

What Automobile Buyers Should Look For

There are two things motor car buyers, especially in the rural districts, should satisfy themselves about when deciding on their car.

REPUTATION and DEPENDABILITY

If you get both of these you are not being "done" in the transaction.

Mitchell cars for 1913 in particular, but as a matter of fact All during their history, have the advantage over many competitors. Seventy-eight years reputation and experience making Mitchell wagons fixed for all time the standing of the Mitchell company so far as honesty and ability are concerned.

"The Best is None Too Good" was in the old days, as it is now, the flag under which this company fought its way to success. There was, and still is, a "make good policy" that inspires confidence. There was, and still is, an ability behind the products of this company; this ability enables the cars to sustain the Mitchell reputation.

Mitchell cars have a real reputation. Dependability is the largest single factor in the car's standing in the community today. Country users of cars haven't the garage facilities of city drivers. Dependability counts in the country.

Don't buy a car and "hope" it is what you want; "hope" it is dependable.

Buy a Mitchell and KNOW it is dependable.

Added to reputation and dependability Mitchell cars this year have all the points any other car has, and many features that no other car can show.

They are bigger cars with bigger power; they are completely equipped with all modern conveniences, including electric starter and electric lights; they have an elegance that places them on a higher plane than ever before; nickle mountings, Turkish upholstery, long wheelbases, 120, 132 and 144 inches; Bosch ignition, Timken bearings in front wheels—these are but a few of the points.

It will pay you to look at the 1913 Mitchells. Rural residents in particular will appreciate these cars for the value of the cars themselves and for the additional advantage of George H. Webster, manager of the Grand theatre and head of the Webster Theatrical exchange will leave in a day or two for Aurora, Ill., where on Christmas day at high noon he and Miss Jenny St. George of Baraboo Wis., will exchange vows which will join them in the bonds of wedlock for life. The wedding ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride-to-be's sister, who is the wife of Dr. Geyer of Aurora and the wedding will be a quite one, witnessed only by the friends of the family, and Mr. Webster's brother Frederick, of Chicago will act as best man. On account of pressing business engagements the other brothers of Mr. Webster will be unable to attend the wedding. Miss St. George is a musician of a rare ability, having reached high attainments on the great harp as well as on the piano and pipe organ. Mr. Webster and his bride will be greeted warmly and congratulations will be many after their return to the city which will be shortly after the wedding, as his theatrical business will not permit the couple to take an extended wedding trip. After returning to Fargo they will have rooms at the Gardner, but expect to go to housekeeping in the near future.—Fargo Forum.

ESTRAYED.

Came to my place about Nov. 25th, one buckskin gelding, black mane and tail and legs from knees down; weight about 1,000 lbs.; has small white star in forehead and shod in front, and seems quite stiff; Wood's Ranch, section 36-143-58. 12-4-3tw (12-12-4tw)

In the death of Martin Yanish at the home of his son, Anton, last Thursday evening this community loses a most highly respected pioneer citizen. Death was caused by old age and a general breakdown. At the time of his demise Mr. Yanish was seventy-nine years of age. He was born in Hungary but came to this country in early manhood and settled in Minnesota. In 1882 he moved to North Dakota on a farm north of Fingal in which community he has resided ever since. He leaves to mourn his loss a loving wife and seven children, three daughters and four sons. Funeral services were held in St. Bernard's church at Oriska and interment made in the cemetery there.—Fingal Herald.
