

Good Dressing For Well Dressed Ladies

Through the courtesy of the Right Price Mercantile Co. we have received a copy of the second issue of "Good Dressing," the new fashion magazines which the Right Price Merc. Co. will have ready for distribution, after March 5th, with their compliments, to each customer and any other Valley City women who will call and ask for it.

This 32-page magazine is edited by the editors of The Ladies' Home Journal, and is beautifully illustrated. The cover is in colors by Carol Aus, and a leading feature is an article by Harrison Fisher, another artist, who is well known as a student of female beauty and whose paintings and cover designs for magazines are known the world over.

Mr. Fisher selects three charming gowns for Spring, which are portrayed in full length, and in his article he makes the assertion that it is difficult for most women to realize their own defects and shortcomings—to get the correct perspective, as it were, which is really essential in the selection of clothes. The garments of today are designed after careful study, and environment as well as personality in the planning of one's clothes must be considered, if they are to give the best effect. Because a certain type of dress or hat looks well on a young lady of sixteen is no reason why a mature woman of forty should wear it—yet many of them will do so.

Mr. Fisher properly condemns freakish fashions—he has not one kind word for them, saying they only serve to make women conspicuous, diverting attention from the wearer to her clothes. This is a very great mistake, if women only realized it, as clothes should be merely a setting for the personality—all should form a complete picture that is absolutely harmonious.

Through a co-operative arrangement with 3,000 other merchants in all parts of America The Right Price Mercantile Co. are enabled to distribute "Good Dressing" free for the asking, to the women of Valley City and "Good Dressing" is the fashion authority that distinctly shows how to live up to the name it bears.

Besides the featured article by Mr. Fisher, the April number of "Good Dressing" shows a brilliant variety of types to meet the requirements of any occasion—and any woman. The materials of which these designs may be made are shown; the newest fabrics are discussed, and such helpful advice is given that the choosing of styles, materials and colors is turned from the usual task to an appreciated pleasure.

American Fashions for American Women, concerning which so much is being said in the style centres, are illustrated and discussed—and there is interesting news from Paris.

For the young ladies, Nancy Norton writes a bright letter from her New York boarding school—telling her friends at home just

Osborne Says Times-Record Advertising Pays

Advertises Six Horses for Sale and Sold Them Inside of Three Days.

F. E. Osborne, manager of the Peoples Fuel Company is a good booster for Times-Record advertising. Last week he inserted an advertisement offering for sale six horses and inside of three days he had sold the horses and had many calls for horses after the sales had been made. He says that he always had faith in advertising but never realized the tremendous power of the paper as an advertising medium, and says that in the future instead of attempting to sell by the old fashioned methods he is willing to patronize the advertising columns of the Times-Record which he is convinced goes into about every home in the county, and must be real else how could every one in the county know that those horses were offered for sale, inside of three days.

The postmaster is in receipt of a communication from relatives of Nick Simon asking that he be found and notified that his father is very sick. The letter states that Nick was here last fall, the last heard from him, and that the mother and other relatives will appreciate any information. Notify Miss Lena Simon, Almene, Wis.

Another Fire At Carrington Thursday

Another fire was discovered at Carrington shortly after midnight Thursday and before the fire fighting apparatus could be gotten on the ground the building burned with four valuable horses and much other property. The barn which burned was owned by Mower and Pryor and there is no doubt but the cause of the fire was the same as that of the other buildings which have burned within the past few months.

Two of the horses were family animals that were highly prized and the method of their loss is very trying to owners.

It would be greatly appreciated if all the correspondence for the Times-Record could mail their weekly letter not later than Tuesday of each week. This does not mean that they must be mailed that early, but it will be very much better if it can be done.

Mrs. A. S. Francisco and son Burdette, is spending several weeks at the home of her brother S. P. Ellis.

what the smart metropolitan girls are wearing.

A special feature which the women of Valley City should appreciate is the correspondence department through which The Right Price Mercantile Co. offer free advice on the Etiquette of Clothes, Home Dressing, Needlework, Millinery, Children's Clothes, Hair Dressing or any one of the many things pertaining to fashions about which women are so many times perplexed.

EDITOR CASE CONTINUES SCRAP

Grand Forks Times: Insisting that Editor Metcalf of The Lakota Observer was kept on the payroll of the United States senate for twenty months without rendering any service, Editor Case of the McVillie Journal in his paper this week continues the controversy between himself and Senator Gronna. Several days ago, Senator Gronna made a statement in answer to the charge and the letter of Editor Case is published at his request. It follows:

"Editor Grand Forks Herald: Kindly give space in your valuable paper to my answer to the article by Senator A. J. Gronna against me in The Herald for March 8.

"Senator Gronna feels that he has to do something to defend himself against the statements made by me as editor of The Journal, that he had improperly kept on the payroll of the United States senate persons who have never been in Washington to perform services where their services were supposed to be performed. Instead of squarely challenging my statements of facts or exposing the falsity of my conclusions—neither of which he dares to do—he takes refuge from public condemnation by raising a question as to my motives. The situation would be amusing if it were not really tragic. He quotes almost in full a letter which he claims to have received from me, in which I apply for a position in the public service. By mere accident he happens to forget to give the date of the letter. Assuming for the present that he gives the letter correctly, it is a little difficult to see wherein it is wrong or even questionable for any American citizen to apply to even a United States senator for a position. The facts are these: Some three or four years ago the writer contemplated seriously disposing of his grain elevator in McVillie and leaving town. Being under the necessity of earning a living I applied for various positions—actually accepting one offer as traveling representative for a certain grain company, and traveled for them nearly a year. This all occurred long before I had any idea of purchasing The McVillie Journal from Lea L. Lang, which transaction took place in September, 1910. At the time I wrote this questionable application to Mr. Gronna, who was then congressman it never occurred to me that he had salaries to dispose of that were not encumbered with any services.

"Continuing, Gronna's words as quoted in The Grand Forks Herald are: 'Mr. Metcalf was appointed, but soon after the appointment earned that he would be unable to go to Washington, and another messenger was appointed.' So far Gronna, but what are the facts? From April 10, 1911, to Aug. 17, 1911, T. E. Metcalf was on the senate payroll as skilled laborer and drew salary at $75 per month. From Aug. 17, 1911, to the end of that year, this same T. E. Metcalf was promoted to messenger to committee on expenditures in navy department—Gronna's committee—with a salary of $100 per month, which salary was paid as shown by vouchers 67, 97, 122, 160, 198, 234, 255, 289, and 321. Not only this, but the same T. E. Metcalf continued to draw his $100 per month salary through the entire year of 1912. T. E. Metcalf's father died in August 1912, sixteen months after his son and Gronna's messenger began to draw a salary, and four months before this salary ceased. All of these twenty months Gronna helped Metcalf to this salary without turning his hand in the way of service, and yet Gronna states that he had Metcalf's name removed 'soon after the appointment when he learned that he would be unable to get to Washington.'

"Permit me to add that I have not attacked Mr. Gronna, but I have attacked his acts as a public servant. I have not done this by peddling rumors but by quoting public records. Gronna's motives I care not to discuss, but his acts as a public servant will be exposed and discussed.

"Harry M. Case."

(Editorial note—in order to avoid misunderstanding it is proper to state that in some of his references Mr. Case confuses the direct telephone communication from Mr. Gronna with explanatory matter on the part of the paper itself. Mr. Gronna's communication was quoted and properly credited to him, and, in order that the matter might be understood by the reader, a summary of the facts as formerly stated in a publication credited to Mr. Gronna, or published in his behalf was given.)

Noltimer. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Meldahl, who were recently married at Freeport, Ill., have returned from their wedding trip and spent a few days at the home of the bride's Uncle Chas. Noltimer, from which place they were transferred by automobile to the home of the groom's parents, Theo. Meldahl.

The automobile failed to have springs or rubber tires on it which was not necessary owing to the smoothness of the road, and as it was propelled by two large draft horses it did not travel at a very high rate of speed. Peter, the coachman, was not in a hurry so he did not urge them along. Their trunk served them as a seat, just room for two comfortably.

The young couple will make their home on the old home farm.

The sudden death of Samuel H. Lowe at his home south of Wimbledon Monday morning at about three o'clock, came as a great shock to the entire community. Many in town did not know that he was sick, although he had been ill with pneumonia for a week, but not dangerously ill until two days before his death. The day before he died he seemed to be getting better, but about midnight he took a turn for the worse and about three hours afterward death relieved him of his suffering. — Wimbledon News.
