TANEY COUNTY REPUBLICAN

BY W. H. PRICE.

Taney County

TANEY is the fourth county from the west line of the state, in the extreme southern tier, and so bordering on Arkansas and enjoying to its fullness the wonderful climate of the "Sunny Side" of the Ozarks, where the temperature rarely touches zero in winter and the nights in summer are always cool enough to make sleep a delight.

The county contains 900 square miles, 112,000 acres, of which about 67,000 acres are under improvement. The soil varies from the rich alluvial bottoms to the strong limestone soils of the Ozarks, producing successfully wheat, on which the county was awarded a silver medal at the Louisiana Purchase exposition, corn second to none, (a stalk grows this season on display in this office measuring 17 feet in length), potatoes, cotton, melons, tame grasses, berries, nuts, vegetables, in fact everything except tropical products, peaches and peaches to especially well.

The surface is rugged and picturesque, covered with forests and traversed by streams of sparkling clearness, among them the beautiful White River, famed for its scenery, and the busy timber, while the wooded expanses abound in small game of various kinds, including fox, raccoon, opossum, squirrel, quail and turkey, affording abundant recreation with rod and gun.

The population of the county by the last census was 15,127, only two of whom were colored, and all but 40 American born. The county tax is but 10 cents on the $100, and there is practically no debt. Wood for fuel is plentiful and cheap, selling in Forsyth for $1 a wagon load with stumps, brush and stump ends. The land is rich and increasing, many of the owners manifesting such a spirit of up-to-date progress as to provide irrigation at $10 to $15 an acre, while unimproved lands can be had at $1.25 to $3. There are still about 5000 acres of government lands, subject to homestead or cash entry. The county is richly watered. White river alone winds in and out for about a hundred miles within its borders.

There is considerable timber of commercial value, including hickory, white oak, pine and cedar, and vast mineral wealth, as indicated by the little prospecting that has been done. Our resources include marble, hydraulic lime, manganese, iron, silver and gold, recent prospecting showing the presence of both in paying quantities, all of which will afford wealth-making opportunities to men of means, judgment and energy.

In no spot on earth, perhaps, can a poor man so easily acquire a home and make a living, and any man who is honest and willing to work can count on being rich or poor. The railroad, (White River line of the Missouri Pacific) is just reaching us for the first time, and a freight and passenger steamer will be plying on the river most seasonably, greatly stimulating activity in every direction, and sending values up. Now is the time to get in right and reap the benefits.

INCREASING CORN YIELDS.

Important Publication of the Missouri Experiment Station.

Recent investigation at the Missouri experiment station indicate that the average corn yields in Missouri may be increased ten bushels per acre by inexpensive methods. The information on how to accomplish these results is contained in circular of information Number 19, by M. F. Miller, a copy of which can be had by addressing the director of the experiment station, Columbia, Missouri.

The most common cause of low corn yields is a poor stand of corn. A poor stand of corn is usually the result of planting seed that will not grow or distributing the corn unevenly in the hills. The experiment station has carefully investigated seed corn taken during February, 1905, from the cribs of Missouri corn growers and the result shows that only 63 per cent of such corn will grow. To get a good stand at least 95 per cent should grow vigorously.

The above indicates that seed corn can not be safely selected from the crib, but should be carefully selected from the field as follows: Select from desirable stalks only those ears which show desirable characteristics. Place the ears at once in small piles or in shallow layers in some dry room or crib where they will become thoroughly dry before hard freezing weather. Corn must not be allowed to freeze before it is thoroughly dry. Corn stored in large heaps or in tight boxes before being thoroughly dried tends to heat and injure the vitality. Dry corn quickly and keep it dry that the vitality may be preserved.

Plant good varieties of corn. On the experiment station fields some ears of the Boone county white variety yielded at the rate of forty-five bushels per acre; other ears on the same soil, treated in the same way yielded ninety bushels per acre. Pure bred seed corn is much more productive than ordinary sorts.

Whatever the variety of corn a farmer may grow he will always profit by a very careful selection of seed. He should practice a system of corn breeding; that is, he should always grow his seed corn in a part of the field or in a plot by itself. This plot should be planted with the most perfect ears obtainable and seed corn for the next year always selected from this area. He will, in this way, improve his corn, both in yield and quality, and he will find it pays handsomely for the time and trouble necessary.

This valuable bulletin describing the best methods of increasing corn yields in Missouri may be had free by addressing director of the experiment station, Columbia, Missouri.

Western Students Are Independent.

The appeal to philanthropists, by President Harris of Amherst college, for money with which to buy dress suits for his poor boys, seems positively ridiculous to the students of the Missouri state university. Over half of the 1,375 students of the university are self-supporting and 25 are working daily to pay their expenses, but they do not look with favor upon a suggestion from a college president of a dress suit donation to fill out the wardrobe for special occasions.

A Freshman in the law department who has supported himself for several years while completing the academic course, comes forth with a typical opinion: "Would the boys of the university of Missouri appreciate such a contribution for their benefit? Not if I know them. The average boy of the university of Missouri does not own a dress suit. Most of them never wore one. Some of them could afford it and some could not, but the time has not yet come when it is the first ambition of the Missouri student to wear a dress suit. Every man of the university of Missouri is working for and expecting sometime to reach a position in society where dress suits are worn, but he is thinking of the position not of the dress. Into that position he will take individual independence and a strong character, and when he wears a dress suit it will be his own; it will add nothing to his self-respect and take nothing away, but will be to him only one of the conventionalities which society has imposed upon him. The man who is willing to take the short-cut by receiving the donation of a dress suit through a charitable contribution, is not of our kind. Only a son of Adams is he related to us."

Selfish greed often over-reaches itself, and been known to do so in the way of placing prohibitive prices on lands needed for the promotion of enterprises calculated to contribute to the prosperity and growth of a town.

The State of Missouri and the Farmer.

Statistics just compiled by Geo. B. Ellis, secretary of the state board of agriculture, show that last year Missouri spent $100,000 to help solve the problem of farming. Next year if bills now before the legislature become laws the expenditures for this branch of education will be in the neighborhood of $200,000. $75,000 of this was expended through the Missouri agricultural college at Columbia. The remaining $25,000 was expended through the three state normal schools. The work done by the agricultural college consists of teaching, lecturing to farmers, institutes and experiments. 100 students were taught last year and institutes held in 147 towns. Important experiments were also carried on. Some idea of the importance of these experiments may be obtained from the fact that through them a means of preventing Texas fever in cattle was found. The work done by the normal schools is that of teaching. The most important legislation now pending provides for agricultural instruction in high schools.

Money for Taney County.

Appropos of the effort to secure recompense from the United States for damages sustained by Taney county during the war of the rebellion, the following is the text of the bill introduced by Senator Cockrell in the United States senate, April 5, 1904: A bill for the Relief Of Taney County, Missouri.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money of the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Taney County, Missouri, the sum of two thousand four hundred dollars, for use and damage to the court house and other public property by the military forces of the United States during the late war of the rebellion.

The bill was read twice and referred to the committee on claims, and it is quite probable that in the course of time it will pass and the county will benefit to the amount named in the bill.

The Best Prescription for Malaria.

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50 cents.

The Largest in the World.

Missouri is noted for big things, and in addition to having just pulled off the greatest exhibition in the world, is now engaged upon the greatest electric railway enterprise ever launched, being a line between St. Louis and Kansas City. The road will be 300 miles long, will cross the Missouri river twice, once at St. Charles and once at Glasgow, and will shorten the distance by rail between Missouri's two largest cities by about twenty miles. The enterprise has been incorporated in Delaware under the title of "The Missouri Central Railroad Company," and capitalized at $12,000,000. The chief figure in the enterprise is Col. W. H. Chase, of Toledo, Ohio, and the company has been at work for about three years, making surveys and securing right of way. The enterprise simply marks one more step in the march of electricity as applied to transportation, and is prophetic of the day when this mysterious energy will supplant steam on the railroads of the world and bring transportation to the doors of many localities which steam could never have reached.

Real estate men are inquiring more about Taney county. That donation, by the way, has hurt Taney county's business interests more than any drought. I hope such a thing will never again be known. Industry, frugality and self-reliance are better.

I am informed that Prof. Taylor, president of the Springfield normal, has bought the Queen City and Clark's business colleges.

Let the Taney county boy improve this pleasant weather in advancing farm operations, raise good crops, and next fall when that old gentleman buyer a neighboring farm his pretty daughter will know he is an industrious lad, and—?
I like commercial work and my energies are being bent in that direction. I am trying to be a real estate agent, and will exchange farms. Write for information.
