

University to Have Orchestra

The Ozark Business University, in addition to its other improvements and all-round progress, is planning a musical organization among the students, which should add much to the interest and activity of the institution.

A number of students who have enrolled and indicated their intention to do so, are musically inclined and have had some orchestra experience. These with a few others required for complete instrumentation will be formed into an orchestra under the direction of Warden Moot-hart, who is a member of the faculty and also of the popular "Barroll's Orchestra" and a violinist of ability. Two or three others have also received much of their training under Mr. Barroll, who has promised his cooperation and help to make the Ozark University Orchestra a success.

Rehearsals will be held on one night of the week, to be selected, at the University, which has been equipped with a piano, and doubtless from time to time as school work permits, semi-public recitals or concerts will be given in the large study hall of the University, which is admirably adapted to such a purpose.

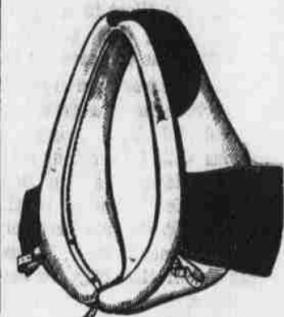

It is planned to give the students every possible advantage for their pleasure and advancement, and to make attendance at the University not only profitable but enjoyable. Music is an important feature of all the larger business colleges throughout the country, and the Ozark Business University is right in line and keeping step with the best of them. Farmington has every right to feel proud of this institution, and unquestionably it is proud of it. And with the large attendance expected there will undoubtedly be found a great deal of musical talent within the student body, which will have full play for its expression and development through the Orchestra.

TEN CALVES ADDED TO U. S. BISON HERD.

Buffalo on Wichita National Forest Now Number 62 and Promise to Continue Increasing.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—The government's herd of buffalo on the Wichita National Forest, in Oklahoma, which is also a Federal Game Preserve, has been increased by the arrival of ten calves, according to a report received by the Forest Service from the supervisor in charge. The herd, which now comprises sixty-two specimens of the almost extinct bison is in good condition, says the supervisor, and promises to continue increasing at a rapid ratio.

Eight of the calves are females, bringing the number of helpers and cows up to thirty. The bulls number thirty-two and have been placed by themselves in a pasture which has just been fenced in for them.

Three years ago the buffalo herd on the Wichita Forest was little more than half as large as it is now. It is said that the other game animals in the preserve, including the elk and antelope, also are increasing, due to the protection afforded, not only against hunters, but against wolves, wild cats and other predatory animals, which committed serious depredations from the establishment of the preserve in 1905 until measures were taken to stop them. In protecting the game from predatory animals, the wardens and forest officers are also promoting the interests of local stockmen, who graze several thousand head of cattle on certain allotted areas within the preserve.

NATIONAL FORESTS TAKE IN $2,500,000

Timber Sale, Grazing, and Other Receipts for Fiscal Year Show a Gain of More Than $40,000.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—The National Forest turned in to the U. S. Treasury during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, nearly $2,500,000, an increase of more than $40,000 over the receipts of the previous year, according to a statement just issued by the Forest Service. The timber sales which amounted to $1,164,000, yielded on account of the depressed condition of the lumber industry about $79,000 less than those of the previous fiscal year, but the gain was made possible by larger revenues from other resources. The grazing receipts, which totaled $1,125,000, increased $127,000 over last year, and the water power receipts, which amounted to not quite $90,000, showed an increase of nearly $42,000.

The demoralization of the turpentine industry on account of the war's curtailment of the naval stores market caused the receipts from the sale of turpentine privileges on the National Forests to drop to about $9,000, as against nearly $15,000 last year. The sale of special use permits, under which all sorts of enterprises, from apiaries to whaling stations, are operated on the Forests, yielded nearly $78,000, an increase of $9,000 over last year. There was a decrease of nearly $37,000 on the revenue derived by the settlement of trespass cases in which Government timber had been cut without intent to defraud, the revenue from this source being only a little more than $3,000.

More than $7,000, however, was collected from other timber trespass cases. Grazing trespass cases yielded nearly $6,000, an increase of about $1,000; occupancy trespass cases, which occurred in only one of the forest districts, turned in some less than $250; about $60 was derived from turpentine trespass cases, and $660 from fire trespass cases, the latter being more than $7,000 less than the amount collected in the previous fiscal year for damage to Government property through fires carelessly or willfully started in or near National Forests.

The Republican papers are busy just now trying to mislead the voters by telling them of the Missouri Democracy's sins of commission and omission. Truth is, Missouri owes about all it has to boast of in a commercial, educational, business and political way to Democracy. Its history identical with the history of the Democratic party. The Democratic party has had the affairs of this state in its keeping since the state was organized nearly a century ago, with the exception of the short space of time when radical Republicanism ran rampant and foisted on the people a debt that could not be liquidated until the time of Governor Stevens' administration. While Missouri Democracy has been building up our magnificent institutions, Missouri Republicanism has been spending its time trying to harvest the spoils of office and in abusing and vilifying the Democratic party.—Missouri Cash Book.

The Springfield Business College recently spent hundreds improving the lighting and ventilation of the school rooms and providing sanitary plumbing and drinking fountains. The new arrangement aids in discipline, and adds to the comfort and convenience of the students. Their new offices are located so the president and vice president are in touch with all departments. That school is constantly improving. (adv.)
