PLAYS SOLOMON WITH DEER

Judge Unable to Decide Who Shot Buck, So He Has the Animal Halved.

All day a lone deer, a three-pronged buck, was lying in an automobile in front of the new courthouse, awaiting Justice Willis' decision as to who owned the animal. The animal was shot a week ago in the wilds of Jacks mountain, and James F. Kearn of Beavertown claims he shot it, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of five men for stealing the deer. Joseph Hummel of New Berlin, one of the men arrested, also claims he shot the deer.

The justice decided that the costs $35, should be divided equally between the parties, and that the deer should be cut in halves with the hide on.

Meanwhile the Beavertown party took the deer home and the justice sent Constable Specht to bring it back—Middleburg (Pa.) Dispatch Philadelphia Record.

British Empire's Possessions.

In the Woman's Home Companion Laura Spencer Porter has an article on the traditions of England in which she says:

"This is the most dominant and conquering nation of the world today, governing an empire which possesses something over one-fifth of the known surface of the globe, and more than one-fifth of all its inhabitants, a people whose 'far-flung battle line' projects, we are told, a country 'fifty-three times the size of France, fifty-two times the size of Germany, three times the size of Europe entire; with three times the vast populations of all the Russias, embracing four continents and ten thousand islands—this, the most dominant nation, this little home island, possessed now of this overwhelming vast empire, was, with its people in their childhood, more conquered, seemingly, than any other people; conquered by the Romans, the Britons, Saxons, the Danes, the Angles, the Jutes, and, finally, the Normans. Conquest after conquest. A strange and one might even think a humiliating childhood. Yet the very contrary, when one looks closer, is true."

Collies a Failure With Cows.

Cows, apparently, cannot be herded on the "moral suasion" plan. A farmer writes to the "Rural New Yorker" complaining that his imported Scotch collie dogs are too gentle with the stock. These dogs, he says, are very bright and intelligent, and would make good stock dogs if they would only bite the cows "enough to make the cows afraid of them." The dogs are probably hereditarily disposed not to bite their charges, collies having been for generations accustomed to herd sheep. Their indisposition to attack the cows ought to go to their credit, as being genuine collie.

New Idea in Flooring.

The floor of a building recently erected in Pennsylvania, where heavy material is to be stored, form an experiment. On a five-inch layer of sawdust has been placed a half-inch covering of red cement. The process was discovered in, and the materials are imported from Greece. It deadens sound and is easier for those who do their work standing.

GIRL RESTORED TO FATHER AFTER LONG CAPTIVITY

Montana Maid Was Sold by Gypsies to Rich Romany Leader.

FORCED TO JOIN STROLLERS

She Finally Succeeded in Escaping and Was Taken Care of by the Police—Slave of Wandering Tribe for Nine Years.

Helena, Mont.—When Evelyn Mitchell, a sixteen-year-old girl who for nine years has been the slave of gypsy bands in this country and the old world, threw herself into the arms of her father, a ranchman residing near a Montana town, it was the first time either had set eyes upon the other since the day of the mother's funeral in Helena nearly ten years ago.

M. L. Rickman, secretary of the state bureau of child and animal protection, escorted the girl to the ranch from Glacier park, where he met her in charge of Miss Georgiana Allen, a Havro schoolteacher, who agreed to chaperone the girl to Montana from a house of detention in Oakland, Cal.

H. A. Davee, state superintendent of public instruction, who was attending the National Teachers' association was besought by the Oakland authorities to provide escort for the girl back to Montana. The city paid her expenses. Superintendent Davee learned that Miss Allen, a teacher, was shortly to come home, and the latter went to the house of detention, where the girl has been kept two months to guard her against kidnaping by the gypsy band from which she was taken. These arrangements were made for bringing her home, and the teacher and the girl departed secretly from San Francisco, embarking on a steamer for Astoria, from which point they went by train to Glacier park.

In Terror of Band. The necessity for keeping their whereabouts secret was urged by the girl, who was in terror of being seized by the band. She declared that she was likely to be taken from a train by members stationed along the road and on watch, hence the trip by steamer was devised.

The history of the young woman reads like a romance. For several years she has been trying to escape from the gypsies, but, alone and friendless, she was given no opportunity until about three months ago when the Oakland officials secured possession of her after a desperate fight in the courts. The Marino band to which she was sold for $2,000 in 1912, is rich, and money was spent lavishly to defeat justice.

About ten years ago, following the funeral of the mother, the girl and a sister were placed in the St. Joseph's orphan's home. There they remained for perhaps six months, when Evelyn was taken to Butte, and in Judge Donlan's court, upon the representations of an attorney adoption papers were made out for "Mary" Mitchell, placing her in charge of a couple named Gichi. It developed later that the Gichis were members of a gypsy band.

Evelyn was an attractive little girl, and she was soon dressed in rags and started out as a beggar. Her pretty face and sad eyes affected the charitable disposed, and her collections were not the least of the loot of the band.

Longer for Own People.

As the girl grew older she longed for a return to "American life," as she called it. Living in wagons or tents along the highways, half starved, and beaten by the Gichi couple whenever she did not bring home as much money as they considered adequate, her existence was unhappy. Through the eastern states and down south the band wandered, and in the winter of 1912 at Los Angeles Evelyn enlisted the sympathy of an American woman and the authorities were notified.

Fearing that they might get into serious trouble if caught, the Gichis sold the girl for $2,000 to a rich leader of gypsies named Marino. In order to hold her Marino had his son, a boy of ten, marry her under gypsy law. This marriage, of course, was not binding, although Evelyn believed it to be. Then the Marinos embarked on a long pilgrimage. They coached Evelyn as a fortune teller and went first to New York city. From there they went to France, then to the Isthmus of Panama, then to Honolulu and the Philippine islands, eventually coming back to the United States. About three months ago the girl escaped and was picked up by the Oakland authorities on complaint of the Marino gypsies, and thus she was given an opportunity to tell her story in court.

Gypsies Fight Case.

During her stay with the Marino band Evelyn was beaten severely, and to her pleadings for freedom she was told that as soon as she earned the $2,000 which they claimed to have paid for her she would be allowed to have an automobile and to go where she pleased.

During the trial of the case, which was bitterly fought, the gypsies claimed that Evelyn was not of sound mind. Mental experts came from the University of California and made tests, showing that she graded 100 per cent intelligence and sanity. This discredited the subtlety of the gypsies. Mrs. Rickman says the girl returned to the band the jewelry which she wore at the time of her escape, except a string of pearls given to her in Honolulu by a member of the American colony. She was dressed in American clothing for the first time in years, discarding the picturesque costume she wore as a gypsy. The girl is able to read and write, and says she learned by bribing schoolgirls for ten cents each to teach her. She was compelled to do this stily, as she made her way about the cities as a beggar and fortune teller. The gypsies were opposed to her obtaining education of the most meager sort.

ONLY WOMAN SHERIFF

Mrs. Lucretia Roberts of Santa Cruz county, Arizona, is probably the only real live woman sheriff in the United States. She enjoys all the distinction that goes with the office of deputy sheriff; a wide sombrero, a big revolver and a lariat, to say nothing of the deputy's badge of office. Sheriff Roberts is a widow, tall, straight and strong, and a past master in the handling of "shooting irons." When asked what she does when one violates the law in Santa Cruz, she archly replied: "I go get him."

ONE CROP PAID FOR FARM

Kansas Farmers Are Worrying About What to Do With Their Money.

Atchison, Kan.—Albert Armstrong of this city, who has just returned from a trip to Lane county, says the farmers out there are worrying about what to do with their money this year, instead of worrying how to get along for lack of it.

This has been a wonderful year for western Kansas farmers, according to Armstrong. Last spring one Lane county farmer traded a heifer for a piece of volunteer wheat for the purpose of pasturing his cattle on it. The wheat did so well he decided to let it grow and harvest it. Result: He harvested 1,300 bushels of wheat, which he sold for $1,300. Another farmer bought a half section of land for $15 an acre and this year's crop paid for the land.

MEN KILL 150 RATTLES

Thrashing Crew in Kansas Is Kept Busy After the First One is Found.

Wakeeney, Kan.—There are fewer rattlesnakes in Trego county today than there were the middle of the week, as a thrashing crew working near this city killed 150 snakes in a few minutes near where they were working recently.

A large rattler was observed by one of the men lying in a low place at the mouth of a hole. He was pulled out and killed and with him six more, and then others.

LOST BROTHER COMES BACK

Michigan Man Now Is Wealthy and His Sister Quits her Job.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—No longer is it necessary for Miss Lucy Vandye to work long hours in a rag room of a paper company. She is now living in one of the finest country homes in Kalamazoo county. The change in the condition of things is due to a long lost brother, who it had been believed was dead. He has returned from Alabama, where he made money.

Vandye spent days in trying to secure some trace of the family he left here twenty years ago. His efforts have just been rewarded by the discovery of his sister.

This Is From Ladysmith.

Ladysmith, Wis.—While at his farm here, former Assemblyman Dell H. Richards saw a big buck coming home with the cattle. Rushing into the house, he secured a rifle and shot the animal. It weighed 285 pounds.

WRONG NUMBER; RIGHT GIRL

Telephone Operator's Blunder Must Have Had Some Place in the Scheme of Things.

A year ago last Christmas eve my fiance and I quarreled, a high quarrel, but it ended in a broken engagement, and he immediately set out for the West. Just where he went I did not know (which fact grieved me more than I can say).

For months I was disconsolate, but the following Christmas I journeyed to Denver, Colo., to spend the holiday with an old school friend.

On Christmas eve, while gathered around the grate exchanging stories, the telephone bell rang, and I, being nearest the instrument, answered it. The voice I heard on the wire startled me and then set my heart to beating triple time. It said, "Is this 2768?" to which I answered, "No, this is 2760." Then the voice said: "Pardon me, madam, but may I ask who is speaking? Your voice reminds me so much of a very dear friend whose voice I have not heard since a year ago tonight."

The surprise and the unexpectedness of it all nearly took my breath away, but I was finally able to say: "Well, perhaps I am that friend."

What else was said I cannot remember, but what I do remember is that within an hour we were face to face, reunited again, and both inwardly blessing the operator who gave Jack the wrong number.

We have been married since January, and no one could be happier. Jack often says: "I had the wrong number, but I certainly have the right little girl."—Chicago Tribune.

WERE CLOSE TO THE ANGELS

English Soldier Somewhat Irreverent in Describing ANgeled Occurrence at Mons.

W. B. Trites, the novelist, said on his return from the war:

"On the surface it appears that England in this war is showing more respect than France for religion. Thus, in France, a preacher got three months recently for preaching that the French losses and defeats were God's punishment for France's wickedness; but in England the papers are full of reverent discussion of the Mons angel legend—the legend of the white band of angels that protected the English troops in their great retreat.

"Now these things don't prove France less religious than England. They only prove her less foolish. For the Mons angels' yarn and the French preacher's vapors have nothing to do with religion. They concern human stupidity. And England has always been friendlier to human stupidity than France.

"I met one Englishman, a Tommy, who treated that Mons angel business right.

"And did you really see the angels?" I asked him in a Calais estaminet.

"Sure, sir," he said, with a wink.

"But were you near them?"

"Near 'em, sir," he said. "Why, me and a pal o' mine was so near 'em that my pal spotted an aunt o' his among 'em."
