CARLETON COLLEGE

Close of the Most Successful Year of Its History—$50,000 Building to be Erected.

This popular educational institution of Farmington closed this week the most successful year in the history of the school, and its prospects for the future are brighter and more encouraging than they have ever been. As was published in THE TIMES of March 20th, the college on the 15th of the same month celebrated the institution's release from debt by burning all the old bonds and other evidences of indebtedness, and besides having several thousand dollars in the treasury, the term just ended closed with an earning balance.

The Board of Trustees met Wednesday of this week and among other things done it was decided to put up another building at a cost of not less than $50,000. The erection of this building we understand will be begun this year and it is expected to have the foundation and basement well under way in the fall. The board authorized its president, Mr. S. T. Gresham, to appoint a building committee. The college has a prospect also of a liberal endowment.

The board re-employed all the present faculty except Miss Sowers, professor of Philosophy, Greek and German, who retires of her own accord. Her place and also a teacher of science will be supplied. The faculty as it now stands is as follows: Rev. George Brown Thomas, B. S., A. B., president and professor of history; Benjamin Curtis Glover, B. S., professor of mathematics; Miss Flora Anita Ingalls, A. B., professor of Latin and English; Miss Eliza Ann Carleton, A. M., professor of botany; P. L. McFerrin, professor of instrumental music; Miss Ruth Adams Woodwell, B. O., professor of vocal music, elocution and physical culture.

Commencement Exercises.

Proceeding the beginning of the exercises proper were two recitals by the department of expression and voice at the M. E. Church. The first of these was by the kindergarten and intermediate grades on Wednesday afternoon, May 24, the participants being from four years of age up to twelve or thirteen. It was an interesting and delightful exercise and greatly appreciated and enjoyed by all present. Miss Woodwell had charge of this department and their training reflected much credit on her ability and efficiency as an instructor. Recitations were given by Masters Teddy, Mack, Paul and Carl Denman and Alec Downing, and Misses Helen Graves, Alice Gruener, Marguerite Klein, and Ruth Cashion. "Market Day" was a pleasing operetta given by the following: Misses Marguerite Klein, Ollie Schaefer, Lillian Thompson, Alice Gruener, Ruth Cashion, Helen Graves, Grace Denman and Master Paul Denman. The program ended with a chorus by Masters Howard and Harold Thompson, Eugene Karsch, Alec Downing and Mack Denman.

The more advanced pupils of expression and voice gave their recital on Thursday evening, May 28, and it afforded a delightful evening of literary, dramatic and vocal productions. Those who read were: Misses Zora Nations, "Whistling Boy," by Fred Emerson Brooks; Miss Mabel Sackman, "Sandy," Miss Wilma Denman, "Life's Lullaby," by Cowen; A. G. Dempster, "The Message," Miss Ethel Chandler, scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," by Shakespeare; Miss Ethel Moore, scene from "Othello," by Shakespeare; Earl Gains, "Jenks, the Genius." Vocal selections were given by Richard Brooks, "Sailor's Song," by Haydn; Sherman Humphreys, "Once in the Bygone Days," by Stultz; Miss Della Laws, "The Shepherdess," by Goethe-Ayer; Misses Laws and Moore, "Hark to the Mandolin," by Parker; and Miss Ella Sackman, "Carmena," by Wilson. The mad scene from Shakespeare's "Hamlet" was given by Misses Wilma Denman and Mabel Sackman and Messrs. A. B. Garrison and William Blackledge. Miss Grace Hamilton read the argument.

On Monday evening Miss Beulah Audria Covington of Flat River, who has completed the course of study of piano, history and harmony, gave a graduating recital at the M. E. Church to a large audience which was greatly enjoyed. She has been studying under Prof. McFerrin's direction for two years, and showed evidences of careful training as well as marked natural ability. Her program consisted of selections from Rachmaninoff, Beethoven, Schubert, Zichy and Verdi, one especially attracting much attention—"Valse d'Adèle" by Zichy, which was composed to be played by the left hand alone.

On Friday the annual exercises of the Literary Societies were unusually good, and the Student's Reunion Saturday evening was a very pleasant affair.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. J. J. Martin, who at one time was at the head of the college.

The recital of the Department of the Faculty of Carleton College, at the M. E. Church last Sunday afternoon. Expression and Voice, under the direction of Miss Woodwell, at the Opera House Tuesday evening, was one of rare merit. The first part consisted of the rendering of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," which was very effectively done and showed much care in the preparation and conception of the characters. The second part consisted of a double male quartette, a chorus of mixed voices and a bass solo of two selections by Earl Gains, which were admirably rendered, and readings by Misses Ethel Moore and Ethel Chandler with fine expression.

On Wednesday evening at the M. E. Church, Secretary of State J. E. Swanger delivered the address to the graduating class. President Thomas called the names of the graduates, and Miss Carleton, the revered and beloved founder of Carleton College, presented the diplomas. The graduates are: Benjamin James Arnoldy and Miss Minnie Lee Glover, classical course; George Washington Williams, science, and Miss Beulah Audria Covington, music.

CUT IN TWO BY TRAIN

Harry Rapp Fell Asleep Across Track. Was Run Over and Body Severed.

Last Friday at midnight the special train returning from Ste. Genevieve to Bismarck on the Illinois Southern from the Drummers' Convention, passed over Harry Rapp, who was lying asleep across the track near Reuter's mill, midway of his body, almost severing it and killing him instantly.

It appears that he and some other young men had been canning beer and drinking near the saloon close to the Flat River station of the Illinois Southern. About ten o'clock he and a young friend named Joe Marlow started home and sat down on the track at the dirt road crossing near Reuter's mill and fell asleep. When the special came along and slowed up at the crossing, Marlow got up in a dazed, sleepy condition just before the train passed. After the train passed he took hold of Harry Rapp's leg and said "Get up, Harry, let's go home," when he discovered that Rapp had been run over by the train and killed. Marlow went home, sat down on the side of his bed with his clothes on and fell asleep without telling anyone about the affair.

At the coroner's inquest the next day he said he was with young Rapp, but didn't remember anything about how he was killed. The inquest was adjourned over to Tuesday morning, and on Monday he told his father the story related above, and testified to the same before the coroner on Tuesday. He said he had told the first story about not remembering anything of the circumstances for fear that he would be accused of being in some way responsible for his friend Rapp's death.

DECORATION DAY.

The observance of Decoration Day last Saturday by Picket Post No. 25 G. A. R. and our people generally was worthy of the day. The members of the Post, preceded by the Farmington band and a procession of children, marched to the Opera House, where the ritualistic services of the G. A. R. were gone through with. At the request of the Post, the editor of The Times, who was a Confederate soldier, read the historic address delivered by President Lincoln at the dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery, after which Rev. Dr. Hagerty of St. Louis delivered an eloquent address fitting the day and the occasion.

When the exercises at the Opera House were over, the Post and other citizens marched to the Masonic cemetery, and committees were sent to the other cemeteries, where the graves of Union and Confederate dead alike and of deceased friends were decorated with flowers.
