

HIS LOVE STORY

by MARIE VAN VORST

HE is a sturdy young Captain in the French army. She is a beautiful, courageous, thoroughbred American girl. There is a marquis, a duke, a countess, an Algerian caravaner, a witch woman of the desert, and Pitchoune, a spunky little Irish terrier, with an eccentric limp, the greatest devotion and almost human intelligence.

Mingling the tender feeling and rare coloring of a French idyl with the stirring action of a frontier drama, Marie Van Vorst has made this an enchanting tale of young love.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT OF NORMAL MEANS MUCH HERE IN V. C.

Throughout the entire school year it would be hard to find a busier place in the educational institutions of our state than the commercial department of our local Normal school. Here the practical and the professional sides of education go hand in hand and students are prepared as teachers of practical business subjects not only through a careful training in the methods and theory of these subjects, but also by the actual doing each day of the various duties required of clerical men and women.

Almost since the beginning of the school there has been some business training given to those who chose to elect it, but the regular teachers' training course in commerce was not organized until some years later, when Professor C. C. Curtiss, M. A., and Mrs. W. M. Greenwood, M. C., took charge of the work, which soon grew to such an extent as to require the constant services of an additional teacher and Miss Anna K. Cook was chosen because of her especial fitness and capabilities for carrying on the increased work.

The work as now given constitutes one of the special courses of the institution open to high school graduates, and requiring two years above the high schools, or five above the grades. In addition to all the regular academic and professional work required of the Normal school graduate, this course consists of complete courses in accounting, commercial law, stenography, typewriting, commercial correspondence and office practice. Naturally, each of these subjects consists of varied divisions of the work, all correlated and taught from the professional standpoint. The work of this department also includes the supervision, by Miss Cook, of all the writing in the Model school.

The fact that Professor Curtiss has charge of the Normal school penmanship is a sufficient guarantee that writing as a subject in the schools of the state is receiving a great impetus when it is remembered that about 200 graduates leave the institution each year, each of whom has had instruction and training under his supervision.

The demand for professionally trained commercial teachers is far in excess of the supply, and prospective graduates would do well to consider the advantages of this department before deciding upon their courses.

The department now numbers among its graduates many of the best teachers of penmanship in this and other states, also teachers of entire commercial courses in various schools; while accountants, reporters and clerical assistants in large numbers throughout the state look back to the State Normal school at Valley City as their alma mater. Amanuenses who have received their training here occupy at the present time important positions in seven states and Canada, also in fourteen cities of this state, while the local business men have furnished employment for a large number as well. Not only this, but matrimony has claimed a number of them, and at the rate this particular list grows one is inclined to think that business and pedagogical training are of special advantage to the young ladies who take advantage of it.

STATE WILL BOND ALL ITS OFFICERS

SENATE PASSES SEVERAL BILLS OF IMPORTANCE—WILL BOND OFFICERS.

IMMIGRATION BILL FOUGHT

Action Will be Taken This Afternoon—State to Carry Own Insurance.

Bismarck, N. D., March 2.—Senator Hyland's immigration bill which provides that the governor, the commissioner of agriculture and the president of the railroad commission shall be the board of immigration and which makes an appropriation of $25,000 for 1915 and $35,000 for 1916, was referred to the committee of the whole house in the house and will be threshed out this afternoon. The position that has developed to this bill in the house was wholly unexpected and when it came back to the house from the committee on appropriation with a divided report, a majority for passage and a minority for indefinite postponement, there was considerable surprise among the supporters of the bill.

Among the important bills recommended for passage by the house committee was Overson's measure making the election of United States senators conform with the federal plans for the direct election of United States senators.

The county seat removal bill was again before the house on third reading and although it failed of passage by only two votes it will probably be reconsidered and brought before the house again. As the bill now stands it will make possible the removal of the county seats in Nelson, Rolette and Bottineau counties. The discussion of the bill again brought forth a good deal of fireworks but there was no further attempt at amendment.

Among the important bills passed by the house was one by which the state will carry its own insurance on state-owned buildings. This has passed the senate, where it originated, and is now up to the governor for signature.

Senator Ellingson's bill creating a state bonding department was passed by a big majority without amendments and this is another of the important bills that will be up to the governor for consideration before the close of the session. There was very little debate over the matter and it will remain to be seen whether the supreme court will hold that it is constitutional as now drawn and passed.

The senate bill extending the time in which the teachers retirement fund may be optional until 1917 was passed. There has been considerable of a fight on this bill during the entire session and at one time the house repealed the entire teachers' insurance and retirement fund law and redistributed the money but reconsideration carried and the law is still on in working order.

Bismarck, N. D., March 2.—The even trend of affairs in the senate was upset on three occasions, one being when the bill providing that control of light, heat and power plants be invested in the board of railroad commissioners. There was considerable debate over this bill. Local conditions in the various cities where light and power plants are concerned came into question but the bill was finally passed with a good margin of safety.

The second clash came when H. B. 492 was up for third reading. This is the bill that repeals the terminal elevator mill tax and appropriates $2000 for the railroad commission to make a study of the feasibility of the building and operation of a state owned terminal elevator either in this state or Minnesota or Wisconsin. There were members who thought there should be an appropriation carried to make up the amount cut off in the mill tax. After considerable debate the bill was rereferred to the committee on judiciary and a report will probably be made this afternoon.

The amendments made to Torson's bill providing for the abolishment of capital punishment was the third stumbling stone in the senate but the bill was finally passed with an amendment which makes it provide for those sentences in the future and also provides capital punishment for anyone who may commit a murder while serving life sentence. There were 33 yeas and 15 nays for the bill as it was amended.

The rules were suspended for the passage of appropriation bills so that they might get to the governor as soon as possible.
