TRAMPS AND CHARITY AT MARSHALL AND MONTGOMERY E. H. MITCHELL, mayor of Marshall, writing the Ledger regarding the tramp and charity situation there during the winter, says:

Dear Sir:

Marshall, Mo., Nov. 29th, 1915.—Years of 20th century have not been kind to the poor. We have never made an attempt to take care of tramps except to furnish fire and shelter for them in the calaboose and night in the morning would start them out of town.

A few years ago we organized a young lady at $20 per month, rented an office, and every case of charity, of every nature, was referred to her, and was investigated by her. If a beggar came in, or a tramp came to the residence asking for "hand out" he was told to go to a "land out" where his case would have attention.

What is the very best system that we have ever had, but the people would not support it, and now we just "go as you please."

Respectfully,
E. H. Mitchell,
Mayor of Marshall.

Mexico had the same trouble regarding the maintenance of Miss Frost who had charge of the organized charity here some years ago; but under the arrangements here last year, with representatives from each church, the mayor acting as chairman, and the city clerk as secretary, no salary was paid to anyone, and all of the contributions made went to charity. The same arrangement is going to be undertaken again this year. Of course it is a hardship to those who have to do this work for nothing; at the same time they all co-operate cordially and most satisfactory results seem to follow.

The following letter from Mayor Appling of Montgomery City, shows that Montgomery City, like Mexico and most towns in the state, pass their tramps on to the next town as rapidly as possible:

R. H. White & Son,
Editors Ledger, Mexico, Mo.

Montgomery City, Mo., Nov. 27th, 1915.—In answer to yours of yesterday I will say that we have no facilities whatever for taking care of tramps in the winter. It is a very serious question to handle in towns of this size. When sick or crippled in any way the Marshall takes care of them in the city prison, and they are fed at city expense. It is all very unsatisfactory and inhuman but it is hard to remedy. If they are systematically fed and cared for they soon to all soon learn it, and gather like bees to honey and the revenue of small towns like this is soon exhausted.

We have been doing like most of the towns in Missouri, pass them on as fast as we can. It would be a blessing to all communities if some general system could be devised for handling this trouble, but we have been unable to suggest a remedy.

Yours truly,
J. R. Appling,
Mayor of Montgomery City.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS SHOULD CO-OPERATE UNDER the headline of "The Farmer a Producer," the Chicago Breeder's Gazette editorially says:

"The continued growth of country co-operative buying and selling has led to the question, should the country go into the town business? In other words, should the country own and operate the country town for the benefit of the country? Desirable as may be many farmers' mutual and co-operative movements, some students see in them the destruction of the country town. It should not be necessary for the farmer to be his own commission man in order to sell his goods for what they are worth. His business is farming, not merchandising, and he will be glad to stick to his last if merchants, produce dealers, elevator operators, live stock shippers and others who buy or handle his customers products are men who know their business well enough to be able to pay what the market justifies and who are willing to give him a square deal. The country town that sees to it that there is a fair market for every salable article produced on the farm and that there is a sufficient number of reliable merchants to supply goods at reasonable prices will get the trade of the territory. The question is one of markets, for it is in town, in the buying and selling, that the business end of farming terminates. If to farm efficiency there is added a good market in which to buy and sell an ideal condition results."

HAVERFORD College president says the danger of war in America is just about as acute as the danger of an earthquake in Philadelphia. That's the reason we need to be prepared in advance, for nowadays wars come with just as little warning as do earthquakes.

NOW IS THE TIME to let me repair your furniture. If you delay it may get beyond repair.

I have saved lots of good furniture in Mexico by attending to the trouble when it first developed.

The cost is slight and the work will please you.

The merits of oil as a surfacer for dirt roads was demonstrated around Moberly last week. While practically every highway in Audrain county was heavy with mud and deep ruts, the oiled roads out of Moberly was as hard and smooth as a paved street. Two causes contributed to this condition. One was proper grading and ditching, which caused the rain to get off the road as fast as it fell, while the other was the oiled crown, which was practically waterproof. The cost of such roads is only a fraction of the expense entailed by gravel or crushed rock. The Moberly system was constructed under the leadership of H. F. Holman.

A Louisiana firm shipped $1,472.60 worth of hives and five in one day last week, received from Pike county crappers.

NEVADA, MO., IS ANGELOC. Nevada, Mo., Dec. 2.—Violations of the law have decreased so materially since the city went dry that Mayor Dulin and the City Council decided that a Police Judge has become a luxury instead of a necessity, and Monday night the Council passed an ordinance abolishing the office, which carried a salary of $500.

A Justice of the Peace will be named to perform the duties of Police Judge and his remuneration will have come through the medium of fees. Violations of the city's laws are so rare, Mayor Dulin says, that the fees won't be enough to buy chicken feed.

R. F. Bradley, formerly of this city, a resident of Nevada, who is visiting in Mexico at this time, says the liquor laws are being enforced to the letter in Nevada and that the "bootleggers" are scared to "light". Nevada went dry by a large vote and from the very beginning of the local option law were dealt with severely which discouraged other violators of taking similar chances.
