent larger receipts from becoming burdensome. It is claimed that the low price has proved so attractive to foreigners that they have accumulated excessive stocks, and that some of them are getting out of condition.

The government report, issued on the 10th inst., places the average condition of the crop on July 1st at 82.9, 9 points lower than for the corresponding date last year, on an average 1.2 per cent less. The condition of wheat, winter and spring combined, is placed at 84.8. Winter is 81.2, or 2.7 points higher than one month ago, and spring 91.2, or 1.6 points higher. The percentage of crop remaining on hand is estimated at 5.4.

The wheat market has been influenced by the action of corn and has at times ruled quite active; the July option has been erratic and its course has naturally affected the deferred futures. Offerings of new wheat to arrive during this month are daily becoming more liberal. Harvest is progressing rapidly and favorably and the consensus of opinion seems to be that the quality is fine and the yield in excess of anticipations. The reports of damage to French, Russian and Danubian crops have become a part of the regular daily news, accompanied by statements that foreigners have been large buyers of American wheat, but as European markets still show signs of weakness, the trade receives the reports with incredulity. That some damage has been sustained is doubtless true, but that it is serious seems improbable, with present low prices, however, even moderate curtailment of foreign crops would prevent any marked decline, and with depleted stocks would furnish the basis for a higher range of values. The world's visible supply as compiled by Brodbeck and Broadstreet's on July 1st was 72,243,000 bu, as compared with 105,243,000 bu one year ago, the smallest supply reported since August, 1890.

The paucity of stocks will assure an excellent demand for wheat of such quality as we now have assured, and only unfavorable trade conditions can prevent a recovery in prices whenever they are unduly depressed.

The visible supply of grain in the United States and Canada shows the following changes for the week: Wheat decreased 974,000 bu, corn 572,000 bu and oats 1,289,000 bu.
