In order that there may be a permanent settlement of the railroad wage problem, protecting the interests of the employes, the employers and the public, the railroads propose that the present controversy in regard thereto be referred for solution to the interstate commerce commission at Washington. This proposed solution has already received the hearty endorsement of the business men throughout the country through a referendum of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. It has likewise been strongly urged by many leading men in public life and prominent students of economic thought in various institutions of learning. If the matter is not thus settled by federal inquiry, by a body of men with intimate knowledge of the matter in hand, a strike would seem imminent. In fact, the employes affected are now voting on the strike question. We hate to hear of a strike. It seems that other means could settle the matter as fairly—in fact, more so—and without the evil results attendant upon strikes, their interruption of business, their after-effects, and the injury to life and destruction of property, which as a rule is one of their results. If possible, industrial warfare is to be averted and peace, plenty and prosperity reign. Labor and capital both have rights. Might does not make right. An impartial government would in our opinion be vastly more safe and sane—more satisfactory and permanent, than any result determined upon the outcome of a strike.

JAMES J. KYLE HAS SPLENDID RECORD

FRIENDS OF REPUBLICAN FLOOR LEADER OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY URGE HIS CANDIDACY

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

As Leader for His Party in Legislative Work His Efforts Were Directly Along Safe and Conservative Lines.

JAMES J. KYLE.

Mr. Kyle was born Dec. 27, 1867, in a log cabin on a farm, near Kyle's Ford, E. Tenn. At an early age, his parents, by reason of poor health, were forced to quit the farm, and established a little country store. They were financially poor, but rich in aspirations for their children. They were of sterling qualities, and their children early learned the lessons of industry and economy. They gave their son the best advantages within their limited reach. Mr. Kyle's education commenced in a log cabin, dirt-floor, slab-benched school house, and was continued in the common schools of Tennessee, Curry College, Va., the Springfield Private Normal, where he also read law, and taking his last instructions in law at the University of Missouri. He says that it is inconvenient to be poor, but that it develops the best of a man made of the right stuff, and puts him in closer touch with the needs and demands of humanity.

He came to Ozark County, Missouri, with his parents in 1890. He began teaching at sixteen years of age and taught a number of years. He never had a "hunt" school, the schools sought him and with increased wages. His accomplishments have been attained under adverse circumstances.

In 1902 he was married to Miss Ida V., daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Cline of White Pine, Tennessee.

In 1908 he was elected to the Legislature, where his services gave him such recognition that he was re-elected to the Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth General Assemblies. He was elected speaker and floor leader of the house in both the Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth General Assemblies. His record is an open book. His efforts have ever been tending toward the advancement and betterment of mankind. He is a strong supporter of the common schools and an advocate of liberal support to higher education.

He believes that a state as well as an individual, should normally keep within its means.

Mr. Kyle can furnish pages of high commendations from the press and from prominent men all over the state, but suffice to say that ere he became a candidate, his own, and many other southern counties gave him strong endorsements. His congressional convention of the Fourteenth District, representing sixteen counties endorsed him as follows:

"Whereas, we are familiar with the personal and public record of J. J. Kyle of Thornfield, Ozark County, and because of that acquaintance and because of having full and complete confidence in his ability and integrity as a citizen and his fidelity to every trust imposed by the important offices he has held, and feeling that the age demands the services in this state of a man of wide business experience, known integrity, dynamic energy, and one who has been closely associated with Missouri's history in the past, therefore be it Resolved, that we endorse the candidacy of James J. Kyle for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri, and that we invite and urge the co-operation of all good citizens of the State of Missouri in securing his nomination and election with full assurance that if elected he will conduct the affairs of this important office in a manner to reflect credit to himself and to the entire state."

The conservative, judicious records of the Republican membership of the Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth General Assemblies, led by Mr. Kyle, as compared with that of the opposition, will contribute greatly towards making Missouri Republican in November.

THE OZARK TRAILS

Decision as to Official Road Between Springfield and St. Louis Not Made

At the Ozark Trails convention at Springfield this week the question as to whether the Southern or Northern Route should be named as the official route was postponed until Nov. 15, notwithstanding the fact that the Southern Route delegation insisted that the matter should be decided at this meeting, according to schedule. Our people feel that the decision should have been made now. We want the route. Let's keep on trying to secure it.

With the American flag greeting them on all sides, the automobiles bearing delegates over the Southern Route of the proposed Ozark Trail between Springfield and St. Louis passed through here all day Monday enroute to Springfield to attend the annual meeting of the Ozark Trails Association. Four states were represented officially at this convention—Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, for this is a link in a transcontinental highway project.

About 15 or 20 auto loads went from Mansfield, besides the numerous delegates who went on the train. Several cars from Hartville and Ava also joined in the crowd. The Mansfield Concert Band, together with some players from Hartville and Ava, accompanied the Mansfield delegation to help furnish music for the convention and make a noise for Mansfield. The Mansfield delegation was headed by Mayor F. H. Riley as marshal and each delegate wore ribbons bearing these inscriptions: "Southern Route Delegate, June 27-28, '16;" "Mansfield, the Gem City of the Ozarks." M. A. Freeman, chairman of the finance committee, was one of the officials of the convention.

Over 100 autos went through here, some coming before Monday. A big truck from the state highway department passed through here Sunday.

A big Mountain Grove delegation, accompanied by the Mountain Grove band, passed through here Tuesday morning over the Frisco enroute to the convention.

M. A. Freeman and Dr. F. H. Riley were members of a committee from the Southern Route delegation who met at Springfield Tuesday evening to form a definite plan of action in regard to the establishment of the Ozark Trails between Springfield and St. Louis.

The Mansfield Concert Band was one of the hits of the convention. The Jonesboro, Ark., delegates paid a $5.00 membership fee for each of the band boys, making them members of the Ozark Trails Association, and told them to consider themselves the official band and to come to Jonesboro and play next year.

Some of the returning autos made good time on the road, D. S. Cantrell making the trip in 2 hours and 30 minutes and G. C. Freeman in 2 hours and 20 minutes.

Mansfield has attracted considerable attention and newspaper comment at the convention. Tuesday's Leader says:

Mansfield, on the southern highway to St. Louis, has a large delegation at the convention. About twenty-five automobiles carried the delegation into Springfield yesterday evening. The Mansfield delegates, headed by Dr. F. H. Riley, mayor of Mansfield, created considerable excitement during the convention by a lusty yell. It is an Ozark Trails yell, as follows:

One-a zippa, two-a zippa, three-a zippa, (fast); Z. A. M! (drag); We're on the Southern Route, and don't give a—(hesitate); Razzle dazzle! Hobble gobble! (rapid). Rah! Rah! Rah! (rapid). Have the roads and scenery,

Mining News

Several more miners arrived here last week.

The first full car load of ore that has been shipped from Mansfield since the recent revival of the mining industry in this vicinity was shipped to Joplin Saturday, and consisted of silicate and jack of good quality. The shipment was made by A. T. Friend, who has been quite active in developing the mineral resources of this community and calling to the attention of others the fact that mineral exists here and in paying quantities.

The Bryant Mining Company are working their mine on Pond Fork creek four miles southwest of Thornfield. They report that about five tons of mineral have been taken out valued at about $200. They have drifted into the hill thirty feet and the ore is getting better the further they go. This mine is owned by E. B. Lefler, Graham Wallace, George Freet and Elmer Hunsaker. The Pond Fork mine is expected to be the best paying mine ever found in that part of Ozark county. The machinery for separating the rock from the mineral is about complete, and the work of cleaning and sacking the mineral for shipment will begin in a few days. The first shipment will be made in the next week or two. It will be hauled to Ava in wagons and shipped out over the K. C. O. & S. railway.—Ava Democrat.

CREAM MUST BE O. K.

The Pure Food Man Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out

R. E. L. Marrs, of Carthage, assistant dairy commissioner, connected with the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, was here last week, having been sent here by the board to investigate numerous complaints from over the state that bad cream was being shipped from Mansfield, in violation of the pure food laws of the state. In company with the local health officer, Dr. J. A. Fuson, he visited the various cream buying stations and found some bad conditions existing. In conversation with a Mirror representative he said that while it is a fact that the law was being violated, that he would make no prosecutions at this time, preferring rather to give any offenders a chance, as the violations might be through ignorance, their attention not having been called to the matter previously, but that on his next trip here he would prosecute all found disregarding this law, as an opportunity had been given to rectify conditions and comply strictly with the law. Mr. Marrs says there is nothing worse than bad cream and that it is the intention to vigorously enforce the laws forbidding the sale by any persons of bad cream.

There have been numerous supreme court decisions upon the matter, and we take the following from a bulletin issued by the board:

It is a grave offense to sell bad eggs; or milk or cream or butter which is dirty or was produced from a diseased cow, or is below grade, or to which a preservative has been added; or meats of animals which have died other wise than by slaughter; or vine gar which is below standard; or fruit under false names as to variety or place of production; or to sell short measure or short weight food of any kind. The farmer is primarily a producer of food and must expect to abide by the food law, the same law that protects him when others sell to him.

Sec. 640.—Adulteration of Milk and Milk Products; Penalties.—Whoever shall sell, or offer or expose for sale anywhere in this state, any milk or cream containing any foreign substance, or preservative of any kind whatsoever, injurious to health, or shall sell or offer for sale or deliver to another, for domestic or portable use, or to be converted into any product for human food, any unclean, impure, adulterated or unwholesome milk, or

Hartville

W. A. Newton made an address to the Sunday school in the Cope neighborhood, in Elk Creek township, Sunday, it being Children's Day. There was a very large attendance, and the exercises, consisting of readings, recitations, singing and prayer, were interesting to the extreme and enjoyed by all. At noon the large gathering sat down to a table nearly 100 feet long and satisfied the "inner man" with those viands which tend to make men and women gormandize in such a manner that the old adage is now changed to read: "Live to eat."

E. F. Gorman and John McClannahan were in attendance at the Sunday services last Sunday in Elk Creek township.

These Hartville cars went to Springfield last Monday to be with the Ozark Trails bunch: A. M. Curtis, Bert Ellis, N. J. and N. N. Wheelchel, J. R. Deckard and O. H. Young. All cars were filled with a jolly crowd of "Good Roads Boosters."
