

The New Game Law— Many Changes Made

North Dakota will soon have a new game law. It was the longest bill introduced in the legislature this year and for that, as well as other reasons, attracted considerable attention. It was finally passed through the co-operation of the state game and fish board and the thousands of sportsmen over the state, and evidently indicated some good team work between the sportsmen and the officials.

The new law is a thoroughly modern game measure and not only has the endorsement of the sportsmen of North Dakota, but the O. K. of the federal department of biology at Washington, which has the direct charge of the enforcement of the federal laws regarding the protection of migratory birds.

The bill contains about 20 sections of the old law entirely unchanged. About that many more are slightly changed by the addition of a word or line. The balance of the old law, which had been amended and re-amended until it was somewhat confusing, was rewritten to make its meaning clear and there were 15 or 20 new sections embracing matters not included in the old law and which are regarded as greatly strengthening the game laws and broadening their scope.

The chief changes of interest to the sportsmen are that shooting hours were changed to conform to the federal law, by necessity, and shooting will not be permitted before actual ty, these fish coming from Canada into these waters.

Deer are protected until 1920. Better provisions regarding the disposition of beavers doing damage were made and the trapping season on muskrat and muskrat made to open Dec. 1 instead of Nov. 15, that the furs may become more prime and valuable.

Among the new legislation is a measure providing for the establishment of a game farm for the propagation of game birds which will be distributed over the state to perpetuate the hunting for future years. It is planned to place partridges, or ruffed grouse, which are now numerous in four or five counties of the state, in other sections. Experiments will also be conducted with quail and with pheasants of different varieties.

The law provides for the creation of game refuges, not to exceed ten acres in size and not more than six sections in any one township, these game refuges to be dedicated for a period of not less than ten years. This is a purely voluntary movement by bird lovers who are land owners. It makes a provision for refuges for both land birds and water fowl and is in line with advanced legislation in other states. After the dedication and acceptance of these refuges they are marked and protected by the game officials.

The new bill also embraces the Pennsylvania alien law, which prohibits foreign-born residents who have and Rolette counties only. This is for the purpose of protecting the birds that will be sent to other parts of the state for stocking purposes.

The sportsmen believe that with the enforcement of the preventive measures in the new laws that the shooting in North Dakota can be permanently perpetuated and that the game birds in North Dakota will not be destroyed, as was the case in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio and other states and that there will be prairie chickens and other game remaining in North Dakota for all time to come. The new legislation is along conservative lines and the sportsmen, who wish to continue to enjoy shooting, heartily endorse it.

JAMESTOWN BUILDINGS ARE TIED UP BY INJUNCTION.

Bismarck, March 12.—The board of control is refusing to take any action towards completing the buildings under way at the Jamestown institution until the injunction case brought by Knauf-Seller-Buck parties is settled. The case does not come up until April 16 and nothing can be done until after that time. It was thought that the buildings would be completed about the middle of the present month. In fact, a start had been made towards moving in when the injunction was served. It will take some time after the injunction is raised, if it is, before the work can be started as the contractor will have to gather his force again to complete his work.

FAVORED ST. PATRICK.

The members of the Bridge club were entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. L. P. Hyde, on First street. It was a St. Patrick party, and St. Patrick's colors and decorations were used about the rooms. The living room was decorated in green, and in the dining room, the table was decorated with shamrocks and tiny green flags. Candy shamrocks were given as favors and the lunch appointments and the menu was also carried out in the St. Patrick colors. The evening was devoted to playing bridge, and prizes were won by Mrs. J. Wold and Mrs. Otto Neumann.

WANT THEM TO PUT UP BOND.

An effort will be made in district court at Valley City on March 23 to get the Knauf-Seller-Buck combination to put up bonds so that the state and the contractors affected can have recourse for damages in case the prosecutors fail to establish their case. It will be remembered the Knauf-Seller-Buck combination were the petitioners for an injunction tying up the work at the asylum for a few months.

BACK FROM CALIFORNIA.

Mrs. W. W. Smith and little son, Master Ridgeway, returned to Valley City Sunday from San Diego, Cal., where Mrs. Smith had been spending the past winter visiting with her mother, Mrs. Ridgeway. Master Ridgeway, who returned with his mother, has been spending the past year and a half or more in San Diego at the home of his grandmother.

BACK FROM PENNSYLVANIA.

C. O. P. Smith, the chiropractor, has returned to the city from Detroit, Mich., where he was called by the death of his grandmother. Mr. Smith, in company with his mother, accompanied the remains from Detroit to Susquehanna, Pa., the old home, where the burial took place. He was absent from the city about a week.

FOR MISS GREENWOOD.

Miss Helen DeLancey was hostess on Saturday afternoon at a 6 o'clock supper, complimentary to Miss Ruby Greenwood, who leaves shortly to teach near Bismarck. Covers were placed for six guests, and following the supper the young ladies enjoyed the performance at the Rex.

VALLEY CITY SETTER WINS SECOND PRIZE.

Messrs. King & Coughlan had their English setter entered in the dog show at Fargo last week and it took the second prize. As the entry list was a very large one, it had to be a fine animal to win any prize at all.

INSPECTING THE COMMANDERIES

Frank White left Sunday evening for Minot and will spend the week inspecting the grand commanderies at Minot, Grand Forks, Grafton and Wahpeton.

News of Sanborn

(Told by the Enterprise)

John Blomberg went to Valley City Saturday night.

Mrs. Margaret Green, of West Mansfield, was a passenger to Valley City Saturday evening.

Mrs. McKean was a passenger to Valley City last Saturday for an over-Sunday visit with friends.

The delayed farmers' meeting has been announced for April 3. Further mention will be made in next issue.

The M. W. A. local camp had a high time last Monday night, when they initiated seven candidates. Refreshments were served after the close of the ceremonies.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Education of the Village of Sanborn the present corps of teachers in the local school was re-elected for the next year.

Frank Hesch, of the Eckelson neighborhood, was a pleasant caller at this office Monday. He is making preparations for a big season's work.

Charley Swanson, Ellen Swanson, Thorvald Albertson, Henry Gudson, and Berger Helm, all from Svea, twp., went to Valley City Sunday evening and returned Tuesday morning.

Hon. George Law, of Leal, was a passenger via the branch last Friday for home. He was returning from Bismarck, where he was an observer during the closing hours of the fourteenth session of the state legislature.

T. G. Raveling, of Buffalo, N. D., a former resident of Sanborn, was here on business Monday. He sold his residence on Third street, north of Mayor Winterer's home, to Thomas Chapman for $1,000. The house was built by the late Judge Prindle, an early resident of this place.

Two games of basketball will take place at the high school auditorium Friday (tomorrow) evening, March 12. The preliminary game will be between the freshmen and eighth grade, and the principal event will be a clash between the Valley City Midgets and Sanborn high school.

The single argument against the establishment of a creamery in Sanborn has been that there were not enough cows in the territory tributary to town to supply sufficient cream for its support. Each season adds many cows to the herds of Western Barnes. Let us hope that the time has arrived when a creamery can be profitably operated and that the coming season will early see the project under way.
