

The editor of the Republican, E. C. White, has the sympathy of the local press in the recent death of his father, at his home in Massachusetts. Mr. White being unable to attend the funeral on account of a telegram, notifying him, not being delivered, word coming by letter, after the funeral.

There is certainly something rotten in St. Louis city politics. The recently elected Republican president of the city council has been indicted for forging deeds of trust, and selling them to investors. The queer thing about it is, why three of the largest banks of the city, who were defrauded by A. F. Fredericks, should have shielded him so long and allowed the knowledge of his criminal acts from being known before the election. One of the banks knowing it more than a year ago. Some of the Republican politicians who claimed to have had no knowledge of his criminal acts, have since admitted knowledge of them.

Folks who go to bed late or are early sleepers have an opportunity to observe a comet at present. It may be seen about 10:30 o'clock at night low on the polar star. It ascends during the night and may be found in the northeast between 2 and 4 o'clock a. m. It may be seen best at those hours. The comet is faint, having the brightness of a third magnitude star and has a tail several degrees in length. It is really much brighter than the famous Halley's comet, but is vastly farther from the earth than Halley's approached four years ago. It will be visible to the naked eye until the middle of November. —Dexter Statesman.

HUERTA PLEDGES HIS NEUTRALITY

PROMISES NOT TO GO TO CUBA OR TO HIS OWN COUNTRY.

REACHED NEW YORK MONDAY

Trip is Partly for Pleasure and Partly for Business—Passed by Officials as Transit Alien—Will Return to Spain.

New York, April 13.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, who for nearly a year has been an exile in Spain, arrived here yesterday on the Spanish steamship Antonio Lopez from Cadiz. Gen. Huerta was passed by United States immigration officials as a transit alien, after he had declared under oath that he would do nothing that would in any way involve the neutrality of the United States.

The former president said that he had come to the United States partly for pleasure and partly to attend to some personal business connected with family matters. He swore that he had no intention of going to Mexico or Cuba. The length of his stay here, he said, was indefinite, but he would return to Spain, possibly sailing from New York early in May.

Gen. Huerta was met at quarantine by representatives of the press and by an array of photographers. While he submitted to being photographed in every desired position, he declined to say anything as to his mission—agreeing to meet newspaper men at his hotel here next Friday morning. Regarding this appointment he said: "I understand that my presence in this country creates in you the desire to know my views about the affairs of Mexico, and I promise to satisfy your wishes to the best of my ability. I beg you, gentlemen, to remember that no interview with me should be considered as authentic unless it carries my personal signature."

Harvard's President Emeritus Says End of Struggle at Present Would Set Civilization Back 100 Years.

Boston, April 13.—Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, declared at a meeting of Baptist ministers that the present was no time to pray for peace, especially a peace at any price. A sudden termination of the European conflict would set civilization back several centuries, Dr. Eliot said.

Replying to a question, the speaker expressed the opinion that ministers should not remain neutral when their ideals of civilization were being smashed.

CRUISER TO SANTO DOMINGO

New Revolution in Dominican Republic Causes Navy Department to Take Action.

Washington, April 13.—On reports from Minister Sullivan of a new revolutionary outbreak in the Dominican republic, the navy department ordered the cruiser Des Moines to Santo Domingo City from Progresso, Mexico. The gunboat Nashville already is at the Dominican capital.

Because the Nashville's presence was necessary at Santo Domingo City to co-operate with the Des Moines in protecting American interests, her orders to go to Port au Prince, Haiti, to take the American Minister Bally-Bianchard to Santiago, Cuba, were canceled.

The gunboat Wheeling, on her way to Vera Cruz, from Guantanamo, Cuba, has been turned back to get Mr. Bally-Bianchard, who is coming to Washington via Cuba, to confer with officials here over Haitian political and financial affairs.

The Girl of Mystery

SYNOPSIS

Valuable governmental papers are stolen by Thompson, follower of Loubeque, international spy, from General Love, whom Loubeque hates, in Manila. Love's daughter Lucille flies to a steamer to recover the papers in order to clear the name of Lieutenant Gibson, whom she loves.

Loubeque, tampering with the wireless on the steamer, is hurt. Lucille nurses him in an attempt to recover the papers.

Lucille sets the papers, but the ship is wrecked. She is cast ashore on a Pacific island and is taken by a native chief to his hut to nurse his sick child.

The native child is restored to health, and the grateful natives idolize Lucille. Loubeque, also cast ashore, tries various plans to recover the papers, but in vain.

Loubeque, baffled, forges a message from a neighboring chief to lure Lucille away from her friends. She falls into a pitfall, losing the documents.

Loubeque's native aid steals the papers from his master, and Lucille takes them from the native after he is killed by a lion. She finds and follows an underground passage to the tunnel.

Lucille runs into the hands of a tribe of ape men, whose leader drops a necklace of priceless rubies, which she takes. She and Loubeque are rescued from the island by a yacht commanded by Captain Wetherell.

The girl and Loubeque are set adrift in an open boat by Wetherell after she repulses the captain's advances, and he takes the papers.

Saved by fishermen, Lucille and Loubeque are in China. As she passes a house Loubeque's diary is thrown to her mysteriously. She tries to board a vessel bound for America. Loubeque recovers the papers from Wetherell.

Low, gambling houses of Spanish architecture dotted the ground which the curiously fantastic, wholly artistic fence inclosed. The grounds were laid out in orderly fashion, blooming like the garden of Eden with a riotous profusion of flowers and plants.

This was a new Loubeque she met there. Always had she associated him with the manner of her knowing him. Times he had been tender, other times he had been cruel, always was he crafty, cunning, courageous, a one ideal man. But now he seemed all poet, painter. She could hear the softened tones of his voice as, with some of his companions, he wandered about the grounds, tenderly explaining to them the history, the beauty of the flowers, the rare species he had imported for the place.

It was after one of these rambles that she noticed signs of some impending change about the message. One morning he suddenly walked toward her, entering the house to shortly enter her room.

"I am leaving today," he began abruptly, all the nature lover gone from his cold, stern manner. "Again I ask you to tell me where you put the papers."

"Then, they haven't been found"—she stopped abruptly, realizing that her delight had revealed quite as much as his demand.

"I am sorry, Lucille, that you cannot see the folly of this. It is your last chance to tell me. It is your last chance to count me a friend. I am waiting."

She did not answer. Their eyes met and held, both filled with an unaltered purpose. Then Loubeque, without a word, left the room.

Nor did she see him again. That he had gone she knew from the laxness about the household among his servants. It gave her food for hope. She must escape—the must. She must escape before the iron grip of dreaming languor about the place became unbreakable.

But always when she wandered about she would encounter one of Loubeque's aids, always masked, always casually surprised at coming upon her, always urbane and polite, yet insistent upon turning her in an opposite direction. It got upon her nerves to such an extent that she finally took to the house and remained there. Every room was grated, and, though she knew they were not here for the purpose, they served it admirably.

Thompson seemed upon his master's departure to have lost police as thoughts of the ruby necklace his fingers had touched seared itself upon his brain.

She recalled how he had served in her father's house so long with never a suspicion from any one that he was other than the perfect butler with a thought outside of his work; and then she recalled the incident of the necklace, always would she shudder at the recollection, then deliberately drive it from her mind.

It was the fourth day since the departure of the master of the place that, standing beside her iron barred window, she saw the figure of a man toiling a rise in the distance and drawing swiftly nearer. There was something strangely familiar about him, something she seemed to recall in slashed boots, tight trousers and gold

HEAD SO DIZZY COULD NOT STAND

Lady Felt Like Falling at Times on Account of Trouble Which Was Finally Relieved by Cardui.

Nelsonville, Ohio.—"About four years ago," writes Mrs. Minnie Perry, of this town, "I had such spells with my head, I thought I could not live. I tried many different kinds of remedies, but they did me no good.

It seemed I got worse, and my head would just get so dizzy, I would fall wherever I was standing, and I could not walk, unless I held up by something. The trouble all seemed to be in my head.

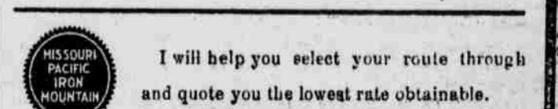

About a year ago I saw Cardui, the woman's tonic, advertised and sent for a bottle. I got so much better that I used three bottles, and I gladly say I have never had any more trouble with my head. I can work hard all day now, and get up the next morning as bright and strong as ever.

I know that Cardui saved my life, and I recommend it to other women who suffer, for I am sure it will help them, if they will only try it." Do you feel dizzy, weak, nervous, headachy, and run-down, generally? These are sure symptoms of womanly disorders, and should be given prompt attention. Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui has helped over a million weak women in the past 50 years. It will help you, too. (J.B.-3)

The Earliest Oranges of the Season

Where are they grown? Why do they ripen earlier than in other sections? Why are they so luscious?

These and other questions are answered in a booklet which we have issued describing Glenn County, California.

Glenn county is in the heart of the great, rich Sacramento Valley. A few years ago oranges were grown commercially in only the southern part of the state. Later it was discovered that citrus fruits ripened perfectly in even the northern part of the interior valley. Since then Glenn county has come forward with some magnificent early fruit. There are countless opportunities for not only citrus fruit culture but for all sorts of deciduous fruits, live stock, grain, truck farming, etc., in Glenn county.

We will send this beautiful book describing Glenn county free to you if you will send us your name and address and a two cent stamp to help pay postage. Better still, send ten cents in stamps and we will send the Glenn County book, a map of California and a sample copy of Sunset Magazine, the great Pacific Coast national magazine.
